AMERICANS INVITED INTO 'THE COMPLETE PEERAGE'

All Needed to Get Names in This Book Is $500 and to Be Descendant of 'Lord of Parliament.'

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, March 7.—Five hundred dollars and your name in "The Complete Peerage," American dollars are being invited to help out in the "Historical Research Fund" which will be used as "A record of every Lord of Parliament from the Conquest to the present day." The Americans need be descended from "Lords of Parliament."

The reward held out to Americans who may be interested in the project is that their names will appear in each of the 14 volumes of the completed work, and also in an illuminated volume to be presented to their Majesties, the King and Queen.

The invitations, bearing a gold crown embossed at the head of each, bears the names of the Marquess of Crewe, K. C., and the Marquess of Sligo, of the British Nobility. With each goes an elaborately worded description of the work and its appeal to Americans, which, in commercial circles, would pass under the name of "Selling Appeal." It holds out the hope that a large number of Americans may prove to be descended from these Lords of Parliament.

Americans who have become "Patrons" includes J. Pierpont Morgan, Charles Deering of Evanston, Ill.; Mrs. Alice Vanderbilt, Mrs. Edith Rockefeller McCormick of Chicago, Mrs. William L. Harkness, B. F. Bourne, John A. Roebling of Bernardsville, N. J., and Walter H. Langshaw and J. J. Waterbury, whose names do not appear in the Social Register. The list of both British and American "patrons" is limited to 100.

J. P. Morgan & Co. is acting as depositary for contributions. The scheme of "inviting" Americans to take part was developed as a result of the visit a year and a half ago by a British publisher, Doubleday, who has been busy compiling the records of the Lords of Parliament for years.

In the "particulars of which," accompanying the invitations to prospective "patrons," this work is described as "an undertaking which has been in progress for some 60 years at a cost of at least as many thousands of pounds."

"The complete peerage" research fund has been opened in America under the auspices of the Right Rev. William T. Manning, Mr. Cornelius Vanderbilt, Mr. Clarence Mackay, Mr. Albert G. Milbank and Mr. Francis Peabody," it says.

SCION OF WEALTHY OLD FAMILY WEDS A DIVORCEE

Albert G. Jennings Jr.'s Father Hopes It Isn't True But Son Says It's a Fact.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, March 7.—Albert Gould Jennings Jr., scion of an old and wealthy family, was married on Oct. 1, last, at Waukegan, Ill., to Mrs. Helen H. Rueping, a blonde divorcee, who came here from Chicago. For the past five years she has maintained a home, on which a valuation of $250,000 is placed, at 21 East Sixty-seventh street. This she has offered for sale, and it is reported will leave with her young husband for Europe, where they will settle down.

The boy's father, when told of the marriage at the University Club by a reporter, expressed the fervent hope it was not true. Young Jennings declared by telephone that he was married to Mrs. Rueping, and said, "They know all about it at all the clubs."

Jennings met his bride four years ago. He was 24 and she was around 30. The pair were constantly seen riding in Central Park or motoring. They were joint host and hostess at a party at his apartment recently but none of the guests suspected they had been married.

Jennings is a grandson of A. G. Jennings, founder of a great lace manufacturing concern now conducted by the father. The son is a brokerage house bond salesman.

WARMEST MARCH 7 IN HISTORY OF THE WEATHER BUREAU HERE

Thermometer at 79 at 4 P. M. Yesterday Tops Previous Record of 76 in 1879.

Signs of spring are becoming numerous.

Swallows were seen in St. Louis County yesterday, robins have been busy at spring house-cleaning for a week past, and just the other night the frogs of the Meramec Valley, for the first time this year, set up their all-night chorus.

In addition, yesterday was the warmest March 7 in the history of the St. Louis Weather Bureau, with 79 at 4 p. m. March 7, 1879, with a high of 76, no longer holds the record.

However, the March record, 83.9 on March 13, 1918, remains unbeaten.

FIRE ROUTS 150 GUESTS FROM ILLMO HOTEL

Blaze in Basement of East St. Louis Hostelry Causes Heavy Damage by Water.

About 150 guests of the Illmo Hotel, Collinsville and Missouri avenues, East St. Louis, were routed out at 11 o'clock last night when a fire of undetermined origin broke out in the basement of the three-story structure, causing much smoke.

The blaze was confined to a part of the basement used by the Wales Clothing Co., which operates a ladies' ready-to-wear shop on the first floor. The hotel guests were notified of the fire and asked to leave the building. Later they returned to their rooms.

Dense smoke issued from the basement, causing three firemen to be overcome, two of whom were taken to a hospital. The damage, running to several hundred dollars, was caused mainly by water.

BABE RUTH SUED FOR $7700 BY NEW YORK BOOKMAKER

Baseball Player Admits Placing Bets But Says They "Were Unlawful and Void."

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, March 7.—George Herman (Babe) Ruth, baseball's home run king, now in Florida training with the New York Yankees, placed bets on horse races with Edward J. Callahan, a bookmaker, but does not owe Callahan a penny. This was the answer today by Hyman Bushel, attorney for Ruth, to the suit for $7700 brought in the name of Harry Lichtenstein, assignee of Callahan, to recover alleged racing losses from the ball player. Lichtenstein charged Ruth agreed to pay the money to Callahan at a conference with the bookmaker, May 25, 1924, at the Yankee Stadium.

The answers to the suit were filed by Bushel. The first admitted Ruth had placed bets with Callahan which "were unlawful and void," while the second denied the ball player had made any agreement with the bookmaker to pay any amount. Possibility of the suit coming to trial in the near future was killed today when Supreme Court Justice Wasservogel denied Lichtenstein's motion to advance it on the calendar.

G. O. P. MAYORALTY CANDIDATES MIX IN ANOTHER ROW

Clash, This Time Before the Republican Women's Club, Is Instigated by Victor J. Miller.

GRIMM INVOLVED AND ALOE DRAWN IN

Ire of Two Opponents Roused When Miller Refers to Their Backers as "Boss" Element of Party.

The Republican mayoralty maelstrom, which drew Circuit Judge Robert W. Hall and former Circuit Judge J. Hugo Grimm into a personal clash Thursday, caught Louis P. Aloe, Victor J. Miller and George E. Dieckman in its whirling current yesterday. The Republican field of five aspirants is now in open campaign combat with the primary Friday only five days away.

It developed at a meeting of the Republican Women's Club yesterday afternoon at Hotel Statler, attended by 1000 persons, nearly all of them women, at which all candidates spoke. Judge Hall, the storm center of midweek, had completed a dignified address when Miller kindled the flame of partisanship and aroused the indignations of Aloe and Grimm.

Some Shouts of Derision.

The calm and reserve of the assemblage was lost there. Friends of Aloe and Miller, apparently in a preponderant majority, refused to concede intensity of applause to the opposing faction. There were interruptions and a few shouts of derision. The forceful replies of Aloe and Grimm brought the emotional forces of the gathering to its highest pitch. Dieckman further contributed to it by asserting that an attempt was made to "buy the city hall" and saying that the "open split" in the party opened the way for a Democratic victory.

The personal clash revolved about the support of what Miller termed the "boss" element of the Republican party. He pointed out that Nat Goldstein and Hank Weeke were supporting one candidate (Aloe) and that City Collector Koeln and E. W. Foristel another (Grimm). He said further that "money is being used in this campaign, but I have too much faith in the American form of government to believe that it will triumph."

His address was punctuated by applause, but the opposition had its opportunity when he said "I am not interested particularly in whether Victor Miller is elected; it is the cause I attempt to represent that interests me."

Miller Chided on "Modesty."

The supporters of other candidates laughed outright and chided him upon his "modesty." It nettled Miller and tended to incense his supporters. The excitement was at a high point when Aloe was introduced. He waved aside an enthusiastic greeting and plunged immediately into the points emphasized by Miller.

"I want to say that I have never at any time sought the support of so-called political bosses," he said. "I defy anyone to show the Republican city committeeman whose support I have sought. If I go into the office of Mayor I will be untrammeled by any pledge or promise.

"When a candidate tells you about Goldstein, Weeke, Foristel and Koeln, why doesn't he tell the whole truth? Why doesn't he tell you that 'Bobbie' Moore, 'Tub' Becker and Lawler Daley, a Democratic Committeeman, are supporting him?"

The scene shifted and Aloe's effort to continue was delayed several minutes by further applause.

Aloe Answers Fund Charge.

"When they talk about money in this campaign," Aloe continued, "I will say that Robert Burkham is chairman of the finance committee of my campaign. We can legally spend $3600. When that amount is reached we will decline further contributions. Of one of these candidates who talks about the use of money, let me say that one of his representatives went to Albert von Hoffman, the printer, several days ago and tried to borrow $4000 for use in his campaign. That is illegal; it is more than the limit the law allows."

Von Hoffman has left the city for California and the sources from which Aloe said he derived his information would not discuss the matter.

"There is an ugly whispering campaign being conducted against me," Aloe said in concluding his address. "I will only say that I

DOCTORS DUPED BY SWOLLEN LIMBS IN INSURANCE FRAUDS

Turpentine Believed to Have Been Injected in Bodies of Ripley County "Accident" Claimants.

'SERUM RING' GOT PART OF PROCEEDS

Swindle First Revealed by Number of Claims Coming to St. Louis Agent of Casualty Company.

Turpentine is now believed to have constituted the "serum" which was injected into the bodies of several persons in Southern Missouri to cause swellings which served as the basis of fraudulent accident claims against insurance and railroad companies. More than $25,000 has been collected on such claims, it is estimated.

Mark A. Shipley, a St. Louis representative of the Fidelity and Casualty Co. of New York, noticed recently that numerous claims were coming from Ripley County, one of the southern border counties. Investigators found that a number of the Ripley County claims were for apparent injuries which looked severe at first, and were attested by reputable physicians, but that speedy recovery occurred in all the cases.

The insurance company's investigators soon called on postoffice inspectors to co-operate with them, as the claims for alleged injuries had been sent through the mails. Inspectors R. A. Ward and B. F. Cain of the St. Louis office have been working on the case. Other insurance companies, which had paid claims in the same county, joined in the inquiry.

Thus far, claims on which about $15,000 were paid have been investigated. Emanuel Gartman of Doniphan, county seat of Ripley County, has been arrested, and is under $10,000 bond to appear March 24 in Federal Court at Cape Girardeau.

Proceeds Split.

The investigators' work has tended to indicate that the "serum" was handled by a few, and that they used it on various persons who were willing to split the proceeds.

Those in the "serum ring," the investigators say, would approach persons of their acquaintance, not of a too scrupulous sort, with a plan for making easy money. The first thiing required was that the person should take out accident insurance.

Not long afterward, a claim would be made on the accident policy. It would be reported that the policy holder had fallen on the ice, or down the cellar stairs, and injured his leg. A physician, sent to make an examination, would find the leg swollen and discolored. The appearance was such as to deceive a skillful physician, and no blame is attached to the physicians who certified the cases, though use of x-ray equipment, in some cases, might have kept them from being deceived.

In one such case, the investigators learned, the physician reported an apparent displacement of the knee cap.

"Disability" Would Vanish.

The "disability" would last a few weeks, and the person would then recover with no apparent ill effects. The same method would be used for making claims against railroad companies, for alleged falls from car platforms, or against mill owners or other employers for injuries supposed to have been received in the course of employment.

Gartman, who was arrested on a charge of using the mails to defraud in conection with an alleged injury to another person, is said by the inspectors to have been employed in the Frisco railroad shops before 1913. They say he obtained a judgment of $13,000 for alleged personal injuries suffered while at work. Since then, he has acquired considerable land. An arson charge is pending against him at Poplar Bluff. Gartman has made emphatic denial of any part in insurance fraud.

The grand jury at Cape Girardeau will take up the matter April 6, and it is expected that a number of indictments will be voted.

WALSH DEMANDS SENATE REFUSE TO CONFIRM WARREN

If Approved, Montanan Says, Every 'Plundering Monopoly of U. S. Would Have Unlimited License.'

CONNECTION WITH SUGAR TRUST HIT

Reed and Followers Win Notable Victory in Compelling Debate to Be Held in Open Session.

By CHARLES G. ROSS,
Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, March 7.—Exhorting the Senate to stand fast against the President's nomination of Charles B. Warren of Michigan to be Attorney-General of the United States, Senator Walsh (Dem.), Montana, declared in an open executive session this afternoon that, if Warren were confirmed, the Senate, to be consistent, should wipe the Sherman anti-trust law off the statute books.

"Confirm this nomination," said Walsh, in an impassioned climax, "and you might as well hang out a sign that, for the period of the life of this administration, the Sherman act is suspended. Confirm this nomination, and you issue an invitation to every plundering monopoly in the country to extend and fasten its tentacles upon the American household.

"I cannot believe that Senators can consider this record (the record of Warren's connection with the Sugar Trust) and think that they discharge their duty in voting for the nomination of Charles B. Warren for Attorney-General."

Force Debate in Open Session.

Walsh's speech, which included an exhaustive analysis of Warren's record, consumed so much time that Senator Reed of Missouri, the recognized leader in the fight on the nomination, decided not to go into action till Monday.

A notable victory was achieved by Reed and his followers in compelling the debate on Warren to be held in the open. Administration Senators had confidently expected that the nomination would be jammed through in short order behind closed doors.

Propaganda, said Walsh, has sought to convey the impression that the Senate never had rejected a Cabinet nomination. He cited several cases in refutation, notably the refusal of the Senate to confirm Roger B. Taney, afterwards Chief Justice of the United States Supreme Court, as Secretary of the Treasury under Jackson, and the rejection of Caleb Cushing, afterwards Attorney-General, for Secretary of the Treasury under Tyler.

"No Reputation as Lawyer."

Referring, without naming them, to a Mitchell Palmer and Harry M. Daugherty, Walsh said that twice in the last six years men had been elevated to the head of the Department of Justice not because of any brilliancy in the law, but as a reward for political service. These two appointments, he commented, did not shed any luster either on the office or on the appointing power. So far as the public interest was concerned, the result "approached disaster."

"But the chief reason why he should not be made the Attorney-General of the United States," said Walsh, "is the fact that for years he was a representative in Michigan of the Sugar Trust, one of the most offensive and oppressive of all trusts."

Record of Sugar Connections.

From the record, Walsh then told of the activity of Warren in buying up the stock of Michigan beet sugar companies on behalf of the Sugar Trust.

"Acting as the agent of H. O. Havemeyer, the head of the trust," said Walsh, "he bought up enough of the stock of these concerns to control them. He took the stock on his own name, but he used the money of Havemeyer and Havemeyer's associates, and he held the stock as trustee for them."

He recalled that in the suit begun by the United States Government in 1910 to dissolve the Sugar Trust, Warren and the Michigan Sugar Co., of which he was president, were specifically named as two of the defendants, and charged with a conspiracy in restraint of trade.

Going extensively into the history of the Sugar Trust, Walsh charged that its exactions, more than any other one cause, were responsible for the enactment of the Sherman Law.

Under this law, he said, the trust had been compelled to surrender the control of the beet sugar industry which Warren had helped to acquie for it.

Suffers Fractured Skull When Hit Crossing Street— Driver Is Arrested.

Mary Chrodini, 3-year-old daughter of Angelo and Rose Chrodini, 1915 Edwards street, was struck and instantly killed by an automobile truck as she tried to cross the street in front of her home at 4:30 p. m. yesterday.

The driver, Lawrence Powers, 20 years old, of 5571 Lansdowne avenue, said he swerved aside as the child darted into the roadway, but could not stop before his right fender had hit her. She was taken to Barnes Hospital in a passing automobile and pronounced dead of skull fracture.

Powers was arrested pending an inquest Monday.

Fred Gallant, 80 years old, of 1229A Blackstone avenue, was run down and seriously injured last night in front of 5077 Page boulevard by the automobile of David Mitchell, 39, of 5883 Cote Brilliante avenue. He suffered lacerations of the scalp and possible fracture of the skull. Mitchell was arrested and released on bond pending the outcome of Gallant's injuries.

PERSHING AT MAINE MEMORIAL

Will Take Part in Unveiling of Cuban Monument Today.

By the Associated Press.

HAVANA, March 7.—After a brief visit to President Zayas today, Gen. John J. Pershing, who has been ill for several days, returned to his hotel and rested during the afternoon.

He will assist in the ceremonies at the unveiling of the Maine memorial monument tomorrow morning. Gen. Pershing and Adm. John H. Dayton are expected to speak after the Spanish minister to Cuba lays a wreath on the monument. President Zayas will deliver the opening address. Tentative plans call for a reception tomorrow evening at the presidential palace in honor of Gen. Pershing, and on Monday evening a banquet by the Secretaries of War and State.

MELLON CUT $10,000,000 TAX CLAIM TO $2,600,000

Action by Treasury Secretary Despite Report of U. S. Investigators Fraud Was Perpetrated.

SHIP LINE EMPLOYED ROOT'S LAW FIRM

Compromise on Ground Payment Would Bankrupt Atlantic, Gulf & West Indies Ship Co.

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
20-23 Wyatt Bldg.

WASHINGTON, March 7.—Secretary of the Treasury Mellon personally allowed the Atlantic Gulf & West Indies Steamship Co. to compromise for $2,600,000 a Government tax claim of nearly $10,000,000 although revenue agents who investigated had reported "that in their experience covering a number of years assigned to fraud investigations they had not found evidence to show more conclusively the brazen attempt to defraud the Government" as involved in this shipping company's acts.

Details of the compromise, highly sensational throughout, were disclosed today in further testimony taken by the special Senate Committee headed by Senator Couzens (R.) Michigan, and filed as a public document with the Secretary of the Senate.

"I think this is the most astounding case that I can possibly conceive of," Senator Couzens states in the record, "that after all the attempts at fraud, in the final settlement they got the advanage of heir attempts at fraud and that no criminal prosecution has been made."

Plea of Elihu Root's Firm.

Solicitor Hartson of the Internal Revenue Bureau of the Treasury admitted to the committee that the compromise was made on representations of Elihu Root's law firm, Root, Clark, Buckner & Howland, to the effect that this was the biggest American-owned shipping company, that to collect the full tax would plunge the company into bankruptcy and that for the sake of American shipping the Treasury should be lenient.

Asked what right the Treasury had to waive taxes to avoid receiverships, even if imminent, Hartson admitted, "I don't think you will find anything in the statutes. It is a question of administrative policy."

The Atlantic Gulf & West Indies case—known as the "AGWI"—attracted Senate notice a year ago when Senator McKellar (Dem.), Tennessee, asked Secretary Mellon to explain refunds of $3,328,000 to this concern, and charged that Secretary Mellon was heavily interested financially. Mellon replied at that time that the tax settlements had been made after the "department made a thorough investigation into the financial condition of the tax payer" and had concluded that unless the AGWI was let off it would be plunged into a receivership.

No Denial From Mellon.

Mellon, at the time, did not deny his stock interest in the AGWI, but subsequently Senator Reed (Rep.), Pennsylvania, defending Mellon, denied the Secretary had ever been financially connected with the concern.

As to Secretary Mellon's letter stating the Treasury had made a "thorough investigation" and found the "taxpayer was insolvent," L. C. Manson, special investigating counsel for the Couzens committee, charged that this was absolutely false, and the Treasury had neither investigated the true financial condition, nor was the company in a "perilous condition" financially as Mellon has said.

Manson produced evidence and records of Treasury agents revealing a transaction in connection with the Mexican Navigation Co., a subsidiary of AGWI, whereby nearly $4,000,000 of taxable income was concealed, according to revenue agents who had investigated.

Of the Mexican Navigation Co. deal, Manson declared that "It was obviously concocted with the purpose of evading tax. The completing of the scheme took almost two years after many discussions at the Board of Directors' meetings, where some of the directors hesitated in being connected with the scheme, and expressed fear of committing crime against the Government and suffering penalty."

Manson testified as to the Mexi-

BUSINESS MEN GIVE ESTIMATES OF FRANK A. RUF

Three Former Associates Testify That He Drank Liquor, but Very Seldom Became Intoxicated.

DEFENSE WITNESSES IN SUIT OVER HIS WILL

Each Declares Late Head of Remedy Company Had Plenty of Common Sense and Was Business Genius

Frank A. Ruf, as three business associates knew him, was revealed yesterday as a man who drank liquors, but became intoxicated only once or twice, who loved his wife and was a benefactor of his nephews and nieces; who had few friends and was critical of them, and who had plenty of common sense and was a business genius.

The revelations came as testimony in the trial of the suit of Ruf's niece, Mrs. Willard B. Shelp Jr., to establish her claim, as an adopted daughter, to a half share of Ruf's $2,500,000 estate. The witnesses are directors of the Mercantile Trust Co., which, as trustee of Ruf's will, is a defendant in the present suit. Ruf, who was president of the Antikamnia Remedy Co. and a director of the Mercantile, died in 1923.

John F. Queeny, chairman of the board of the Monsanto Chemical Works, had known Ruf since 1890. As fellow directors of the Mercantile they met at stated periods. Besides, they lunched together several times a week and their families exchanged social visits.

Testimony of Queeny.

Only once had Queeny seen Ruf intoxicated. "I can't recall the date, but it was some time before we met Mr. Volstead," he said.

"In those days, you were not adverse to taking a few thin ones, yourself?" suggested W. Frank Carter, one of the defense attorneys. "Of course I would when I met a good fellow like you," Queeny rejoined amiably.

He testified further that he had never heard of Ruf taking narcotics, as had been charged. To demonstrate his faith in his own product, Ruf was in the habit of carrying with him a box of Antikamnia headache tablets and would help himself to one and pass the box around.

As for Ruf's health, Queeny said he suffered with the gout, but it did not affect the "phenomenal growth" of his business, the success of which Queeny atributed to Ruf's "business genius" and the "medical connections" established by his partner, Dr. John W. Cox.

Atmosphere of Ruf's Home.

The atmosphere of the Ruf home at 5863 Cabanne avenue, as sensed by Queeny, did not "reflect profane, degraded or drunken man," he continued. Ruf manifested great love for his wife and affection for his niece, Alpha Ruf Hatch, now Mrs. Shelp, Queeny said, adding that he never heard of Alpha except as a niece until she began her suit.

On cross-examination, Queeny admitted Ruf had few friends and was "very critical" of them. Ruf's affections, he said, were concentrated on Mrs. Ruf and Alpha, the latter being "incidental" to Mrs. Ruf.

Festus J. Wade, president of the Mercantile, had known Ruf for 30 years, in a business and social way. He had been introduced to Alpha as a niece, not as a foster-daughter. He had never seen Ruf intoxicated, he said, except one time in 1915. On that occasion, Wade arranged for a private car to take Ruf to a sanitarium at Battle Creek, Mich., Wade, Mrs. Ruf and a nurse accompanying.

Wade Visited the Ruf Home.

Wade told of Ruf's avocation as a collector of paintings and other objects of arts. At Ruf's invitation, he had inspected the paintings and found them "a lot of very handsome pictures." Ruf in his home was surrounded by every luxury, Wade said.

George D. Markham, head of an insurance agency, had known Ruf since 1900, meeting as fellow directors of the Mercantile and also, later, as fellow directors of the Symphony Society. In 1918, Markham recalled, Ruf was solicited for a subscription toward support of the Symphony Orchestra and responded with $1000 in such a "decent" manner that he was elected a director of the society at the next meeting.

With two possible exceptions, Markham had not noticed evidence of Ruf's drinking during their association. The exceptions came at Mercantile directors' meetings in 1920 and 1922. At the latter Ruf seemed a "little less alert" than usual and Markham was "curious to know the reason."

Markham was "a very good friend" of Ruf. Never, in all their conversations, he said, did Ruf mention Alpha.

Edward Ruf, a nephew of Ruf, testified that his period of residence at the Ruf home dated farther back than the plaintiff's, and that she was not regarded other than as a niece.

The witness said he began his residence at the Ruf home in 1908 and continued it, with time out for military service and school, until 1922, when he married. He is now a salesman of decoration supplies, and resides at 4683 De Tonty street. He and two brothers were left $5000 each by Ruf's will, which ignored Mrs. Shelp.

He asserted he, too, was affectionately treated by Ruf and was not slighted for Alpha.

Regarding Mrs. Shelp's status in the Ruf home prior to her marriage in 1920, the witness said she was a niece and nothing more.

Other witnesses yesterday were Mrs. John F. Queeny and Miss Olquita Queeny and Miss Emily Isaacs. Mr. and Mrs. Queeny and their daughter accompanied Mr. and Mrs. Ruf and their niece on a trip to California in 1917. Mrs. Queeny testified that she had not seen Ruf take a drink on the trip, although her husband did, and that the plaintiff was introduced as "Miss Alpha Hatch."

Miss Queeny, an intimate friend of Mrs. Shelp since childhood, testified they had not discussed the latter's status, but Miss Queeny regarded the Cabanne avenue residence as "Alpha's home."

Miss Isaacs, who attended school with Alpha in 1912, said Alpha talked of Mr. and Mrs. Ruf as her uncle and aunt and not as her foster-parents.

A deposition by Arthur W. Pierce, head master of Deane Academy, Franklin, Mass., which the plaintiff attended in 1914-15, also was introduced. He testified that her mother, Mrs. Albert H. Adams, paid her tuition, that Ruf paid for her clothing and other expenses and that she was dressed better than the other girl students.

The day closed with the defense reading 20 letters written by the plaintiff, while residing with the Rufs, to her mother at Buffalo. An adjournment was then taken to Tuesday. It is not expected that the case will end before Thursday, as the defense intends to present other witnesses, including Mrs. Ruf, and the plaintiff will present testimony in rebuttal.

Ruf's will, after making specific bequests to certain relatives and employes, placed the residue of his estate in trust for his widow, with charities to get it at her death.

Can a Plumber Judge Beagles? Court Must Decide

George W. Wollmershauser and Directors Split Over Naming of Official to Pass on Hounds in Show.

The St. Louis Beagle Club is split asunder on the eve of the big event of the year—its specialty show in conjunction with the Mississippi Valley Club dog show at the Coliseum, April 3, 4 and 5.

Shall George W. Wollmershauser, an expert plumber, act as judge of the beagles?

President Albert C. Davis, an attorney, thinks he will be all right. So does Norbert Zeiss, an influential member, and so do his two sons. So also does George W. Wollmershauser.

On the other hand the entire board of directors and Secretary Roy P. Burleigh are determined their fellow member shall not judge the beagles. They have engaged Edward F. Bender of Wheaton, Ill., to be judge.

Enraged at the action of the board of directors, Wollmershauser has filed a petition in Circuit Court for an order restraining Burleigh and his associates from spending any of the club's funds to bring in an out-of-town judge. He has also charged that the directors took action deposing him as judge and naming Bender at a meeting illegally called.

"Let Plumber Stick to His Pipes."

Secretary Burleigh said yesterday:

"George Wollmershauser shall not judge the beagles. We grant his honesty, but we question his competency. There are any number of Beagle Club members here who know more about beagles than George Wollmershauser. He is a plumber. Let the plumber stick to his pipes."

"This whole dispute arose at a meeting Feb. 11. Wollmershauser is ambitious. He wants to be judge at a big beagle show, and he would wreck the club rather than miss parading around the ring.

"At the meeting, the elder Mr. Zeiss got up and told us that it was time to appoint a local man judge. He said that all the other citis that hold beagle shows appoint local men as judges. The local men, he said, invariably picked local dogs as champions. So, he argued, why can't St. Louis have a champion beagle? He left the impression with us that if George Wollmershauser were made judge, St. Louis would have a champion in the coming show.

"Well, a lot of us didn't care a hang about having champions. We don't raise beagles for sale. What we did care about was getting a judge who really knows beagles. This show will be the biggest beagle show ever held in the United States. We didn't want George Wollmershauser to represent us. He has never judged beagles in a big show. I've raised beagles for 30 years and I'd never presume to act as a judge of them."

No Small Task.

The matter of judging a beagle, both sides agree, is not to be entered into lightly. A beagle is a small brown and white, or black and white, spotted or patched, long-eared, bench-legged hound dog. He is used mostly for chasing rabbits, but in the woods of Missouri has been put to treeing possums and coons. No real beagle lover, of course, would think of asking his dog to chase a possum or a coon, yet beagles often do on their own hook.

Fine points of a beagle are multitudinous. "The skull," says the Beagle Standard, "should be fairly long, slightly domed at occiput, with cranium broad and full." The ears should reach almost to the end of his nose, and hang limp. The eyes should be of hazel brown color and must have a gentle, pleading expression. Sometimes, while gnawing a rabbit, the beagle loses this expression, but never in the show ring. The voice—but who has not heard a hound dog? The tail—but that is a question for beagle judges. It is sufficient to repeat that judging beagles is to be entered into only after much soul-searching and that many a judge has faltered, left the ring and said: "I am not worthy."

The Mississippi Valley Kennel Club is bringing here Col. Lester Jones of Washington, D. C., to judge its classes of beagles. He is a national authority. The St. Louis Beagle Club considers—that is, one-half of the club does—that it would be unworthy if a local man were appointed to judge its events, while Col. Jones judged the other events.

Circuit Judge Franklin Miller on Thursday will hear the arguments.

EFFORT TO EXTRADITE BORGLUM DROPPED

Stone Mountain Sculptor Now to Demand That the Indictments Be Dismissed.

By the Associated Press.

WINSTON SALEM, N. C., March 7.—A telegram from Gutzon Borglum to R. M. Hanes, president of the local Chamber of Commerce, tonight, indicated the sculptor would be willing to participate in a conference here with representatives of the Stone Mountain Confederate Monumental Association in an effort to reach complete reconciliation with that body. The expression came as a reply to a telegram to the sculptor by Hollins N. Randolph, Atlanta, president of the association, urging a conference in a neutral city, in an "effort to clear up the situation."

By the Associated Press.

GREENSBORO, N. C., March 7.—With the withdrawal of requisition papers for him a matter of history, Gutzon Borglum, former Stone Mountain Confederate memorial sculptor, now plans to remain here to wage a fight to have all indictments pending against him in Georgia nolle prossed.

want to serve all the people and that I am going through with my original plan for a clean campaign."

Grimm Defends Koeln.

Grimm took up the defense of Koeln immediately, although he did not mention his name. Several times he turned and shook his finger at Miller.

"I will not indulge in personalities, but I must say something for a man who has been reviled here today," he said. "The people have such confidence in him that no unworthy criticism will be tolerated. This man has always had good government at heart and has supported candidates of ideals with public service as their impelling motive.

"He supported Judge Henry S. Lamm for Governor in 1916 and he was nominated, even though the City Committee opposed him. Four years ago, when the committee favored E. E. E. McJimsey for the gubernatorial nomination, this same man supported Arthur M. Hyde."

Hisses, apparently from supporters of Miller, interrupted. Gov. Hyde deposed Miller as president of the Police Board and later dismissed him from the board.

Dieckman Raps "Machine."

Dieckman attacked "political machines" and said he was a "machineless candidate."

Mayor Kiel, who made the first address of the meeting, said that the Mayor's office was a "good job," but that the successful aspirant would know more four years from now than he does at present.

ALLIES TO PASS ON EUROPEAN SECURITY PACT

Chamberlain and Herriot, After Paris Conference, Issue Communique Telling of Hope for Accord.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Mrach 7.—Austen Chamberlain, British Foreign Secretary, and Premier Herriot in their talks last night and today reached the decesion to settle the security question "in accord with the allies."

This was the most important result of the British stateman's visit here, according to an official communique issued after this afternoon's conversation. This was more than was expected in French circles after Chemberlain's speech in the House of Commons indicating how much he favored the German security plan. The coolness of the British toward the Danzig corridor, which was accorded Poland on the late President Wilson's insistance that that country be given an access to the sea was remembered in connection with the Commons debate and the conclusion was drawn that England was inclined to induce Poland to relinquish this corridor in order to obtain a general security pact.

The official communique was interpreted in French circles as setting all doubts on the Danzig question at rest and indicating plainly that the security pact must receive the full agreement of all the allies, including Poland.

Germany's admission to the league was the principal detail of the security problem discussed by Mr. Chamberlain and M. Herriot. This was believed to indicate that the allies will look more to the League of Nations for the application of whatever security measures are finally adopted.

Mr. Chamberlain told M. Herriot, it is learned through French sources, that a five-Power guarantee pact, comprising Great Britain, France, Italy, Belgium and Germany, seemed to him to be feasible and would be an acceptable solution. He repeated his House of Commons statement that ratification of the Geneva protocol would be impossible because of the attitude of the dominions.

This pact, Mr. Chamberlain is reported as saying, would be registered at the League of Nations and would eventually include Poland and Czecho-Slovakia. He considered this idea satisfactory as a basis for negotiations.

M. Herriot suggested that such a five-Power guarantee would be better received by France if preceded by an alliance between Great Britain, France and Belgium.

Poland, Opposing Pact, Adopts Defensive Measures.

(Copyright, 1925.)

BERLIN, March 7.—Poland does not want security pacts, and dispatches tonight from Warsaw portray frenzied military agitation there.

At a session of the military commission, Deputy Sadzeicz presented the draft of a bill which would enable the war ministry to bring about general mobilization immediately. In the Diet a bill was passed giving the president extraordinary powers, as in time of war, for measures of defense.

LARGE ATTENDANCE AT IZAAK WALTON LEAGUE MEETING

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

EXCELSIOR SPRINGS, Mo., March 7.—Several hundred persons interested in outdoor life and field sports met with the local chapter of the Izaak Walton League last night and indorsed the newly organized chapter's efforts to end violations of the fish and game conservation laws.

The four Deputy Game Wardens asked for by the local chapters of the league have received their commissions as officers. The new wardens are: B. J. Clevenger, J. L. Allen, K. T. Bryant and G. W. Lord.

A committee was appointed to go to Jefferson City March 12 and 13 to represent the chapter at the State convention of Izaak Walton chapters. The Excelsior Springs chapter is the one-hundred and seventh chapter of the league to be organized in Missouri and the indications are that a conservation bill will be put through the Legislature before the session adjourns.

ROCKEFELLER JR. GIVES NEGRO SCHOOLS $1,000,000

Interest of Donor in Hampton and Tuskegee Schools Dates Back to Boyhood Visit to Institution.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 7.—John D. Rockefeller Jr. has given $1,000,000 to the Hampton and Tuskegee Institutes for negroes, it was announced by Dr. Anson Phelps Stokes, chairman of the special gifts committee of the Hampton-Tuskegee endowment fund.

Rockefeller's donation was made unconditionally and brings to the endowment fund now being raised to $3,500,000.

In a letter accompanying his gift, Rockefeller said: "Inasmuch as I have been profoundly interested in these schools ever since my father took me as a small boy to visit Hampton, when Gen. Armstrong was its head; because they provide an education which fits boys and girls to be useful citizens, whether they go forward to higher and professional education or go directly into agriculture, industry or business; because they stress the development of character along with the development of mind and body and because of my lifelong interest in the colored race, I shall count it a privilege to participate in the campaign to the extent of $1,000,000. As I understood it, this leaves you still $1,500,000 short of your goal."

Dr. Stokes characterized Rockefeller's gift as marking "the union of all those forces whose co-operation must be secured if the negro is to be given an adequate opportunity in our country and if we are to have increasingly interracial peace and good will."

MELLON CUT $10,000,000 TAX CLAIM TO $2,000,000

can Navigation Co. deal that "A. R. Nicol, Albert Gilbert Smith and Gonzalo Abuana, the first two of whom were president and director, respectively, of the AGWI, declared a dividend of $1000 a share on the 4500 shares of the capital stock of the Mexican Navigation Co."

"This was a liquidating dividend," said Manson. "On May 24, 1919, the AGWI and its subsidiary, the New York & Cuban Steamship (Ward) Line, owned 3409 shares of the Mexican Navigation Co. stock, costing $1,886,863. Had these two companies surrendered their stock they would have received the sum of $3,941,233, resulting in a profit of $2,054,359, which should have been reported as income.

"The records show that the AGWI received the $3,941,233 in March, 1920. However, in order to secrete the profit and avoid the payment of income tax thereon it issued to the Mexican Nagigation Co. three noninterest bearing demand notes in the amounts of $3,941,233, that is the exact amount of the liquidating dividend. They were just straight promissory notes but the point is that the liquidators of the dissolved corporation had no authority to loan this money."

Three months later Manson said President Nicol of AGWI, Alfred G. Smith, president of the New York and Cuba Mail Steamship Co., and Robert E. McBain, treasurer of AGWI, organized the Cuban American Terminal Co., transferred the assets of the Mexican Navigation Co. to it, and reissued stock to the AGWI in the same amount of the former interest in the Mexican Nevigation Co.

"The situation was then this," explained Manson. "The taxpayer and its subsidiaries owned the stock of this dissolved corporation and had their liquidating dividend and had given back a note. Then this new company is organized and the assets of the old company are transferred to the new company in exchange for this stock.

The Income Statement.

"The income statement of the AGWI, dated Dec. 31, 1923, indicates the receipt of dividends from the Cuban American Terminal Co. of $3,941,223, which is the exact amount under the heading of exempt income-nontaxable-on the AGWI tax return—and this is the amount of the liquidating dividend for the Mexican Navigation Co.'s stock formerly owned by the AGWI."

In this way, Manson brought out, AGWI, instead of showing nearly $4,000,000 in taxable income, showed receipts in nontaxable income.

As to Secretary Mellon's statement that the AGWI's financial condition was "perilous," Manson asserted that it had paid interest on its bonds, its stock had a substantial value, and from a survey made by Revenue Agents Fred T. MacDonald and Sydney L. Burg on July 20, 1923, it was shown that the company had current assets of $9,909,427, virtually enough to pay its taxes.

GROCER WOUNDED RESISTING ROBBERS

Louis Everding, 52, Shot in Left Arm — Three Other South Side Stores Held Up.

Four South Side grocers were held up between 8:20 and 10 p. m. yesterday, in each instance by three men with revolvers. At three places cash was taken, aggregating $468, and in the fourth, the grocer, Louis Everding, 52, of 4350 Chouteau avenue, resisted and was shot in the arm.

Police are seeking the robbers with the theory that the same three men may have perpetrated all of the crimes.

Everding was shot while his wife, his daughter and four other persons looked on. He had closed his store, when at 9:15 p. m., he unlocked the door to let his daughter, Irma, 18, and a girl friend pass out, when the three men pushed in. The command "stick 'em up" was obeyed by Mrs. Everding, John Keller, a butcher, and the latter's wife and young son, but the grocer darted behind a counter in search of a weapon.

One shot was fired which pierced the fleshy part of Everding's left arm, and the robbers fled. Miss Everding, who had waited in the doorway, was pushed aside when she seized one man by the arm.

Everding said he had $300 cash on his person. His wound is not considered serious.

The first of the evening's robberies occurred at the grocery of John Wieder, 5049 Devonshire avenue, where three men took $328 cash and escaped in an automobile. Wieder and his wife were in the store. At 8:30 p. m. the grocery of Joseph Potthoff, 4557 Eichelberger avenue, was robbed. Three men took $18 from Potthoff and $22 from a customer, escaping in an auto. At 10 p. m., three men held up Edward J. Schrendler, grocer, at 1958 Wyoming street, as he counted his day's receipts, and escaped with $100 cash.

By RICHARD L. STOKES.

AT THe age of 26, Arrigo Boito produced, without success, at La Scala in Milan, an opera with both words and music by himself, which was entitled "Mefistofele," and which was modeled after Goethe's "Faust." Just nine years earlier Gounod had presented his version of the same work, with a libretto by Barbier and Carre, at the Theare Lyrique in Paris.

Boito's famous opera was presented for the first time in St. Louis yesterday afternoon at the Shubert-Jefferson Theater, by the Chicago Civic Opera Co. The production was featured by several other "first times." Miss Edith Mason, the most distinguished singer St. Louis has ever produced, made her very first appearance in her native city, in the role of Marguerite. Feodor Chaliapin, familiar here as a recitalist, made his operatic debut in the title part. It was also the first stage appearance in St. Louis of Charles Hackett, though he has sung here with the Symphony Orchestra.

Upon an audience that was virtually capacity, "Mefistofele" made the most stunning impression of any operatic novelty offered here in years. The question was freely asked as to why Gounod accepted a libretto which so profaned Goethe's masterpiece as the Barbier-Carre version, and why Boito's work had not driven Gounod's off the boards.

A Cerebral Score.

The reply is that Gounod was a melodist, while Boito put into practice Wagner's theory—which Wagner himself rarely obeyed—that in opera music must be subordinate to drama. Boito was fundamentally a man of letters, though he had a thorough training as a musician. His score, with the exception of a few scenes, is music written by a man far more interested in words than in tones. It is intellectual music, concerned with conveying thought and disdainful of the facile triumph of melody. Yesterday it achieved no less than a sensation—a fact complimentary to creator and audience alike.

Gounod's "Faust" concerns itself merely with the melodrama of the hero's addiction to Gretchen, and the deaths of her mother, brother and child. To Goethe this episode was simply an incident in the growth of a man's soul, merely one of the primitive forms of seduction practiced by Mephistopheles. There were many other attempts, including a resurrection of Helen of Troy; and the central fact was that Faust was not to be damned for a deed as trivial as the betrayal of a peasant girl. His spirit was to be delivered to the Tempter only in case he should encounter a moment of earthly experience so delectable that he would exclaim: "Delay, thou are so fair!"

There is no need to carry Faust through the multifarious adventures contrived by Goethe. It may suffice to say that the poet, actuated no doubt unreasonably by the philanthropic propaganda of the nineteenth century, would not permit Faust to make the fatal exclamation until, as an old man, he saw about him the homes of thousands of human beings, made contented and able to exist through some drainage project or other of his. Then he cried to the moment, "Delay, thou are so fair!" Whereupon the baffled fiend slunk away, acknowledging bitterly that man, in his obscure stress, is conscious of the right way.

Goethe's idea of happiness seems to the writer totally perverse, but it is this spacious view which Boito has attempted to comprehend in the few operatic acts which an audience finds itself able to endure. He presents Goethe's prologue in heaven, which Gounod did not dare approach, with Mephistopheles merrily wagering with the Deity that he can win the soul of Faust.

He presents also, as Gounod's librettists did, the festival of Easter in Frankfort, the studio scene in which Faust bargains for the destiny of his soul, the garden episode with Mephistopheles and Martha singing a cynical obligato to the fresh and spontaneous amours of Faust and Mephistopheles, the witches' Sabbath on the Brocken, and the prison episode in which Marguerite dies.

Uses Second Part of "Faust."

Then he leaps into the second part of "Faust," in which the marriage of Helen of Troy and the hero typifies the union of classic and romantic poetry, which for Goethe was embodied in Lord Byron. The epilogue follows Goethe's plan for the Tempter's discomfiture.

In such a scheme Mephistopheles is no medieval Satan, but merely that aspect of human intelligence which denies. Mr. Chaliapin properly acted the role as a symbol, and not as the Christian devil. The chief character is Faust, to whom the Tempter is merely another phase of his ego. So the Russian basso whistled with ribaldry on his fingers, failed to take Marguerite's death with too much seriousness, was not absolutely broken up when Faust escaped his clutches, and behaved, under the circumstances, with commendable humor.

It would require another column to tell in detail the finesse with which Chaliapin acted the role. The sheer fact is that he has the technique of the Moscow Art Theater at the tips of his fingers, especially as to posture and facial expression. Few more eloquent exploits have been seen here than his appearance in the first scene of Act 1 as a gray frier, in which he did not utter a syllable, and yet dominated the stage as if he had been the only one present.

As for the rest, it was a pronounced improvement over Friday night's "La Gioconda." Miss Mason, Mr. Hackett and Miss Lenska were worthy of their respective roles, which is an extreme compliment. Mr. Moranzoni's direction combined flame, precision and authority.

FINE CHORAL SINGING IN "TANNHAEUSER"

THE CAST

Herman, Landgraf of Thuringia	Alexander Kipnis.
Elizabeth	Olga Forrai
Tannhaeuser	Forrest Lamont
Wolfram von Eschenbach	Joseph Schwarz.
Walther von der Vogelweide	Romeo Boscacci
Biterolf	William Beck
Heinrich der Schreiber	Jose Mojica
Reinmar	Antonio Nicolich
Venus	Augusta Lenska
A Young Shepherd	Elizabeth Kerr.

A THIRD cast of the Chicago Civic Opera Co. began its farewell performance with Richard Wagner's "Tannhaeuser" at 8:15 o'clock last evening. They were still playing it when the writer dropped in at the Shubert-Jefferson for the last time, at half past 11.

This work, a combination of stupendous music and a libretto verging on imbecility and eternity, attracted an audience larger than that which attended "La Gioconda" and smaller than the one which witnessed "Mefistofele." No statement was forthcoming as to the financial result of the three performances. As it was calculated from the first that sold-out houses at every performance would not pay expenses, it was evident that a deficit would have to be met by the guarantors.

The production of "Tannhaeuser" brought forward magnificent choral singing, excellent playing in the orchestra, artistic settings and a cast in which first honors were easily snatched by Joseph Schwarz in the minor role of Wolfram von Eschenbach. The Russian basso not only outsang the others, but proved that he was the only one with the first idea of acting. He did not turn his back to the audience, nor did he address his vocalizations to the conductor instead of the person to whom the text directed them. He freely used gesture and facial motion. His "Evening Star" song was the individual triumph of the performance.

Bacchanale Is Tame.

The bacchanale in the Venusberg was so excessively decorous that it might have been fancied that Tannhaeuser fled in boredom of its tepidity, instead of revulsion against its revels. This scene some day should be staged by Florenz Ziegfeld.

Acceptable performances were given by Forrest Lamont, Olga Forrai, Alexander Kipnis, Romeo Boscacci and others. The opera, by the way, was sung in the German. Nothing happened to alter the conviction that the most brilliant performance of the brief season was that of "Mefistofele," that Feodor Chaliapin is head and shoulders above all the others as an actor, that the most beautiful male voice heard was that of Charles Hackett, and that the best female voices were those of Edith Mason, Rosa Raisa and Augusta Lenska.

EXPERIMENT ON A BAD BOY

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, March 7.—An experiment to ascertain whether a bad boy can be managed without being beaten was authorized today by Judge Daniel Morgan in the Court of Domestic Relations.

"I'd like to see the person who could handle my son Jack without beating him," J. A. Nelson, arraigned on a charge of contributing to the delinquency of a minor, told the Judge. "All right, look at me," said Assistant State's Attorney Male Andersen. "If the Court will permit me I will take Jackie for two weeks and prove that a child, even an unruly one, can be handled without beating."

The Court consented to Miss Andersen's proposal to play mother to the 7-year-old boy until March 21.

FOUR UNSOLVED HOMICIDES HERE DURING FEBRUARY

Cases Include Man Shot, Woman Strangled, Two Persons Killed by Autos, Drivers of Which Fled.

The month of February leaves behind it in police records a list of four unsolved homicides—a man shot to death on a downtown street, a woman strangled in an alley, and two persons run down by motorists who feloniously fled from the scenes of accident.

In each case, the police have exhausted what slender clews they had, and, unless chance brings unexpected evidence, the slayers will remain unapprehended. The January list of unsolved crimes also included four homicides, two of which were auto fatalities at the hands of drivers who fled.

Case of Woman Killed by Auto.

Two of the killings occurred on Feb. 1. On the evening of that day Mrs. Mae Van Dyke, 63 years old, of 5396 Wells avenue, was crossing Arlington avenue at Easton avenue, to visit friends. An automobile, southbound, knocked her down, and the driver, leaning from his car as he continued on, shouted:

"Why the hell don't you get out of the way?"

Mrs. Van Dyke died four days later. Witnesses said the machine was either a Ford or a Chevrolet; they had noted no license number. Policemen canvassed garages for a damaged machine, but found none that might have figured in such an accident.

On the morning of Feb. 1, the body of Mrs. Mary Valleroy, a mulatto, 47, of 1311 Franklin avenue, was found in the alley behind her home. She had been strangled to death, the marks indicated by a man. Negroes living near by said they heard the voices of a man and woman quarreling in the alley at 1 a. m. The woman cried, "I ain't got no money; I ain't got no money!" there was a scuffle, and silence. The police got no farther in their investigation.

Huckster's Slaying Another Case.

Arthur R. Keech, 30, a huckster, whose home address was never established, was lying dead, face down, in the street before the St. Louis Hotel (formerly the Alamac), at Fourteenth and Chestnut streets, when a police sergeant passed at 4 a. m., Feb. 20. A bullet had passed through his body, causing instant death. The police located Ben Robinson of 1108A South Fourth street, who threw a little light on the killing. Robinson said he was held up by five or six men as he stepped from the Fourteenth street entrance of the hotel. He fought back, he said, and fled to Fifteenth street when a shot was fired. Another man said he heard a shot and looked from a window across the street to see a curtained automobile speeding from the front of the St. Louis Hotel.

The last of the unsolved homicides in February was that of Bert Todd, a negro, 46, of 2213 Olive street, killed by an automobile as he crossed at Twenty-third and Morgan streets, the night of Feb. 24. A companion said the machine, a Ford touring car, occupied by several white men, continued rapidly west.

Reclamation Chief to Retain Post.

WASHINGTON, March 7.—Ellwood Mead, Commissioner of Reclamation, will retain his post another year. His decision became known today when he applied to the University of California for a second year's leave of absence as professor of rural institutions. Several telegrams were received by Mead from Western reclamation projects urging him to remain.

REED IS NAMED ON NEW FOREIGN RELATIONS BODY

Senator's Long-Standing Ambition of Assignment Fulfilled—Spencer on Five Committees.

By CHARLES G. ROSS, Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, March 7.—Senator Reed of Missouri will realize in the new Congress his long-standing ambition to become a member of the Foreign Relations Committee of the Senate. A place on this important boly, which has much to do with determining the foreign policy of the United States, was sought by Reed at the beginning of the last Congress, but much to his chagrin, was denied him.

In the assignment list submitted to the Senate today by the Democratic Committee on Committees, Reed is proposed for membership on four committees—Foreign Relations, Judiciary, Manufactures and Public Buildings. The only change in his present assignments is the substitution of Foreign Relations for Finance.

Senator Spencer in the Republican list, is given places on five committees—Privileges and Elections, Appropriations, Judiciary, Public Lands and Rules. As in the last Congress, he will be chairman of the first-named committee. He ceases to be a member of the Claims Committee in order to take a place on Rules.

The assignments are subject to approval by the Senate, which is expected to be given Monday.

G. O. P. Harmony Under New Administration Shattered.

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
20-23 Wyatt Bldg.

WASHINGTON, March 7.—Republican party harmony under the new regime was shattered today when an attempt was made to confirm the ousting of the insurgents decreed by the Committee on Committees. An effort to bring about approval of the committee assignments by unanimous consent was prevented by formal objection by Senator Norris (Rep.), of Nebraska, while Senator Borah (Rep.), of Idaho, assailed the action of the committee as a political mistake. Senator Curtis, Republican leader, and his assistant, Senator Watson of Indiana, were compelled to yield and the issue went over until Monday.

Enough happened, however, to make it plain that Borah and Norris propose to become insurgents themselves on the question of disciplining the La Follette insurgents, and that the committee assignments will occasion a complete airing of party differences.

Watson on Defensive.

Borah led the fight today when Watson moved to confirm the committee assignments en bloc. Watson was immediately on the defensive, while the Idaho Senator charged into the regular leadership without regard to the principle of party discipline which it is proposed to establish. Norris followed suit in vigorous manner, announcing he did not care what is done to himself, but he proposes to keep his own hands clean.

Borah wanted to know what had been done in the case of Senators Ladd and Frazier of North Dakota, and Brookhart of Iowa. He displayed no interest in what had happened to Senator La Follette. In answer to a question by Borah why, if these men are not Republicans, the Republicans had undertaken to assign them their places.

Attitude of Borah.

Watson replied this had been done because last year Shipstead and Johnson, the Farmer-Labor Senators, had asked to be assigned by the Republicans and that Ladd, Frazier and Brookhart had written letters whose tenor indicated the same desire. He read Brookhart's letter which was non-committal anl did not seem to indicate anything except that Brookhart was keeping the record open.

Borah said he did not think the Republicans in the flush of a great victory, should take action which would engender ill feeling in the future. Brookhart raised a laugh by insisting he is a better Republican today than Watson. The whole matter will be threshed out in the open Monday, with some unpleasant moments for the Republican Senate leadership in prospect.

NEW YORK ADOPTS NEW TEST

Health Department to Use Horse Serum for Scarlet Fever.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 7.—Adoption by the City Health Department of the Dick method of treating scarlet fever, in which use is made of serum obtained from horses injected with scarlatinal toxin, was announced today by Health Commissioner Frank J. Monaghan. The new test, discovered by Dr. George Dick and his wife, Dr. Gladys Dick of Chicago, is similar to the Schick test used in determining susceptibility to diphtheria.

The treatment, toxin for whcih now is being made at the Health Department laboratories, recently was put to use after experiments starting last December.

150 FISHERMEN LOSE LIVES IN ICE FLOW

Russians, Together With 60 Horses, Are Either Drowned or Frozen in Sea of Azov.

By the Associated Press.

EKATERINOSLAV, Russia, March 7.—Caught in an ice floe in the Sea of Azov, 150 fishermen and 60 horses were drowned or frozen to death, it was learned here today. The fishermen had gone out for their daily haul with horses and wagons. When in the middle of the sea the ice broke and they were carried away before assistance could arrive.

The woman lives alone and she was badly injured before a neighbor heard her cries and extinguished the flames by wrapping her in rugs.

BURNING OF PRIEST ALIVE IS REPORTED

Murderers of Catholic Clergyman Said to Have Been Agents of Polish Police.

By the Associated Press.

KIEV, Ukraine, March 7.—Father Andrae Fedoukovitch, a Polish Catholic priest, has been burned alive in the town of Jitomir near here. The authorities allege that his assailants were agents of the Polish secret police.

The murderers poured kerosene over the priest's body and then ignited it, say the advices from Jitomir, the unfortunate man writhing in agony while his assassins looked on unmoved.

Father Fedoukovitch was the author of a widely known letter to the Pope in which he protested to the Vatican against the participation of Polish clergymen in the antisoviet campaign. His friends declare he was killed by his enemies for divulging to the authorities the activities of Polish spies in the Ukraine.

SIMONS IS CHOSEN TO SUCCEED EBERT BY REICH LEADERS

Majority Parties Agree to Frame Bill Naming Former Foreign Minister Acting President.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, March 7.—The majority parties in the Reichstag have agreed to frame a measure appointing Dr. Walter Simons President ad interim of the German republic. Dr. Simons is a former Foreign Minister and now is president of the Supreme Court at Leipzig.

It is understood that the decision to make Simons the temporary President until a successor to Ebert is elected was primarily with the idea of leaving Dr. Hans Luther free to carry on his work as Chancellor unhampered by the duties of the presidential office.

Dr. Simons was Minister of Foreign Affairs in the Fehrenbach Cabinet and was the leader in the German reparations negotiations with the allies. While Chancellor Fehrenbach was a centerist, Dr. Simons entered the ministry with no proclaimed party affiliations. He resigned with the Cabinet in May, 1921, following the allies' ultimatum on reparations.

He later became the German legal adviser on the Upper Silesian Boundary Commission and was appointed president of the Supreme Court in 1922. He was born in 1861.

The Socialist party today decided to nominate Otto Braun, former Prussian Premier, who was succeeded in that position by Dr. Wilhelm Marx, as their candidate for President of the German Republic. This decision makes the candidacy of Dr. Marx for the presidency somewhat difficult, as his participation in Prussian politics by becoming president of the Diet, and his subsequent failure to get a vote of support will make it hard for him to enlist the Socialist support in Prussia.

President Ebert is said in his last days to have advised his party against competing in the race for the presidency, declaring the party would do much better by forming a combination with other parties. The late President's opinion, however, apparently is not shared by the party leadership.

CHILDREN RUN FARM COLONIES IN SOVIET RUSSIA

Miss Anna L. Strong, U. S. Welfare Worker in Charge of One, Tells of Them at City Club.

A wholly optimistic picture of soviet Russia, based on several years of personal contact, was drawn by Miss Anna Louise Strong of Seattle, Wash., who is a Ph. D., child welfare worker, journalist and author, in a luncheon address at the City Club yesterday.

David R. Francis, the last Ambassador to Russia in the days of the empire, was a guest at the speakers' table and William H. Danforth presided. The bulk of the audience was made up of women belonging to the Town Club. Dr. Strong's topic had been announced as "The Russian People; Are They Worth Saving?"

"I didn't know the Russian people had asked anybody to save them," she said. "They have been doing very well for themselves. I went in there three and a half years ago, (representing the Society of Friends), at the beginning of the greatest famine in recorded history, and the changes since then have been as great as the difference between bankruptcy and solvency. No other European people has recovered since the war without our loans. Russia has recovered unaided.

One Thermometer in Hospital.

"In the greatest fever epidemic the world has ever known the blockade was keeping out thermometers. When I was down with typhus in a Russian hospital the institution had one thermometer, and I borrowed a personal one from the American Relief Administration."

The speaker outlined some of the physical and economic effects of the revolution and told of the way these were being wiped out, quoting statistics to show the nation's recovery.

"This doesn't mean," she continued, "that Russia is anything like America in comfort and wealth, and it is not up to what it was before the revolution. No country in Europe is as well off as before the war. We don't realize as the Europeans do that war is destruction."

Dr. Strong's calm and assured manner, plainly based on reasoning observation, compelled close attention, which was augmented by her appearance. She has a ready smile and ruddy countenance, crowned by prematurely gray bobbed hair. She wore a gray frock with a dark red and bordered shawl, beneath which she held one arm akimbo.

Russia a New West.

"There was a time three years ago," she went on, "when the Russians hardly believed they could do their task alone. Russia still knows she cannot expand her national life without outside loans, but she doesn't feel the emergency as keenly. She wouldn't make so great a concession of independence or property as she would have in the past, for aid. It is common talk that only through the firm government she had had that Russia escaped the fate of China, division into spheres of influence.

"Whenever I think of Russia in general it is as of a new West. It has that attraction of Western America. So many radicals have gone to Russia with the idea that it was going to be their own particular millenium, and have come back disgusted. Others, like those sent by the Friends, particularly from the West, with Western ideas of freedom, have gone there and liked it, and have returned there after going away. It has the call of an undeveloped country starting the development of the greatest expanse of unoccupied lands in the world.

"Our American development has been on the principle that when a man takes up land it belongs to him. The Russian theory is that legally, and perpetually, the land, coal, water power and other resources belong to all the people. They are even beginning to work out which particular groups of the people should have charge of some resources—whether town, county or otherwise, but the great resources belong to the whole nation.

Colonies of Children.

"It would surprise Americans to find out what they are admired for in Russia and elsewhere—not for moral or spiritual qualities, but for efficiency."

Dr. Strong described the system of "chefstvo," or guardianship, for colonies of children, for their protection and education, which has sprung up in Russia. She was asked more than a year ago to take the guardianship of a colony on the Volga, 36 hours' journey from Moscow, to start a model American farm colony, "because she was an American," and not because she knew about farming. She accepted, and, with some misgivings, got her charges started on a collection of four patches of land miles away in various directions from an old monastery in which they were housed.

Old Peasant Still in Dark Ages.

Her task was, not to manage actively, but to guide and advise in the enterprise. She came back to America last year and raised several thousand dollars, which enabled the colony to move to the former estate of a nobleman.

"An account of what has been done there," she said, "is the best answer to the question of whether the Russian people are worth, not saving, but helping." Her description indicated clearly her belief that they are worth it. Next spring the colony of more than 100 children will operate 500 acres of land, under direction of adults. The children asked for an English teacher, so they can read American textboods on farming, and the Society of Friends provided one.

"The old Russian peasan," the speaker concluded, "is still in the dark ages, and not interested in new methods. The young ones want the very best things. The reason I came back to this country, chiefly, was to raise money for starting more of these colonies, to pave the way for a chain of agricultural schools."

STEWART ACQUITTED IN LAND FRAUD CASE

Had Been Convicted at First Trial but Appellate Court Ordered Rehearing.

KANSAS CITY, March 7.—W. E. Stewart of Kansas City today was acquitted in his second trial in Federal District Court here of charges of using the mails to defraud in connection with the sale of land in Hidalgo County, Tex.

The verdict was returned shortly after noon. The jury had been deliberating since 4:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

Case Was Remanded.

Stewart, who headed the W. E. Stewart Land Co., and the W. E. Stewart Mortgage Co., was sentenced in February, 1923, to serve five years in the Federal penitentiary and was fined $1600. The case was remanded by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals in St. Louis. Other officers of the Stewart companies, who also were charged with fraud, entered pleas of nolo contendere and were fined.

Farmers from Northern states, who had bought land from Stewart's company, charged that they had been promised irrigation and that they would make large profits.

Many testified that the water was not forthcoming and that they were constrained to abandon the land which they said they had purchased for as much as $300 to $500 an acre.

Government's Contention.

The Government sought to show that Stewart's agents had sold land under an irrigation system known as the Edinburg system, which the Government contended was inadequate. It brought scores of witnesses from far parts of the country to testify that they had been shown another, more efficient pumping system and were told that it would provide water for their land.

Witnesses for the defense expressed satisfaction with land they had bought in the Edinburg tract, some saying that it had proved quite as productive as Stewart's agents had represented.

Stewart, appearing as a witness in his own behalf, stated that a Rio Grande flood had interrupted enlargement of the Edinburg irrigation system in 1920. Farmers, he said, became impatient and checked development by asking first a receiver for the pumping company and then for the W. E. Stewart Land Co.

Given National Prominence.

The Stewart case was given national prominence during the senatorial land-fraud investigation in the spring of 1924. R. B. Creager, Republican national committeeman from Texas, was accused by a Kansas City lawyer, at that time, of having sought to block prosecution of the case. Creager was ancillary receiver for the Stewart company.

Retrial of the case was necessitated when the Court of Appeals held that although 14 of the 16 counts had been established by "ample proof of guilt," Judge Van Valkenburg, before whom the first trial was held, "bore too hard upon the convictions of the minority of the jury" during its deliberations. Judge Van Valkenburgh was shown to have read an expression of the Supreme Court of the United States before the jury relating to stubbornness of the jurymen when a majority favored a verdict.

Coolidge Invited to North Carolina.

WASHINGTON, March 7.—Senator Overman and Representative Bulwinkle of North Carolina, today invited President Coolidge to go to Charlotte for the May 20 Declaration of Independence celebration, and he took the matter under consideration. The President manifested a keen interest in the day that Mecklenburg County, North Carolina, has honored for 150 years, as the one on which Americans declared themselves free and independent of the British crown. While President, William Howard Taft went to Charlotte for the May 20 anniversary.

HOSPITAL GETS BULK OF DILWORTH ESTATE

Former Wife of Jacob L. Babler Also Names Relatives and Friends in Will.

A host of friends and relatives were remembered with gifts of money, jewelry and household articles, each bequest carefully listed and described, in the will of the late Mrs. Elizabeth Louise Dilworth, divorced wife of Jacob L. Babler, former Republican national committeeman.

The will filed yestreday at Clayton, bequeathed the bulk of her property, including "Oak Manor," her 26-room country home, to the Bethesda Corporation for use as a hospital. The estate is worth between $350,000 and $450,000, according to her executor.

$51,000 in Bequests.

The will provided $51,000 in bequests to relatives and friends and 16 persons were named to receive specific articles. The will stated that several other friends will receive gifts of jewelry from a list in the hands of Mrs. Gussie Wolff of Clayton.

The sum of $25,000 was set aside to be divided among relatives. In addition, bequests of $1000 each were made to Mrs. Frank Rager, Charles E. Rager and Sarah Bensinger of Lebanon, Pa., and William Trent of Tremont, Pa.

To Thomas W. Bampford, Paris, France, she gave $5300 and a finger ring, with a request that $300 be given by him to his sister, Miss Nellie Bampford; to Christian C. Wolff, executor of the estate, $5000, a six-cylinder automobile and a diamond solitaire ring to be mounted at the expense of the estate; to W. W. Ford, her Pittsburg attorney, $1000 "in recognition of the personal interest he had taken in her interests," two bronzes, two other statuettes, a bronze Egyptian lamp and a library clock.

Her Estate to Charity

MRS. ELIZBETH DILWORTH.

Other Cash Gifts.

The other cash bequests are $1000 to Frank P. Murphy of Brooklyn, $200 to Mrs. Carrie Lafferty of Kirkwood, and $1000 to Marcel Deslandes of Vance, France, to be paid him when he is 21.

The other bequests of personal property follow: To Miss Melba Deslandes of Vance, France, her trunkful of solid silver, an opal brooch, a string of pearls and a diamond set platinum watch; to Miss Isabel Deslandes of Vance, a sapphire ring and a lorgnette chain; to Miss Gussie Wolff of Clayton, a cameo ring, gold mesh-bag, diamond bracelet, a Dutch bedroom set of nine pieces and "the large rug from her music room;" to Louise Hatch Tucker of Montclair, N. Y., a diamond pearl necklace and a solitaire sapphire ring; to Louise Arbuckle of St. Louis, a turquoise ring and a bracelet; to Mrs. Frank P. Murphy, Brooklyn, "her library rug;" to Mrs. Anna Celler, Brooklyn, "her large Chinese rug, her plain red draperies and her diamond bar pin with three pearls;" to Mrs. Grace Cannon, New York City, a diamond lorgnette; to Mrs. Emily Pullman, New York City, a chain bracelet set with diamonds; to Marie Gerard, a brooch set with diamonds and pearls; to Mrs. Marian Hirst of New York City, a console cabinet, mink coat, silver fox neckpiece, two pearl rings, pearl necklace, diamond sunburst and several sets of china; to Susie Mahon, of St. Louis County, a diamond brooch, a piano, a clock, and chinaware; and to Clarence Mahon, her library, consisting of some 150 volumes.

Funeral services were held Friday. The body was cremated. The ashes will be sent to New York.

Burbank, 76, Works as Usual.

SANTA ROSA, Cal., March 7.—Luther Burbank celebrated his seventy-sixth birthday today by working as usual in his experimental gardens. He was the recipient of congratulatory messages from all over the world, among those who felicitated him by wire being Thomas Edison and Henry Ford.

MAID ROBBED 3 HOMES OF $100,000 IN JEWELS

Woman Implicates Man in Chicago Robberies in Confession to New York Police.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 7.—Arrested and charged with the theft here and in Chicago of more than $100,000 in jewels and furs, Mrs. Anton Wernitzer is said by the police to have confessed today to the robbery of three homes in which she worked as a maid. She implicated her companion, Herman Lieberwirth, who also was arrested, and said that he played the stock market with the results of her operations.

When arrested, Mrs. Wernitzer is said to have confessed to the theft of jewelry valued at $80,000 from the home of Mrs. Morris Vehon of Chicago, and of jewels, furs and silk, valued at $23,000 from the home of Mrs. Lucille Schamberg of New York. Police said she also admitted taking valuables from the home of a family in Glencoe, Ill., where she had been employed.

Another of her victims, detectives said, was a Mrs. Shamberg of this city, from whom she took jewels and silks worth $15,000 and furs valued at $8000.

Mrs. Wernitzer's story, as made public by the police, was that following her separation from her husband four years ago she lost heavily in several investments and found herself penniless. Accordingly, she decided to get work as a servant in the homes of wealthy families. Her first employer was Mr. Vehon, whose address was 1221 Astor street, Chicago.

On Jan. 22, according to her story, while members of the family were absent, she took Mrs. Vehon's jewels and several expensive articles of wearing apparel. Included in her booty were a pearl necklace valued at $28,000, an $8000 diamond ring and an $1800 watch.

Mrs. Wernitzer was traced through a jewelry store where she had left several of the Vehon gems for appraisal.

She told the police she had met Lieberwith 18 months ago and had fallen in love with him. The police said the man, a German mechanic, had been interned during the World War on suspicion that he was a spy.

They were charged with grand larceny.

Belgian Missionary Kidnaped.

By the Associated Press.

BRUSSELS, March 7.—News has been received here that a Belgian missionary in China, who has been in that country for 15 years, was carried off by brigands Jan. 15. It was said the missionary's captors, finding that they were being pursued by troops, sold their prisoner to a mounted band, who took their victim into the desert beyond the Yellow River. A Belgian missionary was killed in the same district last year and another one held prisoner for 35 days.

BANK MESSENGER IN TAXI ROBBED OF $1000

Satchel Containing $52,000 in Cancelled Checks Also Taken But Found Later.

Three hours after robbers had taken a satchel containing $1000 in dollar bills and $52,000 in canceled checks from a youthful messenger for the Farmers and Merchants' Trust Co. yesterday morning the satchel, still containing the checks, but minus the cash, was tossed into a rubbish heap in the rear of 3122 Pine boulevard.

Two policemen, walking through the alley there, saw a negro salvage the bank satchel. He said three men, speeding east in the alley in a Ford, had just thrown it there.

Either three or four robbers had committed the holdup, at 10 a. m., in Gravois avenue, east of Mississippi avenue. They were in a Buick or Studebaker touring car then, and came up from behind the Red Top taxicab in which the messenger, Henry Miller, 19 years old, of 3609 Nebraska avenue, was returning from the Federal Reserve Bank to the trust company, which is at Grand boulevard and Gravois avenue.

Miller customarily made his downtown trips with money in a Red Top cab. This one was driven by Benjamin Prussen. It was forced to the curb by the robbers' car, two of the occupants of which jumped out with revolvers drawn. One "covered" the chauffeur and the other grabbed the satchel, without saying anything.

28 CANDIDATES COMMIT SELVES TO PLAZA PLAN

Every One Who Has Answered Questionnaire as to Whether He Will Rush Project Has Stated 'Yes.'

Twenty-eight out of 84 candidats for municipal office had replied up to yesterday to the questionnaire concerning the projected Memorial Plaza, which was mailed to all the candidates Wednesday night by the Memorial Plaza Committee. The six queries included are for the purpose of committing the men who will be elected to the 16 offices to the early completion of the plaza and buildings in connection with it.

Among those who have replied are three candidates for Mayor. Every reply gave the desired answer—"yes"—except that the Socialist candidate for Comptroller answered "no" to the question about early erection of the municipal auditorium.

Replies Received.

The questions asked whether the candidates, if elected, would exert earnest efforts in support of the whole, detailed plaza plan. Those who have replied are:

Candidates for Mayor—Louis P. Aloe and George E. Dieckman, Republicans; G. A. Hoehn, Socialist.

Candidates for Comptroller—Eugene J. Sartorius, Democrat; George Tourville, Socialist.

Candidates for Aldermen—First Ward, Max Koeppen (R.). Third, Otto J. Schulz (R.). Fifth, Fred Weissman (R.); Edward Wiehe, incumbent (R.). Seventh, Edward J. Courtial (R.). Ninth, Martin D. Lohmann, incumbent (R.). Fifteenth, August Walz (R.); Robert E. Spelbrink (R.); Harry P. Riefling (R.); Phil. E. Briscoe (D.). Seventeenth, Thomas S. Wattsg, incumbent (R.); William H. Lippelmann (R.); Dr. C. Carter Lee (R.); John F. Zesch (R.). Nineteenth, Dr. Felix Herschman (R.); John P. Collins (D.). Twenty-first, William J. Studt, incumbent (R.). Twenty-third, Clinton E. Udell, incumbent (R.); Louis R. May (R.); Charles Conrell (D.). Twenty-fifth, William F. Stoppelworth (R.). Twenty-seventh, Arthur R. Brunk (R.); Emmett Golden (D.).

"Let's Get Busy."

In connection with the question about expediting the auditorium, Aloe answered he would work for speedy condemnation of the site unless it appears the land can be obtained more cheaply by private purchase. This answer conforms to the purposes of the Plaza Committee. Dieckman answered yes to every question without reservation.

Hoehn answered yes, also adding hearty comments in favor of the project, ending, "Let's get busy, do the work, finish the plaza and thus give St. Louis at least one great center of attraction." Sartorius, running for Comptroller, made the reservation that his efforts could not be inconsistent with the duties of the office.

Watts Changes His Stand.

Alderman Watts, who, with Alderman Nangle of the Twenty-fifth Ward, formerly opposed the plaza site for the courthouse, submitting favorable replies to the questionnaire, explained: "Originally I was for the downtown location of the courthouse. However, as the people have spoken under the referendum in regard to this matter, I feel I can but bow to their will." Stoppelworth, who is opposing Alderman Nangle, commented: "This is just the reason I am seeking to be Alderman of the Twenty-fifth Ward, because the incumbent didn't vote this way as a member of the board."

Charles W. Rutledge, chairman of the Memorial Plaza Committee, is directing the questioning of candidates.

'NEXT CONGRESS SURE TO PASS BIRD BILL'

Brookhart Says Measure Became Caught in Recent Legislative Jam.

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
20-23 Wyatt Bldg.

WASHINGTON, March 7.—The migratory bird bill, providing for the establishment of Federal bird refuges and shooting grounds, will be put through the next session of Congress without difficulty, according to a prediction today by Senator Brookhart of Iowa, its sponsor in the upper house. In the session just ended the bill was passed by the House of Representatives by a large majority, but failed to come to a vote in the Senate.

The bill would have commanded a good majority, Brookhart said, if it could have been extricated from the legislative jam and brought to a vote.

Not Senator Reed of Missouri, he added, but Senator Smoot of Utah was responsible for the undoing of the measure.

"Senator Reed told me," said Brookhart, "that, although he was opposed to the section requiring a Federal shooting license, he would not seek to prevent the bill from being considered. Smoot, however, served notice that he was prepared to filibuster the bill to death if it should be brought up. Smoot's opposition was inspired by the Utah game warden, who said the bill would interfere with state prerogatives.

"With Smoot determined to defeat the bill, there was no chance of getting it passed in the last few days of the session. It will be reported again in the next session, when there will be ample time for its consideration and it will go through both branches of Congress by large majorities."

The bill is modeled on a Pennsylvania state law and has the active support of the Department of Agriculture and numerous bird protection societies.

SOUTH BEND, Ind., March 7.—Carl Hern, 22 years old, of Chicago, an alleged automobile thief, died today from wounds inflicted yesterday by Policeman Homer Ames who shot Hern when he attemtped to escape.

THOMPSON APPEALS TO U. S. CIRCUIT AND SUPREME COURTS

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, March 7.—Appeal to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals was taken today by John W. Thompson, St. Louis and Chicago contractor, who was found guilty with Col. Charles R. Forbes, former head of the United States Veterans' Bureau, of conspiracy to defraud the Government.

Thompson also will prosecute a separate appeal to the United States Supreme Court on constitutional grounds.

Application for a writ of error and supersedeas was presented to Feedral Judge Cliffe who granted the supersedeas and approved a $10,000 apepal bond for Thompson. This appeal is based on the same allegations of error in procedure and in the trial before District Judge Carpenter made in a similar appeal filed yesterday for Forbes. Forbes and Thompson were found guilty of conspiracy to defraud the Government in veterans' hospital contracts and fined $10,000 each and sentenced to prison for two years. Much of the testimony of Elias H. Mortimer is alleged by the defendants to have been "prejudicial and irrelevant."

GRADUALLY IMPROVING

The age of the world is not known; its length of continuance only the CREATOR knows.

Earliest ancient history records individuals, tribes and nations as warring for wealth and supremacy.

HOME influences, slow in the beginning, have come down through the ages with constantly increasing elevation; today they are the most important factors in the affairs of civilization.

Eventually they will dominate the Universe and mankind's bounden duty is to keep uppermost in mind our debt to posterity by making HOME a haven of content.

That's Our Part in Life's Drama!

(Signed) Harry Prufrock.

CONVICT MADE $35,000 FROM CELL, HE SAYS

Baltimore Prosecutor to Question Employes of Mail Order Concern Directed in Prison.

By the Associated Press.

BALTIMORE, March 7.—Employes in a downtown office maintained by Burton M. Morgan, 28 years old, a convict in the Maryland Penitentiary, will be questioned by State's Attorney O'Conner in an effort to obtain further information regarding direct mail enerprises which Morgan, it became known today, has directed from his prison cell during the last two years. His profit during this period, Morgan says, has been $35,000.

Several members of the State Welfare Board, which has control over the penitentiary, expressed surprise on learning of Morgan's activities. Morgan is serving a five-year sentence for larceny and false pretense which expires next June. His ventures are said to have received the consent and approval of Warden Claude B. Sweesey of the penitentiary.

Penitentiary Warden Will Not Interfere With Activities.

Col. Sweezey, Warden of the penitentiary, today defended his course in permitting Morgan to conduct a mailing list agency from the prison.

Denying that Morgan was granted unwarranted privileges, Sweezey denounced the publicity given the matter as a "cowardly attack" upon a man who was trying to make good and who was not in a position to fight back. He did not intend to interfere with Morgan's business activities, the Warden said, but would inspect his books more closely because of the publicity given the affair. Nothing fraudulent has been disclosed in Morgan's activities, he added.

"I would rather have the inmates here busy in directing legitimate business than idle in their cells planning ways to escape or indulging in some vicious habits," Col. Sweezey said. "The purpose of a penitentiary is to turn men back to society fit to mingle with other people. That is what I am attempting to do."

When Morgan arrived at the prison, detainers from Toledo, O.; Toronto, Ontario, and Auburn, N. Y., were placed against him. Since then, the Warden said, Morgan has made restitution in Toledo and Toronto and the cases against him have been dropped. The detainer from Auburn was for violation of his parole.

Police Commissioner Charles D. Gaither said that Morgan's activities had been under investigation by his department for several months and that nothing had been revealed showing that his operations have been unlawful.

ROBBER RETURNS LAUNDRY DRIVER'S OWN MONEY TO HIM

Throws $5 Bill and Change on Ground and Escapes With the Company's $54.

Fred W. Bergmann, 38 years old, of 1325 Michael avenue, St. Louis County, a driver for the West End Laundry, 4321 Finney avenue, reported to the police at 3 p. m. yesterday that while he was making a delivery at 1404 North Pendleton avenue, a few minutes earlier, he was held up by an armed robber and relieved of about $60.

When he protested that $6 of the amount was his own, he said, the robber threw a $5 bill and some change on the ground and ran north to Easton avenue. Bergmann followed, according to his report, but the man disappeared in a house on Easton between Newstead and Taylor avenues. A policeman found no trace of the robber in the house.

Put Up Coin, Is Kearns' Reply to N. Y. Commission

Manager of Dempsey Says Challenge of Wills Already Has Been Accepted.

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., March 7.—Jack Kearns, manager of the heavyweight champion, Jack Dempsey, in a statement to the New York State Athletic Commission, today declared that the titleholder would meet Harry Wills or Tommy Gibbons, or both, if the commission would guarantee to finance the match.

The statement, somewhat in the nature of a reply to the commission's demand to Dempsey to explain why Wills' challenge had not been recognized, declared that "Wills' challenge had been accepted once and it was not necessary to repeat."

"Dempsey asks only that the commission gives its financial guarantee in the form of a cash deposit," the statement in part said, "as is the custom in such cases and give its official assurance of its ability to carry out the match."

"The commission files will show that Wills' challenge has been accepted once, also Gibbons'. It is not necessary to repeat."

Kearns also "respectfully invited" the commission to follow up its matchmaking by acting as the promoter of either or both bouts to be staged in New York State if it desires.

The manager declined to recognize any authority over the champion by the commission.

SPALLA BROTHERS MAY MEET IN HEAVYWEIGHT TITLE BOUT IN ITALY

By the Associated Press.

MILAN, Italy, March 7.—A fight between brothers for the heavyweight boxing championship of Italy is possible. The Italian Boxing Federation is said to be ready to permit Giuseppe Spalla to challenge his brother, Erminio, for the title.

The bout would take place after Erminio had fulfilled several engagements, particularly a bout with Frank Goddard, the English heavyweight.

CUNNINGHAM-S'RENCO WIN HANDBALL TITLE

Mike Cunningham and Jack S'Renco won the city indoor handball championship last night, defeating Milton Smith and Frank Zanders, of the Y. M. C. A., in the final. The scores were 21-16, 13-21, 21-15.

The match was one of the most exciting ever witnessed at the National A. A. gymnasium. A capacity crowd attended. Monday evening, the singles final between Cunningham and Dr. S. M. Rich will be played at the same court.

Chief Uncas, Derby Candidate Owned by August A. Busch, Is 200 to 1 Shot in Future Book

St. Louis' Only Entry in Kentucky Turf Classic Is Son of Omar Khayyam, a Derby Winner, and Has Never Been to the Races—Now Training at Jamaica.

By John E. Wray,
Sports Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

When the 15 or 20 bangtailed Kentucky Derby candidates caracole past packed stands at Churchill Downs, on their way to the starting post, next May 16, it is probable that St. Louisans there will focus attention on a dark chestnut colt, with a blaze face and not a white hair elsewhere, his jockey clad all in red save for white shoulder straps and trousers.

In the official list of Derby entries, released yesterday, this horse is listed as "Chief Uncas, chestnut colt, by Omar Khayyam—Dark Water, owned by Mr. and Mrs. August Busch of St. Louis, Mo."

Chief Uncas, therefore, if he trains well and goes to the starting post, will afford Mound City racing followers their first chance in many years to cheer with more than perfunctory interest, any candidate in this classic, which this year will have its fifty-first running.

In Fred Taral's Stable.

Like many another horse in that list of 138 entries to the $60,000 race, Chief Uncas was bought solely that the owner might have the honor of sending a horse to the post. The son of a former Derby winner, he was bought in by a representative of Mr. Busch at an Eastern sale as a yearling. Later he was put in the stable of the late Fred Taral, one of the greatest jockeys the world ever knew and a turfman of wide note. He is now at Jamaica track, where

Earle Sande to Begin Galloping Horses for Hildreth Next Week

NEW YORK, March 7.

EARL SANDE is going down to Rancocas Farm next week to begin galloping horses for Sam Hildreth. Apparently he has quite recovered from the long illness that followed his accident early in the Saratoga meeting last August.

Sande has taken on a lot of weight and whether he will be able to get down to 110 pounds, the weight he usually makes in the spring, remains to be seen.

CONCORDIA CLOSES SEASON WITH SIXTH CONSECUTIVE VICTORY

Concordia Seminary basketball team brought its season to a close last night by overwhelming the Will Mayfield College team of Marble Hill, Mo., by a 51 to 20 score. The game was played at Holy Cross Hall.

Concordia started the season very poorly, losing four of the first five games, but immediately after a reorganization in which Schneider replaced Paddy Fitzgerald as coach, the Seminarians began to win. They ran their streak of successive victories up to six with last night's conquest.

LEACOCKS TO PLAY ST. MARY'S IN FIRST ROUND OF TOURNEY

KANSAS CITY, Mo., March 7.—The completed schedule for play in the National Amateur Athletic Union basketball tournament shows that the Leacock five of St. Louis will get into action in its first game with the St. Marys College team of St. Marys, Kan., at 7 p. m. Monday. Half of the teams in the tourney will play on Monday, while the balance will play their first contests Tuesday.

If the Leacocks win their first game they will rest Tuesday and play their second-round encounter on Wednesday.

Ohio State Wins Big Ten Title

Buckeyes Defeat Indiana, 28 to 26, and Capture Basketball Championship.

By the Associated Press.

BLOOMINGTON, Ind., March 7.—Ohio State's basketball team won the Western Conference net crown by defeating Indiana 28 to 26 in one of the closest and fastest contests seen here this season. Ohio State now has ten victories and one defeat for first place with Illinois in second with eight wins and three losses, while Indiana slipped from second to third with eight wins and four defeats. Purdue is in fourth place with six victories and four losses. Illinois and Purdue play again but their results cannot affect Ohio's standing. Ohio State meets Wisconsin next week for its last game.

Piker Five Is Beaten by the Kansas Aggies

Washington Leads Only at the Start of Game at Manhattan—Score 34 to 21.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MANHATTAN, Kan., March 7.—Having lost their chance to finish higher than third in the Missouri Valley Conference basketball race, the Washington University Pikers appeared to have lost some of their fiery attack when they faced the Kansas Aggies here this evening. The lads from St. Louis led only for a few minutes at the start of the game and when Bunker put the Aggies in the lead they were never headed. The final score was 34 to 21 in favor of the Aggies.

Minner and Seago played well for the Pikers in the early spurt but the Aggies displayed better all-around ability as the game progressed and held a lead of 20 to 9 at the close of the first half.

Tebow Star of Game.

The Pikers threatened at the start of the second period and ran up 8 points before the Aggies added a single tally. Then, with the score 20 to 17, the local team settled down to its machinelike method of scoring and ran up numerous baskets. Tebow played a sensational game for the Aggies. Byers shot the longest field basket ever witnessed here.

Washington will meet Kansas at Lawrence, Monday night.

Hallahan Used When Rickey Saves Haines Because of Cold Wave

Little Southpaw Permits No Hits for Seven Innings—Hornsby and Bell Hammer the Ball.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

STOCKTON, Cal., March 7.—Bill Hallahan, a diminutive, curly-haired southpaw, qualified for a position on the allstar North Pole pitching staff today when he covered the full distance against the San Francisco Seals in a 5 to 0 victory for the Varsity section of Branch Rickey's Cardinals.

Originally Jesse Haines was on Rickey's list to start the spring training trip game, but the weather man, who has been known to upset the plans of greater men than major league managers, altered this arrangement. It wasn't merely chilly or raw. It was COLD, bitterly cold, so cold, in fact that a majority of the 1800 spectators were covered in their winter overcoats.

Thus, with such conditions prevailing, Rickey turned to his pitching assortment on the bench and said:

Picks Out Raw Recruit.

"Hally, I'll start you; Jesse, you go back to the clubhouse and sit on the stove. This kind of weather isn't going to do you any good."

Haines, a member of the first-string staff, was considered too precious to risk in the frigid weather. Hallahan, a kid of only 20 winters, who came to the Cards from Kalamazoo, would not be much of a loss with a frozen whip. As things turned out, Rickey is offering a vote of thanks for this unexpected shift in Stockton's spring training weather.

Hallahan was but two steps behind a no-hit game. His control was so perfect that he issued but one free ticket and this was a careless effort when he hit a batter. He hit Ernie Vick's glove right in back of the plate so often that only one batter drew three balls.

And although Hallahan was booked for only five innings, he covered the entire route. The Seals did not get a safe hit off the midget southpaw until the eighth. This was a dribbler over second base by Catcher Ritchie and their other safe knock came in the ninth, which was another bounder over the pitching hill and out of Lester Bell's reach. Outfielder Waner produced this one.

At all other moments Hallahan played the part of a seasoned major league pitcher. He fanned three, and only one runner stepped beyond second base.

The only rally for the Frisco Seals came in the fifth inning, after Hallahan had retired the first 12 batters. Gouvenor sent a roller to Bottomley in back of first and Hallahan, taking the throw, juggled the ball for an error. Ellison was hit. Paynter advanced the pair with a sacrifice. Shortstop Rhyne popped a fly to Hornsby and Flack squeezed a high one from Ritchie.

In the remaining four rounds the Seals had but three base-runners.

Hornsby and Bell in Form.

On the offensive side Rogers Hornsby again gave the Pacific Coast customers a few samples of his batting. He scored three runs, drove in one and the Cardinals gathered exactly five.

Swinging at the plate four times, Rog drew two walks, sailed a single to left field and bounced a triple off the right field wall. Right in back of Rog for these fence-busting honors was Lester Bell, who had two singles and a triple. Bell had one miscue at short, but anybody will trade one fumble for two singles and a triple.

The Cardinals were blanked by Marty Griffin, an ace on Bert Ellison's staff, for three frames. Hornsby opened the fourth with his triple. Bottomley put Rog over with a deep fly to Waner in left. Bell was the hero in the attack during the sixth. With two out Hornsby walked and Bottomley singled. Both traveled around on Lester's mighty triple to deep center.

Mails Pitches Today.

Morning and afternoon games with the Seals will be played today. The big attraction will come in the afternoon when Walter Mails is scheduled to pitch.

FRANKHOUSE HURLS FOR RICKEY'S YANNIGANS IN 12-INNING TIE, 1—1

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

SACRAMENTO, Cal., March 7.—Bert Shotten, in charge of the second-string Cardinals, was given a midseason game here today when the Hornsbyless outfit and the Sacramento Coast League team played a 12-inning 1-to-1 tie. Had it not been for an overcast sky and a chilly atmosphere the handful of fans present would have thought it was a Fourth of July combat from the way Frankhouse and Vinci pitched. The game was called on account of cold and darkness.

Both clubs finished the day with four hits and one run. Frankhouse's pitching was the real feature and he should have won the game, 1 to 0. A Coast League decision by Umpire Casey walked a batter in the fifth inning who was really struck out and thus aided the Coasters to count their only tally on a long fly.

Frankhouse gave a great all-around exhibition. He fielded his position wonderfully and had a world of stuff on the ball. The curve ball he displayed to the Sacramento club was their downfall in the hit column. The young hurler had really only three hits against him in nine innings. Frankhouse's two-base hit in the third inning to left after Thevenow had been hit by a pitched ball put the Cards in a position to score their only marker when Shinners drove a long fly to center.

CENTRAL CLINCHES TITLE IN INTERSCHOLASTIC BASKET LEAGU

Red and Black Five Beats Yeatman, 26 to 15, in Game Featured by Rough Play

12 Fouls Called Against Central and 10 Against Yeatman—P. Hosler Banished Under Personal Foul Rule—Soldan Surprises With Victory Over Cleveland, 29-25.

Central High School clinched the pennant in the Interscholastic Basketball League last night by defeating Yeatman 26 to 15 at Cleveland High School gymnasium in the first game of the weekly double-header.

The game was a ragged exhibition of basketball throughout and was marred by many fouls, 10 being called against Yeatman and 12 against Central. P. Hosler, Central's right forward, was banished from the game in the first half after committing four personal fouls.

Toward the end of the contest a fight was narrowly averted. Ens of Yeatman pushed Chistal of Central, whereupon Cameron made a motion as though to take a hand in the altercation. Referee Kamp intervened and the game was concluded without further hostilities.

Yeatman Leads at the Half.

Central sent in substitutes at the start and Yeatman got off in the lead. At the end of the first half Yeatman led, 12 to 10, but in the second half Central held Yeatman to three points, all scored as the result of fouls.

Conners was the leading scorer for Central with 10 points, gained by four field goals and two free throws.

It was inability to score on free throws which kept the North Siders from making a better showing for out of 12 chances they were able to count only five times.

Soldan surprised by defeating Clveland in the second game, 29 to 15.

Cleveland was apparently off stride as the second game opened and Soldan ran up a lead at the start. However, Cleveland soon opened up and then the game was nip-and-tuck. At the close of the half Soldan led, 16 to 14. Near the close of the game Cleveland cut Soldan's lead from 8 points to 4 points and was threatening to tie the count when the final whistle sounded.

'Buck' Ewing's Great Arm Was Runner's Peril

Foster Regards the Old New York Catcher as Greatest of All Time.

(This is the nineteenth article of the series which John B. Foster is writing to commemorate the fiftieth anniversary of the National League which will be celebrated the coming season.)

By John B. Foster.

William B. Ewing was better known as "Buck," throughout the United States. Some think he was the most expert ball player in the history of the National game. He was a product of the National League and perhaps the greatest of those players who have been more versatile than others.

In my opinion he was the best catcher who ever stepped behind a home plate in any league. When he was at the head of the New York National League club which became the Giants under his management, he exhibited to those who were privileged to see his game of that day, the most masterly display of catching that had been seen in the United States and a close second to him during that period was Charles Bennett of Boston. In Boston they were inclined to believe that Bennett was as good as Ewing but Bennett could not throw to second base as well as Ewing and there never has been a player who could excel Ewing in throwing, perhaps none who has equaled him.

He did not throw the ball to second base in the accepted sense of the term. There was no long, overhand motion, no round arm effort to propel the ball. He seemed in some way to reach out with his forearm and hand the ball to the second baseman, or the shortstop, who stood on the base and waited for the runner.

No Chance to Steal.

Once the owner of a team that was playing against New York asked his manager why he did not try to steal second base more often against Ewing. "We never make a try," said the owner. "What's the use," was the dry reply, "when ye know yer out before ye start. Not every man kin be a Jonah an' git out o' the whale."

Ewing could play third base, shortstop, second base and the outfield. He could play the outfield well and finished as an outfielder. He could pitch well and did pitch in "championship games. He was a big man, yet fast on his feet. He could steal bases as well as any of the high-class base runners.

He was not as powerful a batter as Anson but he was a hard line hitter with the ability to bat to right field, as well as left field, the same ability that Anson had, and both were right hand hitters. He was one of the few batters who could place the ball when he batted and he did place it.

Won Two Pennants.

He proved to be a fine leader and carried the Giants through to two pennants. By winning them the New York National League team acquired that great reputation that it has held most of the time since 1888 and 1889 in both of which years he proved that he was a strategist who could meet the keenest wits of baseball in those days.

(In his next article Mr. Foster will discuss one of the greatest of the National League's 15 Greatest Players—Napoleon Lajoie.)

ILLINOIS TEAMS WIN 3 ATHLETIC EVENTS

URBANA, Ill., March 7.—Illinois won its third Big Ten Conference athletic event tonight when they defeated Chicago in a dual swimming meet in the local pool, 43 to 25. The Illini grabbed the water basketball game, 9 to 4. The Illini earlier in the day won over Iowa at track and Ohio State at wrestling.

Layton Loses Twice.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., March 7.—Otto Reiselt of Philadelphia won two games from Johnny Layton of Minneapolis in the Interstate Three-Cushion Billiard League today, winning the afternoon match, 50 to 33 in 31 innings and the evening match 50 to 27 in 39 innings. Reiselt had a high run of six, while Layton's best was five.

The Story of B·I·L·L·I·A·R·D·S

By CHAS. C. PETERSON

Chapter XI.

FROM 8-INCH TO 18-INCH BALKLINES.

The second phase of the development of straight-rail billiards into 18.2 balkline witnessed the introduction of four parallel lines as opposed to the former oblique lines.

In 1875, three of the best professionals of the day, Rudolphe and the Dion brothers, experimented with a balkline game which provided a continuous line around the table, six inches from each rail. They found this too difficult for practical purposes and abandoned it without a public trial.

In 1883 the intersecting lines were drawn, forming nine quadrangular spaces on the bed of the table. The lines were eight inches from the cushion and the game was called 8.2 balkline. The eight signified lines eight inches from the cushion and the two referred to the embargo against more than two successive points in any of the eight balk spaces. Thus, 18.2 means lines drawn 18 inches from the rail and not more than two successive points in any restricted area.

Made Use of "Anchor" Shot.

A world's championship tournament was conducted under these conditions at Chicago, Old Jake Schaefer winning. He had a high run of 220 and Vignaux of France ran 246. Both made use of the "anchor" shot. That is to say, they maneuvered the balls to a position where one object ball was in one balk space and the other object ball in the adjoining balk space, the two balls close together. Thus, the purpose of the restricting lines was defeated, and a little later the "anchor" box was made necessary because of very high runs.

This new restriction was first used in a tournament in 1896 at New York. However, it differed from the present game in that five points were permitted when the balls were in anchor. Now only two points are permitted. In 1885 the lines were drawn, 14 inches from the cushion, and in 1896 they were advanced to 18 inches.

During the '90s some players experimented with 18.1 balkline wherein only one point is allowed when both balls are in the same balk area. The first world's championship tournament at this style of game was played at New York in 1897, George Slosson winning with an average of 12.2 and a high run of 97.

18.1 Passes Out Quietly.

Both games continued to enjoy a fair share of success until as late as 1907, when the last big tournament at 18.1 was played. This game, considerably more difficult than 18.2, has passed out of favor.

No major change has been made in the balkline game since the introduction of the anchor box, in 1896, but there is a tendency in some quarters to once more change the game both for the purpose of making it more difficult and for the purpose of "opening" it up to provide better entertainment for spectators.

200 to 1 Odds Against St. Louis Derby Candidate

he is being brought around slowly by Trainer Henderson, now in charge of the Taral string since the recent death of its owner.

It is perhaps significant that both in color and parentage Chief Uncas seems destined to be the "dark horse" of the derby. His color is a very deep chestnut, so that he seems almost black when perspiring. Also, his dam is named Dark Water.

Furthermore he is a "dark horse" in that there is absolutely no public line on his ability. Chief Uncas has never been to the races. There is no authentic clocking even obtainable on his workouts as a three-year-old, under Henderson at Jamaica track. Even the Busch establishment here professes to have no more information than that he "is coming along nicely, but slowly."

Son of Derby Winner.

By right of breeding, Chief Uncas is entitled to hold his head as proudly as he seems to in his photograph, having been sired by the great Omar Khayyam, himself winner of the derby.

Just how good he is will probably not be decided until the Jamaica track meeting opens. Then, according to Mr. Busch's representative here, he will be sent to the races for a test.

In the meantime, owing to ignorance as to his ability, Chief Uncas is quoted at 200 to 1 against, in the first future book prices.

Doubtless there are many sharp shooters, realizing the Busch ambition to send a derby horse to the post and remembering that Quatrain, the derby favorite, is by the same sire, who will take a chance at the long odds.

For the rest of the derby entries, as completely published elsewhere in this section, the field is probably the strongest that has gone to the post in many years. There are fully 25 candidates that have a genuine chance and the price hunters will have a fine time guessing the winner. The odds indicate about the estimation in which the entries are held with Quatrain at 6 to 1 and Master Charlie at 8 to 1.

Whitney Nominates 12.

Harry Payne Whitney with 10 horses has nominated more candidates than any other owner. His aces will be Mother Goose, Candy Kid and Swinging, all high-class horses.

There are seven imported horses in the list and form would not be shocked to see them win. Master Charlie and Nicholas are the best of these.

Nicholas, by the way, is one of the only two gray horses nominated. The other is Silver Fox, also brought over from England. Nicholas is by Stefan the Great; Grey Fox sired the other gray.

Many great sires are represented and not least among these is Man o' War, two of whose progeny will be sent after a derby—American Flag and By Hisself, two real good ones.

North Star III is the best represented sire. Seven of his "get," among them Kentucky Cardinal, Menifee, Blue Warbler and Benedict Vow, have been named. Omar Khayyam, Black Toney—which bred last year's derby winner, Black Gold—Chicle, Broomstick, Sun Briar, Ultimus, Peter Pan and many other great sires are noted.

Six women owners will be represented, with Mrs. Vanderbilt's Nicholas apparently the best.

Thirteen entries are geldings and, strange to say, not one of them seems to have the remotest chance. None is favorably known on past performance.

The same number of fillies are eligible. Of the baker's dozen, Mother Goose, Swinging and Blue Warbler seem the only ones worthy of present consideration.

Penn Athlete Sets New World Pole Vault Mark

Nelson Sherrill Clears Bar at 13 Feet in Intercollegiate Meet at New York.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 7.—Georgetown University tonight displaced the University of Pennsylvania as indoor inter-collegiate track champions in a spectacular meet which witnessed the shattering of three indoor world's records and seven inter-collegiate standards.

The Washington Collegians gained their triumph by a decisive margin in a three-cornered battle for points with Harvard and Pennsylvania, which forfeited the title it has held for the past two seasons.

Georgetown's speed and brawn rolled up a total of 37 points in 10 of the 11 varsity title events, including two spectacular relay victories and first places in the high and broad jumps.

Harvard, showing surprising strength in the track events, but failing to do much in the field, finished second with 24¼ points, while Pennsylvania was third with 22½ points. The battle was among these three teams from the start.

It was the first time Georgetown has ever won an I. C. A. A. A. A. championship, either indoor or outdoor.

New Pole Vault Record.

Nelson Sherrill of Pennsylvania lifted himself to a new world's record height in the pole vault when he clerade the bar at the height of 13 feet, eclipsing the mark of 12 feet, 10 inches, set by Eddie Meyers of Chicago at the Boston A. A. meet last January. Sherrill bettered by 6 inches the former intercollegiate mark which he shares jointly with several others.

Charley Moore, Penn State hurdler and intercollegiate champion, shattered both the intercollegiate and world's indoor records for the 70-yard high hurdles, when he won his trial heat in 8 3-5s. This eclipsed his own former I. C. A. A. A. A. mark of 9s. and the world's standard of 8 4-5s., held jointly by Waldo Ames and Karl Anderson, Chicago stars.

Raymond Haas, Georgetown hurdler, also bettered the old intercollegiate record when he won his trial heat in 8 4-5 seconds, also equaling the world's record which Moore displaced.

Georgetown University's brilliant 2-mile relay team shattered the world's indoor record for the third time this season when they won the inter-collegiate title in the unprecedented time of 7 minutes 41 3-5 seconds. The Washington Collegians won by 30 yards from their nearest rivals, Boston College.

Nurmi Sets New Record for Mile

Finn Establishes New World Mark of 4:12 in Race at Buffalo.

By the Associated Press.

BUFFALO, N. Y., March 7.—Paavo Nurmi, Finnish marvel, tonight added a third and decisive round to his duel with Lloyd Hahn of the Boston A. A., for the world's mile record honors. In a race which featured the 174th Infantry games here, Nurmi laid down a mile in 4.12 flat in his fourth track competition in as many days. Hahn's record was 4:13 2-5, set at the New York A. C. games in New York on Feb. 14, which at that time clipped a fifth of a second off the mark set by Nurmi at Madison Square Garden on Jan. 6.

The marvelous Finn's feat of competing four straight days in track competition was in itself a grueling test. Within the four days he established two world marks. In addition to his performance tonight, he broke the world's record for the 1⅛ mile made by himself at the Brooklyn 106th Infantry Armory on March 4, the opening day of his record jaunt. His four-day competition led him from Brooklyn to Hamilton, Ont., where he shattered the Canadian record for 1½ miles, to Toronto, Ont., and finally to Buffalo.

MIDLAND VALLEY COUNTRY CLUB'S experiment in putting the care of its course in the hands of an expert agristologist, will be watched with interest by other clubs in the St. Louis district. It seems a wise move to put the business of grass culture into the hands of an expert, instead of leaving the matter to a professional or to a greens committee. In most cases the chairman of the greens committee is a live wire, but usually he knows more about insurance, automobile sales or stocks and bonds than he does about making two blades of grass grow where only one used to sprout.

At the insistent recommendation of Lynn D. Saunders, chairman of Midland Valley Greens Committee, the course has been turned over to William H. Diddel of Indianapolis, who has made the scientific study of grass, turf and soil his profession. He will have a free hand at Midland. There will be no suggestions from the members, no interference.

Three greens will be reconstructed immediately and will be ready for play in the fall. They are No. 1, No. 9, and No. 18. The new first green will be built across the ditch and the present green will be used until the new one is ready. Temporary greens will be used while Nos. 9 and 18 are being rebuilt.

Frank, if Discouraging.

WHEN Diddel visited Midland he took samples of the soil from the greens and had them analyzed at the State University. The report, when it came back, said that the soil was very excellent soil, in fact no better soil could be found—FOR MAKING BRICKS.

Diddel will import soil for the new greens at Midland. Eventually all the greens will be rebuilt. Searchers for soil for greens usually hunt for an abandoned farm, the ground being fine for greens after lying idle for a few years.

Midland Valley members are holding a meeting each month to discuss ways and means of improving the club. The boosters are in the saddle. At a meeting early this month at the Forest Park Hotel moving pictures of the leading golfers in the country will be displayed. There will be slow and normal time movies.

Omaha to Hold T.-M.

THE transmississippi tournament will be held at Omaha June 22 to 27. This will follow the Missouri State championship, which will be held June 17 to 20 at the Lakewood Country Club, Kansas City.

With the Missouri date set, the District Golf Association probably will schedule the local title tournament just before the State competition. It will be held at the North Hills Country Club.

TWO PIKER STARS ARE NAMED ON ALL-VALLEY BASKET BALL TEAM

Minner, Forward and Cox, Guard, Selected by Vote Of Eight of Nine Coaches Goodson and Volz of Nebraska Team Picked — Ackerman, of Kansas, Elected Captain, Is Only Member of Champions on All-Star Quintet.

By Arthur Schneff.

The lion's share of honors in the selection of an all-star Missouri Valley Conference basketball team has been awarded to the Washington University players, coached by Don White. The selections were based on the votes of the coaches of the respective conference teams. Eight of the nine coaches participated in the election.

The Pikers were awarded two places on both the first and second teams. On the first team, the veteran Jack Minner was selected as forward. Two years ago Minner led the conference in scoring, and although he has always been a marked man, he has been among the leading scorers since. Wiley Cox, Washington's captain and running guard, is the other Piker to be awarded a berth on the first team. Cox has been described by several conference coaches as "the best all around player in the Valley." According to latest figures, Cox is the leading scorer among the guards.

Two Husker Stars Honored.

The University of Nebraska players were also awarded two places on the first team, but received only one selection for the second team. Goodson, the Cornhuskers' capable center, was the choice of the coaches for that position, while Volz, Nebraska's captain, was given a position at guard.

Although the University of Kansas team captured the championship, only one Jayhawker was given a place on the mythical quintet. Tustan Ackerman, Kansas' captain and, according to latest statistics available, leading point scorer in the conference, was chosen for a forward berth with Minner. Ackerman's selection was unique in that he was not only the unanimous choice of the coaches for the position of forward, but because he was also unanimously selected to captain the quintet.

Seago and Weil Named.

This has been an unusually fruitful year for good players in the conference, and the voting for all-star players was closer than in the past three or four seasons. Ackerman was the only man chosen by every coach, whereas the highest number of votes the other men received was four.

The two Washington players selected for the second team are Russell Seago, center, and Paul Weil, back guard.

WRAY'S COLUMN

Hard Punch or Hard Head?

THE old story of the irresistible force encountering the impenetrable mass will be up again on March 16. The force will be represented by the kayo wallop of Paul Berlenbach and the mass of the near-ivory matrix composing the skull of Louis Phal, otherwise known as Battling Siki.

Berlenbach's punch is a mighty one as has been proved in many fights; while as for Siki's skull bad actor as the colorful gentleman from Senegal has shown himself to be, none has been able to jar it to the point of knocking out the black boy.

Siki is one of the strangest characters that ever was cast up by the turbulent game of pugilism. Unheard of in 1921, although he had been boxing since 1913, he suddenly flashed across the horizon as the conqueror of Georges Carpentier in 1922.

Siki Still Primitive.

UNDER the microscope of publicity, Siki stood out as a wondrous example of the elemental man translated to civilization. Dazzled by his unexpected rise to fame and fortune, due to his surprising defeat of Carpentier, his morale went to pieces. He became a joy-riding addict, a frequenter of the all-night cafe and a patron of the absinthe bottle, with a mania for clothes that could be heard in London when worn in Paris.

Primitive as a Newfoundland pup, he frolicked and gamboled through his money annexed a wife and deserted her, swaggered and fought his way in and out of the gay cafes of Paris and finally became hooked up to fight Mike McTigue in Dublin.

A Scotch-Irish Finish.

A COMBINATION of Scotch whisky and Irish craft there dethroned him and sent him on the toboggan, down which he has never ceased to skid. Uncontrolled by himself or by any other living agency, he disregarded matches, never trained, and has put up but one fight since his arrival last year in America—that with Kid Norfolk, for whom he trained hard and whom he gave a desperate battle for 15 rounds, only to be outpointed.

Since that time Siki has wandered in and out of the limelight, fighting cheaper opponents, getting himself arrested at intervals and behaving in such an uncertain way that promoters dropped him entirely.

Must Be Fit This Time.

NOW he is matched with Berlenbach, a killer. Siki has been taken in hand by a new manager, who is trying to rebuild him nearer to civilization. He thinks he has put a few controls on the Battler and that he will keep a straight course at least until after March 16.

Siki is just a primitive fighter, who has a low, nervous normal and who is indifferent to punishment. He is fast, strong, and can hit; and in his record of 65 fights we note 25 knockouts.

If he has not thoroughly prepared for the ordeal of the irresistible right of Berlenbach, he may as well chalk up his first "knocked-out-by" in his record.

Siki's head may be just as hard as ever; but a weak stomach is a poor defense against a knockout right.

Must Be Confident.

BERLENBACH must feel that his prospective opponent has slipped beyond recall, for he himself has been matched with the newest of all the killers, Jack Delaney.

This bout, which is to be the first open-air affair in New York, will be akin to a battle of trip-hammers.

For, as to science—yes, they have none.

Braves Not to Switch.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 7.—Judge Emil Fuchs and Christy Mathewson of the Boston Braves announced yesterday at a meeting with city officials that the baseball team would train in St. Petersburg next spring.

North Hills Club To Hold District Golf Tourney

Two Courses Will Be Available for Title Competition Early in June.

North Hills Country Club will hold the 1925 tournament of the St. Louis District Golf Association, the award having been made at a meeting of the association at the Racquet Club Thursday night. Officers of the club guaranteed that the course would be in condition and the vote to give the tourney to North Hills was unanimous. The tourney will be held early in June.

As previously told, two courses will be available at North Hills, and if the field makes it necessary the qualifying round can be played over both courses. It virtually has been decided to play the 36-hole semifinals and finals in the championship class over the two courses, thus affording a better test of golf than when two rounds are played over one course.

Potter Elected President.

Harry Potter of the County Club was elected president of the association for a year. Other officers named are Chris Kenney of Sunset, re-elected vice president; Clarence L. Wolff of Sunset re-elected secretary and Frank Montgomery of Normandie, treasurer.

In view of the heavy expenses involved last year and the busy season planned, the association voted to increase dues to $25 a club, for this year.

The Junior district tourney will be held in June, after school closes. The course has not been selected. Sunset and Bellerive have been offered and Bellerive is favored because it is more accessible.

It was suggested at the meeting that a senior district tournament be held and a committee, including Don G. Scott, Western senior champion; Walter Pfeffer and J. L. Van Ness was named to consider the proposition. The Western Golf Association held a senior tournament last fall at Algonquin.

Louis Rosen, retiring president of the association, suggested that a fall tournament of some kind be held and one idea advanced was to invite 12 of the leading professionals in the country to come here to play for a substantial purse. The professional tournament last year, promoted by the district association and the Missouri Professional Golf Association, was too expensive and plans for a similar affair have been abandoned.

74 Left-Handed Pitchers on Trial In Major League Training Camps

Managers Apparently Consider Southpaws Fine Prospects—Harris, Remembering Work of Mogridge and Zachary, Has Added Three More to His Staff of Hurlers.

By Herman Wecke.

"Will 1925 be a left-handed year in baseball?" That is a question that suggests itself after a glance at the rosters of the 16 major league teams, showing the number of southpaws that will bid for regular berths. The figures show that no fewer than 74 left-handers will strive for places. Of this total, 42 are in the American and 32 in the National League.

The two St. Louis clubs have not overlooked the fact that a good left-handed pitcher is a valuable asset. At the Browns' Florida training camp, six kithogues are doing duty, and the chances are that at least three of this number will be retained. They are Danforth, Wingard and Giard. The others are Springer, Smith and Falk.

Branch Rickey has five on his staff. Eddie Dyer and Bill Sherdel are holdovers from a year ago. The most notable among the newcomers is the veteran Walter Mails, obtained from the Coast League. The others are Hallahan, who made a favorable impression at the Cardinal camp a year ago, and Clough, recalled from Fort Smith.

Harris Likes Southpaws.

In the American League, each team, excepting New York, has at least four southpaws on its roster. Washington, aided in winning the pennant and world's title by the work of Zachary and Mogridge, has added three more. The newcomers are Vean Gregg, 40 years old, who comes back from the Coast League after an absence of many seasons; "Dutch" Ruether, obtained from the Dodgers, and Brillheart, a youngster, recalled from the Virginia League.

Miller Huggins, who went through the 1924 season with but one southpaw, Herb Pennock, has added Ray Francis, who was up before, but who in 1924 hurled sensational ball in the Southern, and Duggan, a college graduate.

In numbers, Connie Mack leads all rivals. Connie has seven at the Florida camp. They are Baumgartner, Heimach and Meeker, holdovers, and Groves, Walberg, Willis and Cline, newcomers. Groves is the highest priced athlete brought to the big tent this season and is expected to prove a big aid to Mack. Walberg, from Milwaukee, also has a good chance to stick. Willis came from Martinsburg and Cline from Gloucester.

Cobb Has Five Left-Handers.

Detroit, which is expected to make a bid for the title, has five. They are the veteran Hub Leonard, Earl Whitehill and Ed Wells, two of the finds of last season, and Clark and Cole. Both of the last mentioned have been with the team before.

Cleveland has three stars in Shaute, Smith and Edwards, and in addition to this trio will try out Yowell, who finished with the club last fall; Miller and Clark, two Three-Eye League graduates. The Red Sox have Fuhr, Wiltse, Jamerson, Noonan and Sherman, while the White Sox own Cvengros, Davenport, Foreman and Hamilton.

John McGraw will again place his reliance in Art Nehf and Jack Bentley, a pair of stars of the first magnitude. In an effort to replace Ruether, the Dodgers will have five men trying for positions. They are Dutch Henry, former Brown; Green, McPhee, Schwartz, Hinkle and Williams.

In an effort to get some help for Emil Yde, the greatest pitching find of the 1924 season, and to replace Wilbur Cooper, the Pirates will try out Euliss, May and Songer. Each of this trio had a good record in the minors last season.

Cooper Now on Cub Roster.

The Cubs' southpaw ace will be Wilbur Cooper, former Pirate. Others to strive for positions are Dumovich, Jones, Milstead and Westnedge. Jones has been up before, but in 1924 labored in the Pacific Coast League. Milstead was with the club for a brief period last fall.

Eppa Rixey, Rube Benton and Jakie May will be the Red holdovers. Hendricks also has Clark, a newcomer. The Braves will have John Cooney, Rube Marquard and Batcheldor, while the Phillies have Mitchell, the only southpaw spitball pitcher in captivity, Pearce and Wolf, a St. Louis boy.

Millers Oppose Vespers in Title Contest Today

Foley's Eleven Will Clinch Championship With Victory —Scullins Play Raticans.

The soccer championship of St. Louis and the additional privilege of representing this city against the cup winner of the American Soccer League are honors which will revert to the winner of today's game between the Ben Millers and the Vespers at St. Louis University Field, Grand boulevard and Laclede avenue.

The Millers hold a one-point lead in the league race. One more league double-header will be played next Sunday, but if the Millers win today they will clinch the title.

Harry Ratican's greatly improved eleven will meet Tate Brady's Scullins in the first game of the double-header. Starting time will be 2 o'clock.

LONG SHOTS ENJOY FIELD DAY AT MIAMI RACE TRACK

Boon Companion Wins and Pays $26.55 to $1

Hot Dog Again Victorious and His Supporters Get 20 to 1.

PEGASUS NOSED OUT

King of the Spa, at 8 to 1, Captures President's Handicap and $2500 Purse.

MIAMI, Fla., March 7.—This, the last Saturday but one of the big meeting here, was a day of surprises. Favorites performed dismally and winners came from unexpected sources.

The big feature of the day was the President's Handicap, with a value of $2500 and a cup for the winner. King of the Spa, a most consistent 5-year-old, won it by a head from Pegasus, with an outsider, Barbara Palmer, five lengths back in third place. Sunsini, the favorite, finished fifth, the 121 pounds he shouldered evidently stopping him. He had little speed, however, at any stage and lost considerable ground by taking the overland route.

Collier Again Defeated.

Collier, the reputed New Orleans champion 2-year-old, met his second defeat in as many starts in the Oak Terrace, the juvenile feature. Grace H., after beating the barrier by five lengths, outrunning Collier in a thrilling finish to win by a nose.

Boon Companion was the big surprise in the Miami News Handicap, a six-furlong dash for 3-year-olds. He overtook the nimble-footed filly Myrtle Belle and had enough left to stall off the bid Ball Gee made in the closing strides. Boon Companion only got out of the maiden class last week. He paid $26.55 to $1 straight and $11.10 to $1 to place. Slow and Easy, who was about equal favorite with Myrtle Belle, was away too slowly to have a racing chance.

Hot Dog Pays 20 to 1.

G. W. Atkinson cut Polly Wales loose in the opening event at the fancy price of $17.65 to $1. Polly ran a good race here early in the meeting, but since she has performed glaringly bad.

Hot Dog came right back after his last winning race and took the sixth by a head from Seth's Ak Sar Ben and, just to keep the record on long-shot winners straight, paid an even 20 to 1 to win.

Two Derby Horses Fail at New Orleans.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW ORLEANS, March 7.—Leading every step of the journey and showing a smart form reversal over his preivous effort when ridden by Jockey Legere, Starbeck captured the Solid South Handicap feature race at the Jefferson Park this afternoon. The bay son of Troutbeck stepped the mile and one-sixteenth in 1:46 flat, which is within one-fifth of a second of the track record held by Sun God.

Racing very gamely all the way and beating the remainder of his field with ease came Parole II, considered a dangerous contender for Louisiana Derby honors. This bay son of Setback could not get within two lengths of Starbeck at the finish, but at the sixteenth pole it appeared as though he had a chance to get the large end of the purse.

High Water and Stirrup Cup, two Kentucky Derby candidates, battled for third money, finishing four lengths behind Parole II. High Water secured the small end, but he was but a neck in front of the Greentree stable eligible. On the showing of this pair it is evident that they do not stack up as derby candidates.

Marvin May Leads All the Way.

Marvin May, always a great favorite with local race patrons, raced in his best form in the Highway Purse, secondary feature of the day, and took the measure of a fair band of sprinters.

Seth's Treasure, a Louisiana Derby candidate, escaped interference in the fifth race, a high-priced claiming affair at one mile and running very gamely managed to hold on long enough to stand off the rush of Mid Western at the finish. Nassau made up a world of ground after meeting with much interference and dropped into the three hole. Batter Up was the choice for this even but he was knocked out of contention by a bad jam at the first turn.

Marcelline, even money choice, scored in easy fashion in the closing number of the day's program winning by four lenghts well in hand.

FALL RIVER OPPOSES NEW BEDFORD CLUB IN SOCCER CUP SEMIFINAL

NEW YORK, March 7.—The Fall River eleven, national soccer champions and leaders of the American League race, will meet one of the most severe tests of their career tomorrow when they meet the New Bedford club in a semifinal of the American Soccer League cup competition. Boston will oppose the Fleishers in the other semifinal next Sunday.

The game will be played at Providence and a record crowd is expected to attend.

60 Candidates for Piker Football Team Are Practicing Daily

A SQUAD of more than 60 aspirants for places on Washington University's football team are practicing on Francis Field every afternoon in preparation for the coming of Head Coach Robert Higgins, who will take charge March 16.

The practice is under the supervision of Dr. Edmunds, director of athletics, and Assistant Coach Davis. Ralph Walsh, captain of the 1924 eleven, is assisting.

The players are being taught the fundamentals of the game. The more promising candidates will be retained to form the squad which will work under Coach Higgins, while the men who show no aptitude for football will be dismissed. Coach Higgins will thereby be relieved of the trouble of cutting down his squad and will find his men already grounded in the essentials of the game.

Annual Dog Show to Open April 3

Prize List for Exhibition at Coliseum Contains Classes for 75 Breeds.

The Mississippi Valley Kennel Club's fourteenth annual show will be held Friday, Saturday and Sunday, April 3, 4 and 5, at the Coliseum. The prize list issued yesterday contains a complete classification for 75 breeds of dogs. In addition to 100 special prizes donoted by individuals and firms, more than $3000 is offered in cash prizes.

In conjunction with the regular show there will be held the annual shows of the St. Louis Beagle Club, the St. Louis Collie Club and the St. Louis Ladies' Boston Terrier Club for which special prizes will be given.

There will be daily field trials of shepherd, or more commonly called police dogs. In these trials the dogs will be judged as to their ability to attack and guard prisoners, as well as to their obedience and fearlessness, ability to jump, scale walls and to search for and retrieve objects within the enclosure.

The St. Louis Beagle Club has not yet selected judges for its show. Col. E. Lester Jones of the United States Army, Washington, will judge all hounds in the Mississippi Valley Kennel Club show, the judging to be in advance of the Beagle Club's closed show

FRIGERIO AND PLANT TO MEET AT 10,000 METERS

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 7.—Ugo Frigerio, Italian and Olympic champion walker, will meet Willie Plant, American champion, in a special 10,000-meter event late this month. Frigerio, who was scheduled to depart for Italy today, said he would remain to meet Plant.

The Morningside A. C., Plant's club, will hold a meet at which the walk will be the feature.

Frigerio has been eager to meet Plant at 10,000 meters, which he says is the distance for which he has been trained.

STATUS OF MERCANTILE LIBRARY IS EXPLAINED

Librarian Tells Tax Investigators All Its Income Is Spent in Operating.

William L. R. Gifford, librarian of Mercantile Library, told the legislative investigating committee inquiring into use of tax-exempt property for income producing business purposes at the city hall yesterday of the conditions concerning the library's six-story building at Broadway and Locust street, known as the First National Bank Building.

State Representatives Henri Chouteau and William R. Schneider of St. Louis were present, the third committee member being absent, Chouteau having instigated the inquiry.

Gifford said the library's charter, given in 1846 under an old State Constitution, exempted it from all general taxation. The library, he explained, occupies the sixth floor and part of the fifth floor of its building, leasing the rest to the First National Bank, under a lease running to 1938, for $52,500 a year. The bank subleases part of its space. The rest of the library's income is chiefly from dues, members paying $5 a year, or $100 for life memberships.

Income All Spent.

The sum of the rent and dues is only enough to meet the operating expenses of the library, Gifford declared. Its expenses have increased greatly in recent years, he said, adding that all the association's income goes to support the library. The building is free of debt. It was built on a 115x128-foot lot in 1889 at a cost of $383,000. It is assessed now at $300,000, and the lot at $630,500, a total of $930,500. If taxed, this would mean a tax revenue of about $23,000 a year.

Representative Chouteau asked if the charter did not specify a public library. Gifford replied that the meaning of this phrase was a library that any member of the public could join.

Louis Hilfer, president of the St. Louis Gymnastic Association, 1508 Chouteau avenue, told the committee that the charter of his turnverein, dating from 1855, exempted it from taxation, up to an assessment of $50,000. The value of the building is within that sum, he declared, and explained it was used for the educational and physical culture purposes of the association.

Status of Labor Lyceum.

Nathan Krupin, representing the Labor Lyceum Association, 1243 North Garrison avenue, explained that his organization, which bought its two-story building in 1917 for $5500, used it for meetings, a school for Jewish children, an educational and Americanization center, and for union meetings. The only revenue from the building consists of occasional donations from unions using it, he said, and no one in the organization is salaried. A pro forma decree of incorporation exempts it from taxation.

The committee will consider the exemption of Druids' Hall, Ninth and Market streets, next Saturday.

FISHERMAN DROWNS IN RIVER NEAR THE MUNICIPAL BRIDGE

Frank Wolf, 45 years old, a fisherman, living in a houseboat near the Municipal Bridge on the Illinois side, fell from a boat in which he was running fishing lines at 2:30 p. m. yesterday and was drowned.

Three other fishermen, Frank Prosplay, Joe Stravinsky and W. J. Conrad, also living in houseboats in the vicinity, went to his aid in boats, but attempts to revive him by his rescuers failed. His body was taken to an undertaking establishment at 126 Collinsville avenue, East St. Louis. According to the police, Wolf lived alone and had no known relatives.

Lee's Granddaughter Takes Poison.

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, March 7. — A young woman, who took poison in a subway station here early today, was identified this afternoon as Mary Lee Madden, said to be a granddaughter of the late Gen. Robert E. Lee. She is recovering in a hospital where she was identified by a sister, who is a nurse in Haddonfield, N. J., near here. The young woman came from the South last night and said she was despondent over family troubles. She refused to give her home address in the South, and the sister who made the identification also refused to talk.

A Richmond, Va., dispatch says friends of the Lee family there know of no such relative as Mary Lee Madden.

CLAY MINER AWARDED $25,000 FOR INJURIES IN EXPLOSION

Jury Returns Verdict Against Hydraulic Press Brick Co.—Worker Lost Sight of Eye.

Edward Goetz, a clay miner, of Rosebud, Mo., obtained a jury verdict for $25,000 yesterday in Circuit Judge Killoren's court against the Hydraulic Press Brick Co. for injuries suffered in an explosion in a clay mine near Rosebud nearly five years ago. The mine was owned by the Hydraulic Co.

The explosion was in a blacksmith shop of the mine, where dynamite and percussion caps were accidentally set off. Goetz alleged that he lost the sight of his right eye and was otherwise injured.

It was shown that in three months after the accident Goetz signed a paper purporting to release the company on receipt of $500. In Court he asserted that when he signed the paper he believed it was a document showing that the company was merely paying him salary he had lost as a result of his injuries. The defense further contended that the clay mine had been leased to Fred Janson, a contractor, and the company had no control over it.

In returning the verdict the jury subtracted from the amount the $500 plaintiff had received under the release, plus interest.

PAYS $140,000 ON HIS FINE

Conspirator With Ex-Ontario Treasurer in Bond Fraud.

By the Associated Press.

TORONTO, March 7.—Amelius Jarvis, who is serving 6 months at the County jail farm, paid today $140,000 of a $600,000 joint fine imposed when he and Peter Smith, former treasurer for Ontario province, were convicted of conspiracy to defraud the Provincial Government through bond transactions.

Through counsel, Jarvis maintained that the part of the fine he paid represented his actual profit in the bond deals, $116,000, plus interest at 5 per cent since the transactions. The $600,000 fine represented the total lost by the province through the conspiracy. Counsel for Jarvis told authorities that all profits over $116,000 were received by Andrew Peppall, who is in Los Angeles fighting extradition here for trial. Smith is serving three and one-half years at Portsmouth penitentiary.

Why Conroys Alone Give Conroy Values

1. Conroys is an independent institution, it has no outstanding obligations—or in plain English, it does not owe a penny.
2. Conroys has no common or preferred stock upon which handsome dividends must be paid.
3. Conroys buy for cash (often in advance) which results in a very obvious advantage to you.
4. Conroys are not owned or controlled by one or two factories—hence, every instrument must meet our rigid specifications or "back it goes."
5. Conroys have the pick of the piano industry—manufacturers invariably prefer cash customers.
6. Conroys unusual financial strength aids you in many ways—such as safety, satisfaction, values, prices, terms, etc. No carrying charges are included in Conroy contracts.

By Leased Wire from the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, March 7.—The Evening Post in its weekly copyrighted financial review, says:

"With such influences as changes in bank rates, the expiration of Congress and the inauguration mixed with each other, a certain confusion in the markets is not surprising. Taken in the large, the markets still act rather well. They have yet to display sustained weakness. Nevertheless, strength is less uniform than it was. Swift upward movements in spots have more of a professional appearance. There is an anxiety to take profits hurriedly in one place and to rush on for quick opportunities in another. The upward movement may not have reached its top, but it plainly is a different kind of a movement from that of last fall. Speculative considerations now unquestionably overshadow those of an investment character.

Consumers in Control.

"Money meanwhile remains reasonably cheap. Rates have firmed an eighth or so since the Reserve Bank increased its discount rate, but the spread between this market and London has been materially enlarged by the Bank of England's advance. The Federal Reserve statements indicate that the change in the local discount rate has produced exactly the kind of an adjustment that might have been expected. Discounts at the New York bank have fallen rather sharply, while those at the other regional banks have risen. The drain on the New York market has been relieved. The Federal reserve statements also show that the system still is losing gold. Nevertheless, the reserve ratio stands at 75.6 per cent, still a relatively high figure. Ample reserves of credit exist. Whether it will be made available to finance a further speculative movement remains to be seen.

"On the industrial side note must be taken of a recession in commodity prices. The indices after an advance that started last summer at last have come to a halt. That this recession corresponds to a pause in the industrial markets is reasonably clear. Production has reached an extremely high level, a level equal, in fact, to the previous high, which was reached at the culmination of the 1923 prosperity. This high rate of production is being maintained through the first quarter of the year. It has taken the edge off prices of certain leading industrial goods. Whether this will produce more than a minor corrective slackening is, perhaps, open to question. But that the circumstances furnish another convincing argument against the possibility of an inflationary boom is reasonably certain. Our industrial and transportation systems are working too efficiently and have too much surplus capacity to permit congestion and an artificial bidding up of prices. Sellers markets are not yet in sight. The consumer still has to be catered to.

Gold for Britain Nearer.

"The 5 per cent bank rate in London plainly is a step in the program for resuming gold payments at that center. Part of the British task is to attract balances to London and to show a confident intention of taking whatever steps are necessary to restore the pound sterling to parity. Any disappointment that may exist over the apparent delay in restoring parity is ill-founded. Well-posted observers have not expected any sudden or dramatic developments. The legislation suspending specie payments does not expire until the end of the year. Britain's intention will be displayed before then; it is already, in fact, being displayed, but there need be no undue haste in pushing the exchange up to the old parity. The part of wisdom is to absorb profit-taking before that level is reached. Similarly, the apprehensions that are being displayed in London need not be taken too seriously. They are perfectly natural, since the resumption of a free gold market is a step of great magnitude. After all, the pound sterling is going back to par because the British budget has been balanced and because the sum of British income in the international markets exceeds the sum of British payments. The recovery is based on a solid economic foundation. Whatever aid or co-operation is given on this side will be merely of a temporary or equalizing character. It will be aid such as Britain's credit position enables her easily to command.

Exchanges Quiet.

"The leading financial markets closed the week without developments of particular moment. Foreign exchanges were firm, commodities rallied moderately from recent heavy selling, and stocks turned irregularly in increased volume of profit-taking, a usual weekend phenomenon, especially when a good advance has been made in the fore part of the week. At the start most issues were firm and gains of a point or so were numerous. Selling at this higher price was rather vigorous but the market took it well and at the close the general tone was no worse than irregular. There were, however, a few sharp movements. Wilson & Co. issues jumped about in a sensational manner, the preferred at one time showing an advance of nearly 20 points over the previous close. Reports that a reorganization of the company is imminent stimulated the buying. Interborough issues were weak, but St. Pauls were steadier. Trading both in stocks and bonds was only moderately active.

Excess Reserves Decrease.

"Foreign exchanges were stagnant, the only thing of interest being a further rally in French francs. Francs rose 1½ points to 5.20½ cents, a gain on the week of 9 points. Strength here followed a recovery at London, which was attributed to recovering of recent commitments on the short side. Italian lire were easier despite reports from Rome that the Government would take further active support measures. Sterling at $4.76⅝ was unchanged, and other leading Europeans held at the previous quotations.

"The statement of the New York Clearing House as of the close of business March 7 showed the following changes: Loans, discounts, investments, decreased $17,240,000; net demand deposits decreased $34,193,000; time deposits decreased $5,871,000; circulation increased $65,000 and excess reserves decreased $84,329,020.

Dry Goods Market Review.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 7.—The largest manufacturers of Southern gingham today announced an advance of 1 cent a yard in the four fall deliveries, in keeping with prices named by Eastern mills earlier in the week. Denims sold freely for delivery in the second quarter of the year. Yarns showed some improvement in demand. Raw silk was unchanged. Silks, wash fabrics, printed goods and sheetings continued to gain in sales. Linens were ordered moderately for forward delivery.

Metals at St. Louis.

Lead last quoted at $8.75 per 100 pounds in St. Louis.

Slab zinc last quoted at $7.50 per 100 pounds.

New York Sugar.

NEW YORK, March 7.—New high records for the year were established in the raw sugar market today when prices advanced another 1-16 cent to the basis of 4.84 for both spot and future shipments. Sales included 25,000 bags of Cuban for first half of March shipment to refiners and 20,000 bags, second half, to an operator.

Raw sugar futures advanced 2 to 4 points early on buying by houses with Cuban connections prompted by the strength of raws, but met heavy liquidation and later eased off. Final prices were unchanged to 3 points net lower. March closed 3.06c; May 3.14c; July 3.29c; September 3.43c.

The refined sugar market was unchanged at 6.00 to 6.10 for fine granulated, with good withdrawals, but only light new business reported. Some refiners were said to be still accepting business below list quotations.

Refined futures were firmer with sales of five lots for May delivery at 6.50c.

Bond Market Review

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 7.—Reports that a reorganization plan for Wilson & Co., Chicago packers now in receivership, soon would be effective brought a brisk rally in the company's bonds today following a spectacular spurt in the preferred stock. The 7½ per cent liens which recently have scored a substantial advance, extended their gains five points and the convertible 6s moved up 1⅝. Other price movements were irregular, with most of the railroad issues tending lower. Opposition from several sources to the inclusion of the Chesapeake & Ohio Railroad in the Nickel Plate merger continued to promote selling of the former's convertible bonds.

Clearings, Money, Silver

The St. Louis Clearing House Association reported clearings for March 7, $18,200,000; corresponding day last year, $21,100,000; this year, $1,410,900,000; corresponding period last year, $1,330,900,000. Reports of debits for March 6, 1925, were: Debits to individual accounts, $29,000,000; total to date, $1,617,600,000; debits to bank and bankers' accounts, $18,300,000; total to date, $1,000,400,000; combined debits for today, $47,300,000; total to date for individual and bank and bankers' accounts, $2,618,000,000.

ACTION OF RADIO SHARES FEATURE OF CURB TRADE

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 7.—The market on the Curb Exchange displayed a steady tone at the opening today and issues that had been supplied freely in recent sessions found support and scored substantial gains. There were a few issues that demanded prominence. Glen Alden Coal and Middle West Utilities improved 3¼ points in the opening proceedings. Several radio concerns were up about 2 points from the previous closing.

Most activity in the petroleum group was confined to the lower-priced issues. There was a firm tone to the general list, but trading was in reduced volume.

Ignoring the radio group in market movements on the Curb Exchange, the important features of the trading during the week were the vigorous advances in prices in many of the leading issues. Some of the higher-class stocks were in urgent demand, reflecting absorption by strong interests, and several made new high records.

Bucyrus was a feature, advancing 20 points to 144. American Car and Foundry new stock rose 13 points. National Power and Light had an advance of 16 points and Commonwealth Power moved up 5 points. Brooklyn Borough Gas sold at 68½, a gain of 12¼ points from its last preceding sale. Glen Alden Coal was in scant supply and rose 9 points to the new high record of 148. There was heavy trading all through the week in United Profit Sharing, which rose 3 points to 11¼.

Petroleum stocks generally moved within a narrow range, with the high-priced stocks firmly held and showing pronounced strength. Vacuum was a strong feature early in the week, moving up from 91 to 94¼. Cities Service showed a loss of 6 points. Gibson Oil continued in steady demand, holding at its high level.

The peculiar situation, observers said, was presented of statements of heavy earnings being published by many radio companies at a time when those stocks were without a market and were crumbling away in their quoted values. Many radio issues showed losses of 5 points or more following previous declines.

HOGS RISE FROM $11.50 TO $14.75 IN TWO WEEKS

Livestock prices again ranged upward at the St. Louis National Stockyards last week. Combined receipts, though slightly larger than the previous week, were still comparatively light, and 24,942 head under a year ago.

In spite of a slight increase in hog receipts during the week just closed, the market advanced $1.50 to $1.75 per cwt. Runs at St. Louis held up better than at other points, but the general shrinkage in receipts everywhere is responsible for the sharp upturn in prices. The week's total offering locally aggregated 66,000 head, against 58,000 the preceding week and 93,000 same week a year ago. Since the opening of 1925 total hog receipts at St. Louis amount to 740,000 head, against 1,046,000 corresponding period in 1924. Eleven principal Western markets have received a total of 575,000 hogs the past week against 707,000 the preceding week.

Order buyers and city butchers furnished the best competition from day to day and usually set the pace for the big packers to follow. The latter were inclined to try and stem the steady upturn in prices, but when they saw it was a case of "follow the market" or get no hogs to kill, they stepped in and paid the price. The low spot in the week's trade was at the opening Monday when the top was $12.90 and bulk of sales $12.50 to $12.85. The week's high spot was Saturday, with a top of $14.25, and the bulk of sales ranging $14 @14.15. A feature of the week's trade was the continued narrowing in the spread between finished hogs, 220 lbs. and upward and the medium and lighter butcher weights, 190 to 220 lbs. At times this almost disappeared or at best did not exceed 10c to 15c per cwt. Quality seems to be becoming more of a factor governing the price spread than does weight. For this reason quotations for various weights are "overlapping" more than they did all autumn and winter. Buyers took hold of the pigs and light stuff more readily all week. The demand for stock pigs from garbage feeders is in excess of the supply, but no great call for pigs is coming from the country despite the fact that many sections are admittedly short of pig supplies. Doubtless the recent sharp advances in prices of pigs has had much to do with frightening country buyers away from the little immature stuff. The present upward swing in hog prices began Feb. 20, when the top was $11.50. In a trifle over two weeks the general market has advanced $2.50 to $2.75 per cwt., one of the swiftest upturns noted in years. At the week's close the various classes of hogs, good to choice quality, sold as follows: Butcher hogs, 190 lbs and upward, $14 to $14.25; shippers and light butchers, 160 to 190 lbs, $13.75 to $14; light lights, 150 to 160 lbs, $13.50 to $13.75; pigs, 120 to 140 lbs. $13.25 to $13.50; pigs, 120 lbs and down, $10 to $13.25; Packing sows, $12.50 to $12.85; stags, $10 to $10.75.

Cattle Prices Advance.

Sharp advances again characterized the trade in cattle, it being the third consecutive week in which markets have responded in this manner. Selling was brisk from day to day and early clearances were the rule. As in previous weeks, the most pronounced gain was in beef steers, light steers and heifers, and beef cows. The average rise in these classes was 50c to 75c. Stocker and feeder steers, beef and bologna bulls, and canner and cutter cows gained about 25c. During the past three weeks beef steers, light yearlings and beef cows have appreciated $1 to $2. Consignments during the past week consisted mainly of common, medium and fair quality. Beef steers bulked at $7.50@9.50 per cwt., while the best drove available brought $10.60. Light steers and heifers were also most numerous at $7.50 to $9.50, while the best scored $10@10.25. Beef cows ranged from $4.25@8.50, with $5.00@6.50 taking most. Cutter cows were valued at $3.25@4.00, and canners at $2.25 to $3.00. Bologna bulls of medium to good quality commanded $4.25 to $5.00 for the most part and good weight beef offering appeared mainly at $5.00 @5.50. Thin, lightweight bulls were available at $3.00@4.00. Stocker and feeder cattle advanced 25c under an exceedingly light supply. Selling was somewhat limited. Steers varied mainly from $5.00@8.00; cows appeared at $3.25@4.50; heifers at $3.75@5.00, and bulls at $3.50@5.50. Veal calves started the week on a $13.00@13.25 basis, reached $13.50@14.00 mid-week, and then closed on a basis in line with the week's opening. Southern canner yearlings were unchanged at $3@4.00.

Limited Sheep Offering.

Usually at this season light supplies of sheep and lambs are noted on the local market, but this year offerings are unusually limited. It is evident the high price of corn last fall frightened off the local men who might have fed out Western sheep and lambs. The week's run totals 5000 head, compared with 2388 the preceding week and 4432 same week a year ago. Eleven principal markets had a total of 205,700 sheep this week, against 228,000 the previous week. Fully two-thirds of the week's local arrival consisted of either stock direct to packers or else to local feed lots, leaving the salable supply not to exceed 1000 head. The light run resulted in active markets from day to day and the situation in control of sellers. For the week lambs closed around 25c higher and the fat handy-weight ewes put on 50c to 75c. Practically no aged wethers got in. A few Western lambs sold at $18 during the week going to city butchers. Some natives also notched the same figure. Bulk of the native lambs, however, sold at $16 to $17.50; few feeding lambs cleared at $16. A string of fancy ewes sold at $10.50, an outside price, but there was quite a sprinkling of ewes around $10.25 for the handy-weight kinds. The heavy ewes sold mainly around $9. Cull and common lambs sold at $14 to $15.50, while a good grade of choppers made up to $7. Most of the choppers, however, sold around $6. Bucks showed no change all week, $6 being the popular price. Canners moved at $3.50 to $4. The season for shearing is close at hand, and offerings of shorn lambs are due ere long. Very few goats arrived all week, and quotations for these are largely nominal.

Good to choice lambs quoted $16@18; fair to good lambs, $15@16; culls and common lambs, $12@15; skip lambs, $3@10; handy-weight mutton ewes, $9@10.25; heavy ewes, $8@9; choppers and bucks, $5@6; canner sheep, $3@4; good to choice Angora goats, fat, $3.50@4; fat Angora kids, $6@7; fat hair goats, $3@3.50; fat hair kids, $5@6.50; thin and common goats, $1@2.

PRICES FOR MOST PART ARE HIGHER AT CLOSE OF WEEK ON LOCAL STOCK MARKET

ST. LOUIS STOCK EXCHANGE, March 7.—Pedigo-Weber led the local stocks in activity during the past week, interest in the shares of this shoe company being prompted by the declaration of an extra dividend of 50 cents. Securities Investment common was prominent in the week's trade, being both firm and active. Hydraulic Brick preferred ranged higher. The week's trade on the exchange, in the aggregate, was about on par with previous week. Gains in prices predominated.

Total sales of stocks on the Exchange during the week amounted to 8505 shares. Bond sales were $87,000.

Following is a complete list of securities traded in on the Exchange during the past week, sales, highest, lowest closing prices and net changes being given:

Foreign Exchange

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, March 7.—The Evening Post in its weekly copyrighted foreign exchange review says:

"The market all through the week shifted in its tone and movement alternating between strength and weakness, and the changes in some cases early in the week carried rates down to new low levels for the year. These movements were to a great extent governed by the action of French exchange in which there was heavy selling, apparently in the interests of the Government, forcing checks on Paris down to 5.02½, but when this selling was completed the rate was rapidly bid up, advancing to 5.16 yesterday. It was insisted by those concerned in a good part of the trading that the early selling was a matter of necessity in order to provide funds in dollars for French account in this city.

"Italian also made a new low for the year on a decline to 3.98½ on Tuesday and then had a sharp advance to 4.08½, and Belgium in the same way, selling below 5 cents when French and Italian were weak and then moving sharply in the past few days.

"Sterling was heavy in the first half of the week, but after the announcement of the increase in the Bank of England rate, a step which was construed as assuring the retention of credits in London, there was an advance of nearly 2 cents, carrying demand up to $4.77½ against its low of $4.75¾ at the beginning of the week. Part of this gain was lost in yesterday's trading when there was a moderate supply of commercial bills. Greek exchange was without nearby demand and was quoted as low as 1.52 for drachmas, but there was little business transacted and it was generally assumed that with the clearing of the tension between Greece and Turkey that the rate would have a good recovery. Japanese continued to reflect the influence of the Government measures, yen checks moving up from 39.63 to 40.37.

WHEAT COURSE IRREGULAR ON THE CHICAGO MARKET

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, March 7.—All that can be said of the wheat market is that it is a liquidating one and no one knows when longs will finish evening up. Confidence was returning early in the day when reports of big export sales led to enough buying to take care of meager offerings but when selling appeared prices collapsed more rapidly than yesterday. On the break excellent support developed and prices recovered again. The buying around $1.77 for May was largely by commission houses and new investment buying. Other grains followed the trend of wheat and provisions also were affected by the action of the grain markets.

After selling at $2.02 on Monday for May wheat, the market seemed to develop a sinking spell. Around $2 buyers were hard to interest and from that time on there was a steady decline which developed into a rout yesterday and partly today. The theoretical shortage so often spoken about by bulls for months past is rather slow in materializing and this is the cause for the liquidation that has been so drastic during the entire week. The early market today was strong. A revival of confidence was in the air when it was learned that Liverpool had declined equal only to 8 cents a bushel yesterday and today and that the continent had bought heavily of United States wheat sales being estimated as high as 3,000,000 bu. Weakness in Winnipeg developed in the last hour and this started a renewal of liquidation that carried prices off sharply, but under $1.80 for May. A noticeable broadening in commission house buying developed and this led to a recovery of most of the decline and closing prices were unchanged to ½c lower. Compared with a week ago prices were 4¼c to 19⅜c lower, May showing the largest decline. May closed at $1.80¼ to $1.81, July $1.62¼ to $1.62½ and September, $1.49¼ to $1.49¾.

Corn followed the trend of wheat. An effort was made to stimulate buying this week because of the sharp advance in hog prices. There was quite a little broadening in buying power noticed, but the advances were dissipated when longs lost their courage because of the break in wheat. Prices today were unchanged to ¼c higher, but for the week they were 5⅛c to 6¾c lower. May closed at $1.28¾ to $1.28⅞, July $1.31 to $1.31⅝ and September $1.30½ to $1.30⅝. The cash market continues weak.

Oats followed the trend of other grains most of the session, although there seemed to be good support on most dips throughout the week. Big stocks in sight tend to cause a bearish feeling. Closing prices were ¼c to 1¾c lower, and compared with a week ago were 1⅞c to 4⅞c lower. Shipping sales were 45,000 bushels.

Provisions had a sharp opening advance. The break in grain led to liquidation and all the early gains were wiped out. The feature this week has been the advance in hogs, and this led to much buying of an investment character. Closing prices were 10c to 17½c lower for lard, 5c lower for ribs and unchanged for bellies. Compared with a week ago lard was 32½c to 40c higher, ribs $1.25 to $1.30 higher and bellies 60c to 65c higher.

COTTON PRICES IRREGULAR ON NEW YORK MARKET

NEW YORK, March 7.—Prospects for rain in the Southwest over Sunday led to reactions from an opening advance in the cotton market today, but after selling off from 25.95c to 25.82c, May rallied to 25.90c in the late trading and closed at 25.90c. The general market closed steady at a net advance of 1 to 10 points.

The market opened steady at an advance of 4 to 15 points in response to very firm Liverpool cables, prospects for continued large exports as indicated by shipboard figures, and reports of a continued firm market for cotton goods. July sold up to 26.16c and October to 25.46c, but these prices attracted a good deal of realizing for over-the-week-end and the selling of this sort was stimulated by the forecast for rain in Texas. For a time the market seemed rather unsettled, with July selling off to 26.02c and October to 25.32c, or a few points under yesterday's closing quotations. Except for realizing, however, selling was restricted by bullish spot advances, and rain prospects did not influence the market after early offerings had been absorbed. At any rate, prices firmed up, reaching the highest figures of the day in the late trading when July sold at 26.22c and October at 25.53c. Closing prices were several points off from the best under renewed realizing.

According to cable advices received in the trade from Japan today, Japanese spinners have found the quality of East Indian cotton unsatisfactory, with a good demand for American likely in consequence. These advices were considered in line with the views expressed in some quarters here that relatively high prices for the better grades of East Indian cotton will result in an increased use of American this season in the Far East and on the Continent.

The amount of cotton on shipboard awaiting clearance at the end of the week was estimated at 155,198 bales, against 77,494 last year.

Private cables said the strength in Liverpool was due to trade calling and a big spot demand. Sales of spot cotton in Liverpool as officially reported were 15,000 bales including 11,000 American, representing the largest day's business for several months.

NEW YORK, March 7.—Cotton spot steady; middling, 26.05c.

New York Coffee.

NEW YORK, March 7.—Coffee futures opened today at a decline of 6 points to an advance of 9 points. Further scattering liquidation was reported, but after selling at 19.70c at the start, May rallied to 19.80c on covering and a renewal of demand from houses with European and Brazilian connection. The market closed at a net advance of 6 to 20 points. Sales were estimated at 25,000. Closing quotations: March, 20.96c; May, 19.80c; July, 18.70c; September, 17.75c; December, 17.12c.

MAY WHEAT HAS 7-[illegible] RANGE, ENDING LOWER

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, March 7.—Wheat ran an erratic course in the week-end session and finally closed lower. May went as low as $1.75¾ on a break that followed higher opening. The early advance was credited to report of export business having been put through on yesterday's slump and to failure of Liverpool to fully reflect the break in American markets yesterday. Covering also helped the early market. Corn closed unchanged to higher.

In the cash grain market wheat prices were nominally unchanged, there being practically no demand. Offerings were carried over with exception of a car or two. Cash corn was 1c higher to 2c lower in slow market. Oats were 1½c to 2c lower. Trade was slow.

Open 1½c to 2c higher after yesterday's net loss of 11 cents May wheat sold back to previous day's close and then rebounded fractionally shortly after the start. July wheat showed gain of more than 1 cent early. Corn early was unchanged to fractionally higher. Liverpool closed [illegible] lower on May and 2d down on July wheat. Winnipeg wheat prices were down [illegible] Yesterday's break in American markets was credited largely to heavy shipments from competing countries and outlook for [illegible]ture in middle west.

The three Northwestern markets combined had 523 cars of wheat, compared with 516 a week ago and 467 last year. Minneapolis received 155 cars, Duluth [illegible] and Winnipeg 315.

Local wheat receipts, which were [illegible] 100 bushels, compared with 145,[illegible] week ago and 65,000 last year, included 49 cars local and 28 through. Corn receipts, which were 128,800 bushels, compared with 257,600 a week ago and [illegible]028 last year, included 26 cars local and 66 through. Oats receipts, which were 72,000 bushels, compared with 138,000 a week ago and 108,000 last year, included 17 cars local and 19 through. Hay receipts were 28 cars local and 7 through.

May wheat opened today at $1.8[illegible] 1.81¾; July wheat $1.60; May corn $1.[illegible] and July corn $1.30.

Trade in Your Old Piano at Full Cash Value

WHEN Hans Adam Wurlitzer, in the year 1732, designed the violins that brought him fame and caused him to be honored by the Saxon guild with the title "Master Violin Maker," he laid the foundation for the superior quality of the Wurlitzer Pianos of today.

FROM that early date to the present time eight generations of the Wurlitzer family have carried on in the work begun by the old Master violin maker, extending into all branches of musical instrument making.

The Kingston has a tone of bell-like clarity in the middle and upper registers, richly sonorous in the bass, and marked throughout with the true singing quality, which is so much sought after, but never found except where true artistry has entered into the making of the instrument.

[illegible]oreign Debt a [illegible] International I[illegible] France Talks [illegible]

Washington Firmly [illegible] Which Would Thro[illegible] America, With $12[illegible] Whole Thing Is in a[illegible]

By a Washington Correspo[illegible]

RECENT weeks have seen a p[illegible] water and the other, about t[illegible] owed to this country on accou[illegible] but apparently the problem [illegible] this debt—the larger portion—[illegible] Certain facts, however, have [illegible] made clear by the discussion [illegible] the British House of Commons, [illegible] French Chamber of Deputies [illegible] the American Congress. One [illegible] the certainty that the foreign [illegible] will remain a source of irritation, a constant incitement to inflammatory utterances both here [illegible] in Europe, so long as a preponderant part of it remains in its present form of "demand" obligations, instead of being funded in bonds of fixed maturity.

This means, practically speaking, that the debt will be an international breeder of ill will until France follows the lead of England and enters into a definite agreement covering her debt of [illegible]00,000,000. Thus far, France [illegible] made no gesture that would indicate a desire to start the negotiation of such an agreement.

The exchange of felicitations between President Coolidge and the new French Ambassador, [illegible]ile Daeschner, on Jan. 30 last [illegible]used hopes in American officials that France was about to make a concrete proposal looking toward a debt settlement, but [illegible]thing of that sort has yet developed. So far as known, France [illegible] edged no nearer to a settlement than M. Daeschner's carefully worded expression of the mutual solicitude of France and America, "Whenever the case [illegible]" to pay "their material [illegible]" as well as their debts of [illegible]titude.

[illegible]2,000,000,000 Due U. S.

Another fact that stands ou[illegible] [illegible]rly in the fog of recent dis[illegible]sion is the opposition of the [illegible]erican people—if the words o[illegible] [illegible]ir representatives in Congres[illegible] be taken as a criterion—t[illegible] cancellation. President Cool[illegible] expressed this attitude whe[illegible] said to the French Ambassa[illegible] in reply to the latter's greet[illegible] that "both Government[illegible] [illegible]ld experience deep satisfac[illegible] in their solicitude that mate[illegible] debts shall be discharged." [illegible] his cue from what he be[illegible] to be the sentiment of the [illegible]try and of Congress, the [illegible]sident has let it be known re[illegible]tedly that he is opposed, o[illegible] one hand, to any shylockia[illegible] [illegible]sure to collect the debt, and [illegible]ally opposed, on the othe[illegible] to any scheme involving [illegible] repudiation or cancellation.

There is now owing to the Unit[illegible] States by foreign countries, [illegible] [illegible]cipal and accrued interest, ap[illegible]imately $12,000,000,000. Th[illegible] [illegible]cipal debt is something ove[illegible] [illegible],500,000,000. This falls int[illegible] classes—and this classific[illegible] is important, because it co[illegible] a common misconceptio[illegible] the whole debt was incurre[illegible] the purchase of war suppli[illegible] [illegible] the war.

MAY WHEAT HAS 7-C. RANGE, ENDING LOWER

ST LOUIS MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, March 7.—Wheat ran an erratic course at the week-end session and finally closed lower. May went as low as $1.75⅝ on a break that followed higher opening. The early advance was credited to report of export business having been put through on yesterday's slump and to failure of Liverpool to fully reflect the break in American markets yesterday. Covering also helped the early market. Corn closed unchanged to higher.

In the cash grain market wheat prices were nominally unchanged, there being practically no demand. Offerings were carried over with exception of a car or so. Cash corn was 1c higher to 2c lower in slow market. Oats were 1¼c to 2c lower. Trade was slow.

Open 1½c to 2c higher after yesterday's net loss of 11 cents May wheat sold back to previous day's close and then rebounded fractionally shortly after the start. July wheat showed gain of more than 1 cent early. Corn early was unchanged to fractionally higher. Liverpool closed 2⅛ lower on May and 2d down on July wheat. Winnipeg wheat prices were down early. Yesterday's break in American markets was credited largely to heavy shipments by competing countries and outlook for moisture in middle west.

The three Northwestern markets combined had 523 cars of wheat, compared with 516 a week ago and 467 last year. Minneapolis received 155 cars, Duluth 53 and Winnipeg 315.

Local wheat receipts which were 100,100 bushels, compared with 145,600 a week ago and 65,000 last year, included 49 cars local and 28 through. Corn receipts, which were 128,800 bushels, compared with 257,600 a week ago and 73,028 last year, included 26 cars local and 66 through. Oats receipts, which were 72,000 bushels, compared with 138,000 a week ago and 108,000 last year, included 17 cars local and 19 through. Hay receipts were 28 cars local and 7 through.

May wheat opened today at $1.82@1.81⅝; July wheat $1.60; May corn $1.26, and July corn $1.30.

Foreign Debt a Breeder of International Ill Will While France Talks but Does Nothing

Washington Firmly Opposes Cancellation, Which Would Throw Most of War Cost on America, With $12,000,000,000 Due Her; Whole Thing Is in a Hopeless Muddle.

By a Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, March 7.

RECENT weeks have seen a plethora of talk, on this side of the water and the other, about the foreign debt of $12,000,000,000 owed to this country on account of advances during and since the r but apparently the problem presented by the unfunded portion this debt—the larger portion—is as far as ever from solution.

Certain facts, however, have made clear by the discussion the British House of Commons, French Chamber of Deputies the American Congress. One the certainty that the foreign t will remain a source of irri- ion, a constant incitement to in- mmatory utterances both here in Europe, so long as a pre- derant part of it remains in its ent form of "demand" obliga- s, instead of being funded in- bonds of fixed maturity.

This means, practically speak- that the debt will be an inter- onal breeder of ill will until nce follows the lead of En- d and enters into a definite ement covering her debt of 00,000,000. Thus far, France made no gesture that would icate a desire to start the nego- ion of such an agreement.

The exchange of felicitations ween President Coolidge and new French Ambassador, ile Daeschner, on Jan. 30 last, sed hopes in American of- ials that France was about to a concrete proposal looking rd a debt settlement, but ing of that sort has yet de- ped. So far as known, France edged no nearer to a settle- t than M. Daeschner's care- worded expression of the mu- solicitude of France and rica, "Whenever the case s" to pay "their material s" as well as their debts of itude.

2,000,000,000 Due U. S.

nother fact that stands out ly in the fog of recent dis- on is the opposition of the rican people—if the words of r representatives in Congress be taken as a criterion—to cancellation. President Cool- expressed this attitude when id to the French Ambassa- in reply to the latter's greet- that "both Governments ld experience deep satisfac- n their solicitude that mate- debts shall be discharged." his cue from what he be- to be the sentiment of the try and of Congress, the ident has let it be known re- dly that he is opposed, on one hand, to any shylockian ure to collect the debt, and lly opposed, on the other , to any scheme involving repudiation or cancellation.

There is now owing to the Unit- tates by foreign countries, in ipal and accrued interest, ap- mately $12,000,000,000. The ipal debt is something over 00,000,000. This falls into classes—and this classifica- is important, because it cor- a common misconception the whole debt was incurred the purchase of war supplies g the war.

First, there is the money ad- ed in cash, under the Liberty acts, both during and after war; second, the debt repre- advances through the Ameri- Relief Administration after armistice for the purchase of supplies; third, the sales of s war materials after the ar- ; fourth, the sales of flour h the United States Grain ation, and fifth, advances h the United States Ship- Board for transportation.

ion Since War.

far the largest item of is the amount made up of vances—a total of about 00,000—but it should be at these advances covered the period from America's entrance into the war to the armistice, but more than a year thereafter. The extension of credits after the armistice was the subject of some criticism in Congress, notably by Senator Reed of Missouri, but its legality could not be successfully attacked; all the advances were made by the Secretary of the Treasury under specific authority given by the Liberty bond acts.

The fact that some of the indebtedness of some of the European nations was incurred, not for the purchase of munitions but for peace-time rehabilitation is now being cited as one of the arguments against a general cancellation. Take the case of France, for example. The debt of France to the United States when the armistice was signed was $2,000,000,000. She received after that date, in cash advances under the Liberty bond acts, nearly $1,000,000,000. France also received $400,000,000 worth of surplus war materials, for which she gave the United States her note, bearing 5 per cent interest after the first year. She has scrupulously met the interest payments on this obligation as they have fallen due. On the cash advances her arrears of interest, on Nov. 15 last, amounted to close to $800,000,000.

France's View.

France's formal recognition of the one obligation, coupled with her manifest desire to effect a scaling down of the others, suggests the distinction that French policy is drawing between "material" and "political" debts. This distinction, which has colored the whole of French discussion of the debt, became a matter of record in the national balance sheet which Finance Minister Clementel submitted on Dec. 27 last. Omission from the budget of the "political" debts owed by France to Great Britain and the United States, caused a flare-up of criticism in the American Congress and negatived the good impression which had been made a few days before by a speech of the retiring French Ambassador, Jules Jusserand, who while pleading the need of a moratorium, declared that France intended to pay.

France's contention, briefly, is that the cost of the war to the Allied and Associated Powers should be apportioned among the Powers in accordance with the national riches of each. She maintains that France should receive credit for the fact that her soil was the common battleground. She points out that the Governments of Great Britain and the United States collected large sums in taxes by virtue of expenditures made by France in those countries, and asserts that the total of these taxes should be deducted from the French debt.

Attention is called to the 15,000,000,000 francs which France advanced to her allies and which remain unpaid. A further argument stresses the impossibility of beginning payments while much of the devastated region of France remains to be reconstructed and

LONGWORTH WINS WAY TO SPEAKERSHIP OVER HANDICAPS

Picked for Political Oblivion After Marriage to Alice Roosevelt, Ohio Congressman Has Climbed Ladder Through Regularity to Party and Squareness.

Popular With Both Republicans and Democrats; Leaves Public Affairs Behind and Plays Violin, Even for Friends; Wears Spats and Likes to Hike.

By CHARLES G. ROSS.
Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, March 7.

WHEN "Nick" Longworth, a comparatively obscure young Congressman from Ohio, was married in the White House to "Princess Alice," a great many people thought that he had incurred, as an offset to marital felicity and increased social prestige, a fatal political disability; he was destined to be known through the rest of his life, they said, merely as the husband of Alice and the son-in-law of Roosevelt.

These prophets didn't know Nick, and neither did they know Alice. Jointly and severally, the politically sagacious couple declined to let the name and fame of Roosevelt swallow up the identity of Nick Longworth. The gentleman from Ohio went his own gait. In 1912, when he was running for re-election to Congress, he had to choose between the presidential candidacies of his most distinguished constituent, William Howard Taft, and his father-in-law, Theodore Roosevelt. Having been nominated in a regular Republican primary, Longworth went along with the regular Republican candidate. There you have two of the secrets of Longworth's political success—his political regularity and his personal indebtedness.

On his own merits, Nick Longworth, whom the prophets consigned to political oblivion in 1906, has gone forward to the point where he is not only completely dissociated from the Roosevelt tradition, but can found a tradition of his own. A Republican caucus in February chose him as the party candidate for the speakership of the next House of Representatives. As the Republicans will have a clear majority in the next House, the nomination was the same as election. At the uncommonly early age of 55, Nick Longworth—it might as well be said now that everybody in Washington calls him Nick—will sit in the seat that men of the political caliber of Henry Clay, James G. Blaine, Thomas B. Reed, "Czar" Cannon and Champ Clark were proud to occupy. Already it is being said that Nick Longworth will make it a springboard to higher honors.

February was a fateful month for Longworth. Not only did it bring him victory in the contest for the speakership, but it made him a father, after a married life of 19 years. Seldom is there such a rounding out of a man's life within so brief a time. The birth of a baby to Nick and Alice is a highly interesting fact in itself; equally interesting, and more significant for the purposes of this sketch, is the fact that the baby was named Paulina. Paulina, be it noted, is not a Roosevelt family name. Its selection by Mrs. Longworth is a new indication of the aid she has given her husband in maintaining his own identity.

No Traditional Qualifications.

The possession of a famous father-in-law was not the only handicap that Longworth had to overcome in his march upward to the speakership. He was not born on a farm, he did not teach a country school and he did not feel the pangs of hunger in his youth. On the contrary, he was born to the possession of comfortable wealth and he went to Harvard. To cap the climax of his nonconformity to accepted American political tradition, he wears spats. His spats suggest a story. When he was a candidate for the majority leadership of the House, some of his friends, fearing that the spats might have a bad effect on the radical vote in the House, advised him to get rid of them.

"Go look at La Follette," said Nick, and there was no possible comeback. La Follette also affects them.

For generations back, the Longworths have been prominent people—"big" people—in Cincinnati. Land and culture came down to Nick by inheritance. The way was open for him to become a rich idler or at best a dilettante in politics. He elected, first, to become a lawyer. His father, grandfather and great-grandfather all were lawyers, so that Nick's own choice of the profession seemed to him to have been predestined. After taking the bachelor of arts degree at Harvard, in 1891, he studied in the Harvard Law School and later in the Cincinnati Law School, from which he received his law degree in 1894.

NICHOLAS LONGWORTH

He practiced law in Cincinnati for four or five years and then went actively and seriously into politics—into politics as a profession. There is a great difference between going into politics as a side line, and going into it as a life work. Young Longworth did the latter. Many of the rich young men who invade the political field attach themselves to some reform movement. They go into the "game" of politics and remain forever amateurs. Longworth started in as a practical, regular politician, and that is what he has been ever since.

Politics His Profession.

In the practice of politics as a vocation, he has had almost unbroken success. He first went to the Ohio House of Representatives and then to the State Senate. He began getting elected to Congress in 1902, when he was 33 years old, and with the exception of one term he has served continuously ever since. His one defeat was in 1912, the year of the Taft-Roosevelt split. From a high place on the Ways and Means Committee, he rose to the majority leadership, the position he held during the last Congress, and now he is slated for the speakership.

He was asked how he managed to attain the speakership at an age younger than that of any of his predecessors for many years back. He replied, "Because I got an early start."

But his early start would have availed nothing if he had not had political and parliamentary ability. He has a large measure of both. Also, he is immensely popular with both Democrats and Republicans, as attested by the great cheer that went up when the House got the news of Paulina's birth. He has a ready, engaging smile, tells a good story and is an excellent listener. He generally likes men and women. He is fond of dining out and of playing cards. Poker and bridge are his favorite card games. He plays both of them well—though Senator Curtis, the leader of the other end of the Capitol, can beat him at poker.

Longworth's flair for politics and his gregarious instinct are known to all his colleagues. What many of them don't know is that he is a violin player of exceptional skill—a skill that is said by his friends to fall just short of that of a first rate professional. Under compulsion by his family, he began playing when a small boy, and he has kept it up ever since. The compulsion now is love for the instrument. After a hard day "on the hill," nothing gives him so much relaxation as playing his violin an hour or two at home. Sometimes, when a good accompanist can be had, he plays for groups of his friends. He has, it is said, an exquisite and cultivated taste in music, and plays the best and most difficult pieces. This is a side of Longworth that he doesn't mention in an interview; one can learn of it only from his intimate friends.

Longworth has the rare faculty, so say these friends, of leaving his worries behind when he goes home in the evening. Forgetting public affairs, he becomes a delightfully frivolous person, filled with the zest of living. Nobody listening to his chatter at the dinner table would suspect him of having any grasp of public questions.

Again to quote his intimates, the next Speaker can stay up to an unconscionable hour and arise in the morning as fresh and chipper as if he were leading the life of a Calvin Coolidge. He likes all sorts of outdoor pursuits—golf, riding, tennis, hiking, especially hiking. A taste for hiking, he admits, is something that he got from his father-in-law. He goes on a long tramp two or three times a week. Every Sunday morning he puts on an old sweater and walks about 10 miles, usually with Senator Wadsworth of New York, one of his closest friends, as a companion.

Athlete and Violinist.

Longworth has always had an athletic bent. At Harvard he rowed in the university crew, and he was a good enough golfer at one time to play in the national championships. That was in the days when most politicians would have deemed it political suicide to be seen with a golf stick.

To put the engaging personality of Longworth into a phrase, he leads a joyous and satisfactory "double life." Under a frivolous exterior, he covers up both his solid political ability and the culture that expresses itself in his violin playing. It tells much about him to say that he belongs to exclusive clubs and to Congress and is equally at home in all of them. He is a rich man—one thinks of him still as a rich young man—who has succeeded in his chosen profession on his merits, and without yielding any of his personal independence of action.

Physically, he is a stocky man, with the high color of good health in his face and a shining bald area on the top of his head. His hair—so much as is left of it—is becoming slightly gray. He wears a mustache. The general appearance of him, despite his baldness, is youthful and vigorous.

Longworth is a genuine conservative—perhaps even more of a conservative than Calvin Coolidge. Coolidge sometimes has an idea that a rent control commission or something of that sort would be a good thing. Longworth would never propose such an innovation. He doesn't believe in tinkering with the present economic structure any more than may be necessary in order to satisfy a great popular demand. Generally speaking, he believes in things as they are.

He is a sincere opponent of prohibition. Since he represents Hamilton County, Ohio, his convictions in this respect square nicely with political exigencies.

Believes in Party Regularity.

A strict believer in the doctrine of party regularity, Longworth was one of the first to demand the expulsion of the La Follette followers from the Republican party councils.

"No man," he told the writer, "should be allowed to hold a position of power in the Republican party who opposed the Republican candidates."

He talked frankly about his hope of making the speakership a position of greater power than it was under Gillett or Clark. He did not expect, he said, any restoration of "Cannonism," but he believed that the Speaker should take a large hand in the shaping of legislation—that he should be something more than a "moderator."

"I have the advantage," he said, "of coming to the speakership directly from the majority leadership. The chairman of the committees will be men with whom I have worked intimately. Our decks have been cleared of deserters. The opening of the next Congress will find us ready with a tax reduction bill and with some of the appropriation bills, as part of a definite co-ordinated legislative program. This will be submitted for action to the most efficient working majority of our times.

"What we most need in our legislation," he continued, "is to do away with the half-baked stuff. I am not one of those who believe that the country is necessarily better off when Congress is not in session, but I do believe that there is too much legislation that tries to cure things that can be cured only by natural processes."

Miss Alice Robertson, former Congresswoman from Oklahoma, broke into the interview to tell Nick how happy she was that he had been chosen for the speakership and that Mrs. Longworth and Paulina were doing so nicely. The smile and the grace with which he received her congratulations told a good deal of the story of his political success.

Building Program Designed To Do Away With Glasgow Slums Menaced by Labor Unions Oppose Production of Cheap Steel Houses While 1,000,000 Residents Crowd Into Only 237,000 Habitations.

Special Correspondence of the Post-Dispatch and the Chicago Daily News.

GLASGOW, Scotland, Feb. 15.

INSPECTION of the slum tenement district of Glasgow leaves no doubt of the urgency of the housing problem, which recently has assumed a place of major importance in the public mind. On a wet, dreary winter day, with the gloom of night darkening the midday hour, the correspondent turned from one of Glasgow's busiest commercial streets into the district near Charing Cross station. Down one street after another he looked in vain for a solid house or a wall without its crack or a roof that looked capable of keeping out the drizzling rain. Houses fronting on the main streets are kept in a semblance of repair, but back of them in what used to be the small garden plots are the relics of habitations long condemned as unfit for human use.

Passages leading from the street are slimy with mud. Dampness seeps from the ground into the walls. Mud carried on countless feet makes the floors of houses black. If the sun shone (unfortunately its appearances are rare during winter) conditions might be better, but it is doubtful whether in some of the most congested areas the sun ever has penetrated the outside rooms, while during scores of years of occupancy the inside rooms never have been lighted except by more than the dim rays of a kerosene lamp or the flicker of a gas jet.

Living in Condemned Houses.

Into these quarters men, women and children are huddled without regard to age or sex. The population of Glasgow is estimated at slightly more than a million. To house this number Glasgow has only 237,000 habitations. The slum tenements cannot be called houses. Years ago they ceased to have even the outward appearance of dwellings. They have stood condemned for a decade by every authority dealing with the question, and yet there they remain because no place is available for the inhabitants if they were turned out of the slums.

It was with a feeling of shameless intrusion that the writer turned into one passage at the bottom of a hill. He wondered if those who were forced to live under such circumstances would resent the appearance of a stranger. There were no men in sight. All probably were at work or waiting outside the dole offices.

From a doorway not more than five feet high a girl emerged, and in stepping aside to let her pass the correspondent slipped and almost fell in the mud.

"Have you lost your way, sir?" she asked in a thick Scotch burr. She held her gray shawl closely under her chin, and beneath its folds one could see red cheeks and humorous blue eyes.

"I've only lost my balance," the writer replied, wondering if such a poor effort at humor could register.

The response was a low chuckle.

"Ye'll be a fair sight if you fall in thus muck," she said, and turned as if to go on toward the street.

"Five or Six to a Room."

Unwilling to let the opportunity pass, she was asked if she minded telling how many people were living in her house.

"I don't live here," she said, "but I know that there are five or six to a room in every one of these places. And that isn't as bad as it is farther up the hill."

"They are planning to tear down all these buildings?" was inquired.

She shrugged her shoulders and moved on, either knowing nothing of the slum clearance plans or being unwilling to talk further with a too-inquisitive stranger.

There are many of these shawled girls and women throughout Glasgow's crowded districts, and to a stranger it is remarkable that they look healthy and in many cases happy. Miserable their surroundings may be, but their spirit seems undaunted and outside their homes at least they show few signs of despair or want. This is a tribute to the character of the race, but can in no way condone the survival of living conditions reminiscent of the dark ages.

The slums must go. That is agreed by everyone, but how are they to be abolished? The thousands of working men and women who live in them cannot be taken too far from their jobs. Space outside the city is plentiful, but to move the working classes en masse from the center of the city would disrupt industry and in the end prove an intolerable burden to the community.

Small Beginning Made.

The task will have to be done piecemeal. A small section, pitifully small compared with the great area that must eventually be torn down, has already been rebuilt. Since 1919 only 650 houses have been built in the slums. It is estimated that from 50,000 to 60,000 must be built before the blight finally is removed.

There are signs in every community that the public conscience has been awakened and that a concerted move toward clearing the slums will be made before many months have elapsed. It may even be that the British people will bring to this effort the same spirit of determination that existed during the war. They will declare a national emergency, enlist young men and take recruits from the ranks of the unemployed to make a great housing army.

Many obstacles must be removed before such concerted action becomes possible. First and most important, the trade unions must look with kindlier eyes upon the housing schemes and cease their short-sighted insistence upon union wages and hours and the employment of skilled labor. This policy of obstruction threatens to wreck one of the greatest housing ideas yet brought forth—the mass production of steel frame bungalows.

Steel Houses Cheap.

One of the first men to grasp the necessity of producing standard houses in great numbers was Lord Weir, head of a great engineering firm in Glasgow. He made a thorough study of the housing problem and came to the conclusion that the first step necessary was the rapid production of cheap houses that could be erected without employing costly skilled labor. He drew up plans for a workman's cottage containing two bedrooms, a living room, bathroom and kitchen, the whole of which could be standardized and shipped to any building site at a cost of approximately $1500.

After demonstrating the worth of his new house, Lord Weir obtained for it the approval of the Minister of Health, who recommended that housing committees throughout the United Kingdom use a portion of their funds in building steel houses. It has not been suggested that the steel house shall permanently replace those of stone and brick. It offers merely an emergency method of clearing the congested areas during the years that will be required to rebuild the slums; but engineers who have been working with Lord Weir declare the day

The Many Pay; the Few Enjoy.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

IN regard to high schools and education as spoken of by "Soldan," we know just how he feels, because we had the same view 20 years ago; but I would respectfully request that he read again the letter referred to.

I stated that it seems unjust to tax the entire people for something enjoyed by the few, as high schools and colleges. The education of the common people, the rank and file of the citizenry, stops with the grammar grades. I would rather hear an answer to that first. He will, however, note that I said the high school student should pay "part" at least.

I cannot see that my statements "practically suggests abolishing high schools." It doesn't abolish neckties or autos to make the user pay for them.

A high school to be a high school should be above a grammar school, and as such is beyond the capacity of the average school child, now and forever. He cannot be compelled to do school work that is beyond him, mentally and financially. The latter may be overcome; the former never. That is my opinion, and it is in accordance with the present situation; until the situation changes, the rank and file should not be taxed for the entire upkeep of higher education, in which they do not and cannot participate.

The Price of Oil.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

REFERRING to the letter of "An Employe" in Tuesday's edition, relative to the price of gas. "An Employe" gives his version for the pyramiding in the price of a gallon of gasoline and claims to know the facts about gasoline from producer of crude to marketing of the finished product. Such being the case a query or two should not be amiss, for instance:

Who does the "wild catting" for new fields but the adventurous driller who risks all to make a lucky strike or go broke? A new field once "proven" is gobbled up by the large companies, who will pay only for a sure thing. Who "posts" the price of oil in any field, up or down, but the major pipeline companies, who control the field by their manipulation in the posted price for crude.

What is the cost of transporting crude oil to refineries, as entering in the price of a gallon of gasoline, but a mere bagatelle. What is the cost of refining a gallon of gasoline, but a mere fraction of the selling price. What is "cracked" gasoline but a mere "just as good subterfuge" obtained from gas oil for which the same price is paid as the "straight run" gasoline. Why should a rise in price take place in midwinter when the demand is relatively low and all tanks are full awaiting the "spring drive" upward. It is some more boloney.

Why the myriads of new filling stations which are not at all necessary?

No, Mr. Employe, investigate a little closer, see how the oil game is played, get the inside dope and root for the right and the public, for the big companies pay for their propaganda.

ROCK HOUND.

As to Favorite Birds.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I WAS amused while reading your short editorial in regard to the choice of a state bird, to learn the children of Kansas were in favor of the meadow lark. Surely there must be a great scarcity of song birds in Kansas if this is the best they can do. I hope Missouri will follow your suggestion and import some real sky larks. Bring the singing thrushes, nightingales and linnets from Europe. This would give us a new conception of the beauty and glory of the feathered tribes, and add untold pleasure to our people to rise at the voice of the lark; to be lulled to sleep by the sweet song of the nightingale.

At the risk of wearying your readers, I will add these few lines showing the impression made on my mind by that sweetest of all songsters:

TO THE SKY LARK.

The lark from earth its way is taking,
  Cleaving heights of azure blue,
Up where gates of day are breaking,
  And God's own glory shining through.
His matchless voice, rich, sweet and tender,
  Speaks not of earth or earthly things.
Poised on his light brown wings so slender,
  A living form of joy, he sings.
Now tell me, little sapient thing,
  So happy in thy pride of place,
While to those dizzy heights you cling,
  Pray tell me, do you see God's face?
For thou art pure in heart, I know,
  In thee can dwell no evil thing;
Or He would not this gift bestow,
  Nor couldst thou thus so sweetly sing.

THE CRAMTON BILL'S DEFEAT.

There were several significant incidents in the Sixty-eighth Congress with regard to prohibition, indicating a change of attitude on the part of Congressmen. One was the failure of a bill to make jail sentences in Volstead law convictions mandatory. The President himself intimated to newspaper correspondents that this was going too far. But the most significant thing that happened was the defeat of the Cramton bill in the closing days of the session.

The President had recommended the classification of prohibition agents, and this recommendation was embodied in the Cramton bill, which provided that the prohibition unit be made a separate bureau in the Treasury Department, taking it from control of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue.

The bill had the unqualified backing of the Anti-Saloon League, whose lobby was as active in trying to put over this measure as it usually had been in other prohibition measures.

The bill was passed by the House by an overwhelming majority, but when it came to the Senate it went on the rocks. It was defeated by a filibuster, which received the encouragement of Senators who had previously supported prohibition measures without much question. Public attention was called to the usual tactics of the chief of the Anti-Saloon lobby, tossing notes from the gallery directing the conduct of prohibition Senators.

The defeat of this bill with the aid of Senators who had hitherto been counted as submissive servants of the Anti-Saloon League, indicated a change in the attitude of some Senators. It marks the breaking of the power of the Anti-Saloon League to command congressional action without limit. It is evident that the failure of prohibition enforcement and the changing opinion of both press and people is having an effect in Congress as well as in governmental officialdom.

RACE SEGREGATION IN THE SOUTH.

It is not so strange that a Louisiana court upheld a New Orleans segregation ordinance which forbids negroes to establish residences in white residential neighborhoods, or whites from living in negro sections. That is quite characteristic of the South, which is disposed to handle the race problem in its own way. But the prospect of an appeal to the United States courts may complicate the situation.

The Federal Constitution, as amended following the emancipation proclamation, seeks to remove the color line. It never has actually done so, and it will not effectively do so at this time, regardless of the ultimate decision in this New Orleans case. No negro is likely to live peacefully in a Southern community where whites have decreed he shall not. That is an injustice, perhaps, but it is a fact that is not easily set aside.

Injustice to negroes is not uncommon in the South. It is not unknown north of the Mason and Dixon line. Chicago and East St. Louis have had race riots. The negroes of Harlem are the victims of rent profiteers. Even in Kansas, where John Brown stood so sturdily for abolition, there are towns where a negro must not spend the night. No single decree from Washington will end such prejudices, and common sense teaches that the Negro will not best serve his race by attempting to force his presence where it is not wanted, or unlikely to be tolerated in peace.

The Negro is here, and not of his own volition. He is entitled to opportunity in proportion to his ability. He does not always get such consideration, but he does fare best where he adjusts himself to conditions as they are, only seeking such modification as may come through proven worth and a fuller appreciation of all human rights, which may result from the slow process of enlightenment and increasing toleration.

MENTALITY AND MEAL TIME.

One man, at least, will eat to live. Harold G. O. Holck, a medical student of the University of Chicago, has gone on a light diet for two years, defying the gustatory joys of meal time, and determined to eat no more than needed to maintain mental efficiency. This servant of science will weigh each morsel consumed, and eat only when hunger demands it. His experiment will supply data from which dietitians hope to determine the ideal ration.

Perhaps they will, but most of mankind would hate to live on it. The population is too much given to gluttony. The ills that flesh is heir to are increased by overeating. Yet the trencherman may make out quite a case for the groaning board or groaning boarders. There is an epicurean influence that means something more than needed nourishment, and few men can qualify for the Sunshine Club before breakfast. The sage who decided that "civilized man cannot live without cooks" had something more than casual acquaintance with his subject.

Caesar's suspicion of the "lean and hungry Cassius" was justified. Revolts have sprung from appetites unappeased. Hunger and the mean disposition go hand in hand so often that the world might better take a chance on gormandizing and the dyspepsia tablet, rather than risking its future to cold calculation of a scientific ration.

"MORAL GOWER."

British scholars have fixed upon this year as the six hundredth anniversary of the birth of John Gower, contemporary and pupil of Geoffrey Chaucer and, with the latter, one of the twin "fathers" of English poetry. Because of the highly moralistic manner and matter of his pupil's poems in Latin, French and English, Chaucer dubbed him "Moral Gower." That considerable circle of English folk to whom the day before yesterday means almost as much as the immediate instant are preparing to celebrate the memory of Gower, at his tomb in Southwark Cathedral. He lies there, we learn, "a few feet away from a noisy bus line."

John Gower was that uncommon combination, a rich man and a poet. Most probably he became rich before he became a poet, for much if not most of his poetry was the output of his old age. His "Confessio Amantis," which despite its title was written in English, is the confession of a lover whose name was John Gower and who was married at the age of 73. It is only the most diligent of diggers in the well of early English undefiled who have the persistence to cultivate the moral Gower. He is hard reading, just as blasting through hardpan is difficult digging; but those who have excavated in the "Moral's" literary ruins aver that Gower did much toward giving shape to the improved English which succeeded the jargon of the Middle English dialects.

"Moral Gower" has been dead and entombed for more than five centuries, yet his dust reposes today beneath a full-length figure of the poet himself. "The face and the forked beard," we learn from the London Daily Chronicle, "make probably a true portrait, and the costume is correct of period." Is it likely that any of our present-day poets of nonmoral persuasion will be preserved to the posterity of 500 years hence? This question is not intended to point a moral, although possibly it may adorn a tale.

OUR EXCESS OF LIBERTY.

In his address before the St. Louis Chapter, Sons of the American Revolution, last week, Dr. Stratton D. Brooks, president of the University of Missouri, stressed the necessity for obedience to law, declaring that "one trouble with us in this country is that we have too much liberty." Dr. Brooks appeared to be wholly unmindful of the fact that a meek submission to law on the part of the forbears of the Sons of the Revolution would have rendered such a gathering an impossibility.

We by no means advocate or approve disobedience to law, but we appreciate quite thoroughly that law is one thing and that the acts of legislative bodies and governments may be something quite different. We believe with Burke that:

> It would be hard to point out any error more truly subversive of all the order and beauty, of all the peace and happiness of human society, than the position that any body of men have a right to make what laws they please; or that laws can derive any authority whatever from their institution merely, and independent of the quality of their subject-matter. * * * They may alter the mode and application but have no power over the substance of original justice.

The fact that the substance of original justice is unchanging and unchangeable, that it is anterior to legislation and incapable of modification by it, is wholly lost sight of today. The great passion of our time is for order, when order is in no sense a primary aim of civil society save as it appears as the accompaniment of liberty. All order loses its value and all legislation its validity the moment it fails to fulfill the function of a means to the attainment of liberty; then authority hardens into despotism and obedience degenerates into slavery.

The widespread dissatisfaction with law and government today is largely due to the energizing of the false notion that citizens owe the duty to obey anything and everything their legislatures enact as law in the interest of order; that this constitutes ordered liberty. It might just as well, and frequently does, constitute ordered tyranny.

It is not in compulsion, but in voluntary submission and the free acceptance of law, that order consists. And when free acceptance is lacking with respect to a particular law or policy that is prima facie evidence that the law is felt to be violative of justice. For a Government to persist in its error and then resort to coercion is only to invite resistance—the antithesis of order. Resistance then leads to a strengthening of the law, and so it goes from bad to worse.

To achieve order by law enforcement has been the object of all despotic Governments from the beginning of history. But to protect the liberty of a people, out of which order arises spontaneously, is a work which few Governments have attempted and none accomplished for very long, so corrupting is power to the power holder.

THE GAG IS A BOOMERANG.

What a stupid device the gag is! How completely it fails in its purpose! More, how effectually it accomplishes the very thing it seeks to prevent!

The case of Count Michael Karolyi is in point. If the State Department had placed no restrictions on him, the chances are that Karolyi's visit here to be with his sick wife would have occasioned little comment. Such a distinguished man's arrival would have been reported, of course, but in a rather perfunctory way. The public would have read it casually and forgotten all about it.

But because the State Department gagged him Karolyi has become a figure of great public concern. Nothing that he might conceivably have said or done would have aroused the degree of popular interest in him as has the fact that he was permitted to come here only on condition that he would not engage in any political activity. What political activity could he have engaged in that would have disturbed the public poise or endangered the present order of things in Hungary or strained our relations with the Hungarian Government. If he indulged in wild, incendiary outbursts, which he would not have done, he would merely have made himself ridiculous.

Karolyi never has been a ridiculous figure. He has been a visionary. He has been quixotic, if a literal observance of an injunction handed down by Christ may so be termed. But as a man of character and breeding it is unthinkable that he would have abused the privileges of hospitality.

It is our State Department, not Karolyi, that is ridiculous, and worse than ridiculous. The gag has given Karolyi a really reverberating eloquence. The silence imposed on him brings crashing home to all citizens the contrast between the Government at Washington that was and is. It is a far, far cry from the spirit of American democracy that welcomed political refugees to the muzzle of American bureaucracy in 1925 as modeled by Charles Evans Hughes.

The gag is a boomerang.

MORE SUPPRESSION.

Isn't it terrible the way small towns are being held down these days?

North Platte, Neb., for instance.

The other night we were listening on the radio.

Somebody far out on the plains was singing the swan song of the Sioux or something of the sort.

We listened tolerantly, realizing that it was only in revenge for some of the things we had hurled at the Plains.

Anyway, when the last Sioux had perished the announcer said:

(He had a firm voice, with that ring of authority in it characteristic of all announcers.

Who are like gods, sort of.

That is, what they say is hurled through space.

It is a pronouncement.

Not conversation.)

But to get back to what he said:

"You have just heard Miss Somebodyorother singing in North Platte, Neb., NORTH PLATTE WHERE THE CREATOR PAUSED IN THE WORK OF CREATION AND SMILED."

Just like that, before you could say scat.

So we say it is terrible the way small towns are being suppressed, and you will say so.

Imagine North Platte.
Plains.
Prairie dogs.
The encircling sky.
Not a chance, you will think.

True, as Socrates says.
Eternally isolated and cut off.
All she can do is to tell the world every night what a humdinger she is.
How certain of greatness.
How secure in God's favor.
She can only imply that most places are the works of the devil.
Or if God did make them he was mad at the time.
That seas are a mistake.
That mountains are a bore.
But North Platte.
BOYS! !!*!
It was there the Creator paused and smiled!!

We wanted to ask if they were right sure he didn't laugh—
But we suppressed the thought.
It was subordinated to the realization of how small towns are trampled under foot these times.
They have nothing but the ear of the world.
They can only pour that earfull of their own praises night after night.
See North Platte and die!
Or come to South Platte and live!
Thousands of little towns, each booming itself on the air of night.
Each claiming to be where the Creator outdid himself.
Where Nature is having a conniption fit.
Or where Earth surpasses herself.

It's a cruel world, we'll say.

> "'Jack, dear,' implored Beatrice, sobbingly, 'what has come over you tonight? Why don't you answer me? Don't you realize that your indifference is breaking my heart? Take me into your strong arms, my beloved, and tell me with your own mouth that you love me better than anyone else in the world.'
> "Before Beatrice's tearful orbs and her alluring rosebud lips Jack's apparent marble-heartedness was commencing to vanish as mysteriously as one's personal bootlegger when he has been put in receipt of the awe-inspiring tidings that prohibition agents are dogging his tracks. Emotionally Jack placed his arms around Beatrice's slender waistline, drew her tenderly to his bosom and kissed her ruby lips. The buss set every fiber of Jack's being athrill with courtship. The blood coursed cursorily and unrestrainedly through his body, leaving a never-to-be-forgotten thrill in its wake Beatrice underwent similar emotions—perchance more thrilling and exhilarating than those experienced by Jack. Love was having its first awakening in their hitherto dormant hearts. . . . Beatrice longed for him to osculate her lips again."

It is hard to see how the movies are going to down that sort of literature.

Foreign Debt a Breeder of International Ill Will

while substantial reparations payments from Germany are a matter of the distant future.

The case for France was thus summed up, persuasively, by M. Jusserand in the speech already referred to:

"I am confident our particular conditions will be taken into account. It is simply fair terms that we seek. A moratorium is one of the things we need that the others do not. We supplied more money than any other nation, based on our national wealth. We supplied the battleships. If the war had taken place in the United States, over an area stretching from South Carolina to Maine, or in England over a territory reaching from Dover to York, France would have paid her debts already."

The speech of M. Jusserand though setting forth the difficulties in the way of payment, did not squint toward a possible repudiation of the debt. On the contrary, it contained the definite promise of payment. No exception was taken by Congress to M. Jusserand's remarks.

Talk of Repudiation.

Subsequently, however, a blunter statement of the French position, a statement which more than one commentator read as a thinly veiled declaration of France's intention to repudiate her debt to the United States, evoked a storm of criticism. This was a speech by Louis Marin in the Chamber of Deputies last month. From the fact, as related by press dispatches, that it was applauded from all sections of the chamber, the conclusion was widely drawn on this side of the water that it accurately reflected the viewpoint of the French people. Marin said, according to the dispatches, that the cost of the war to France in life and property and her service to the world in holding up the German onslaught till the allies were ready to share the burden should be set off against the cash value of what was borrowed while serving in a common cause."

"France," he was further quoted as saying, "is not alone among the debtor nations of the world. There are half a score of others awaiting her lead and her effort to show the world that gold is not the only thing that counts."

Senator Borah undertook to set out the American portion in reply to this speech. Since Borah is the chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, and since he is in full accord with the administration and against debt cancellation, his words carried special weight.

Borah denied that the United States was playing the role of Shylock. He declared that the settlement with Great Britain, on terms which the United States was prepared to duplicate in settling with other debtors, was the most generous in the history of international affairs. He reviewed the terms of this settlement; it covered a total debt of $4,600,000,000, bearing 5 per cent interest, which was funded into 62-year bonds bearing 3 and 3½ per cent interest. A settlement on the basis of the contract as written would have compelled England to pay in 62 years $14,214,900,000, in comparison with $11,105,965,000 that would be paid under the contract of settlement. The terms given England, he said, made a better bargain for the British taxpayer than for the American taxpayer.

"The British taxpayer," he said, goes down in his pocket for $11,965,000 in order to settle $4,600,000,000 of debt, while the American taxpayer must raise in the way of taxes, in order to settle the same amount of indebtedness which he is carrying, $12,772,665,-"

If all the circumstances of the war had to be taken into account, said Borah, the gains as well as the sacrifices must be considered. France had received 402,392 square miles of territory, the rich coal of the Saar Valley and Alsace-Lorraine, while the United States had taken nothing.

"If France asks for better terms than the British terms," said Borah, "she is finessing for cancellation. Her arguments are the arguments of cancellation; her logic, if such it can be called, is the logic of repudiation."

U. S. Paid France.

Borah attacked the theory that the United States ought to forgive the French debt, because France did not require the repayment of loans to the United States during the Revolution. As a matter of fact, he said that the United States paid in full the debt incurred at that time. He produced a Treasury statement giving the figures. This statement showed that the United States paid back the whole of $6,352,000 borrowed.

In justice to France, Borah subsequently inserted an amended statement, which, while it did not affect his main contention, showed that France remitted certain arrears of interest, amounting, according to Benjamin Franklin, to about 2,000,000 francs ($363,000). This was in addition to subsidies granted by the French King to the colonies, apart from the loans, amounting to $1,815,000.

"Due to the condition of the finances of the new Government," said the Treasury, "interest payments on the loans, as well as the installments on the principal, were not always made promptly, but the amount, both principal and interest, with the exception of the interest remitted, was ultimately settled."

The foreign debt question has many and intricate ramifications. It touches the political situation in every European country; it is inextricably bound up with the subject of German reparations; it vitally affects the tax system of the United States. Volumes have been written about it and volumes will continue to be written. In a brief article like the present it is possible to examine but a few of its many facets.

France, has been explained, makes a differentiation among the various classes of obligations. The debt funding commission of the United States, the body created by Congress to negotiate settlements of the debts, holds that all the debts must be treated alike. It does not concede that some are "political debts," against which the debtors are entitled to set off their war sacrifices in men and treasure. It makes no distinction between money borrowed but spent in the United States for munitions and food, and money actually exported from the country.

Though American sentiment for cancellation appears to be negligible, there is nevertheless a disposition to go a long way toward meeting the plea of France for lenient terms. A definite proposition from France, involving a 10-year moratorium during which no interest would accumulate, but with provision for ultimate repayment in full, would doubtless be accepted as a favorable basis for negotiations. France might be allowed 80 or 90 years in which to pay, instead of the 62 allowed Great Britain. Before M. Daeschner came to this country, it was reported that he would propose a settlement along these lines, with an interest rate of 1½ per cent at the end of the moratorium. Should this turn out to be the case, there would doubtless be an effort to scale up the rate of interest to a point nearer that paid by the British.

Always, in considering the French debt, we run up against the British settlement. American opinion is generally agreed that this was fair to both parties. The British taxpayer grumbles—as the American would do in similar circumstances—but he digs down in his pocket and pays, in order that the honor and the credit of his country may not suffer. Should France, which has shown no disposition to pay, be given easier terms? If so, should the British settlement then be modified to accord with the French? And if the British settlement should be so modified, ought the arrangement to be made retroactive to the date of the settlement, so as to give the British taxpayer a rebate? These are a few of the knotty questions that Congress will have to answer when it really comes to grips with the problem of the French debt. Until France makes some definite proposal the whole discussion is academic.

British Position Stated.

The position of France has been outlined. It has been consistent throughout. It is postulated wholly on the theory that France's great sacrifices in the war should be allowed as a credit on her financial indebtedness. Likewise, the British position has remained unchanged. Adhering to the principle of the Balfour note of 1921, the British say they will require from their debtors, France and the others, only so much as is needed to pay the British debt to the United States.

There was a further statement of British policy by Finance Minister Churchill on Dec. 10 last, when he said, speaking of tentative conversations that had been going on between Ambassador Jusserand and Secretary of the Treasury Mellon, that if any of her debtors made a payment to the United States, Great Britain would expect simultaneously a proportionate payment to herself. The statement was aimed at France. It aroused the ire of Senator Reed, who professed to see in it an effort by Great Britain to meddle in the affairs of the United States, but the country generally appeared to think that the British position was justified.

Four countries besides Great Britain—Finland, Hungary, Lithuania and Poland—have funded their debt to the United States, all on the British model. This calls for the payment of 3 per cent interest for the first 10 years and 3½ per cent for the balance of the total term of 62 years. The funded indebtedness amounts to 42 per cent of the total principal debt at the time the foreign debt commission was formed in 1922.

Italy Owes $2,097,000,000.

Next to France, the country with the largest unfunded debt is Italy, which owes approximately, in principal and unpaid interest, $2,097,000,000. No proposals have been made by Italy looking toward a settlement. The other debts range down, in varying amounts from $472,000,000 owed by Belgium, to $32,000 by Liberia. The only war debtor which has paid the United States in full is Cuba, which has liquidated an obligation of $10,000,000 with all interest.

All the unfunded debt owed the United States is in the form of "demand" notes, bearing 5 per cent interest, the amount fixed by the Liberty Bond acts.

The debt situation is complicated by the fact that France and Great Britain are heavy international creditors as well as debtors. There is due to Great Britain from her former allies $8,684,334,000 and to France $2,717,908,500. Neither of these sums include interest, as the European powers have never agreed on a rate of interest on their war debts.

The funding of a debt offers two great advantages: It takes the debt out of the realm of diplomacy, where it might be used as a weapon by the creditor, and places it on the routine basis of a budget item. Second, it materially improves the chances of the debtor country to make private borrowings.

The debt problem hangs like a black cloud over international relations. What is the solution? William J. Bryan is in a hopeless minority when he urges that we use the debt to "buy" the peace of the world. That means cancellation, and cancellation would mean that the United States would shoulder most of the war cost. Europe would like a conference on the debts, but America says that the debt question is solely the affair of each individual creditor with each individual debtor.

All a Hopeless Muddle.

France talks vaguely about paying, while presenting reasons why she should not pay. We talk, through our agents in Congress, about the obligations of France to pay, at the same time that we disclaim any intention to be harsh. Though M. Daeschner and Mr. Coolidge exchange felicitations in the White House, the legislative representatives of the two countries make faces at each other across the water. The whole business is in a hopeless muddle.

May not the solution, after all, have to be sought in a conference around the table? When such a conference was first suggested, we objected to it, for the reason that Europe held the debt problem to be inextricably tied up with the reparations problem, while our Government maintained they had no connection. But now the reparations problem has been solved, or as least headed toward solution, by the Dawes plan. We need another Dawes plan to cure the suspicion and the rancor bred by the unsettled debt question. It gets nowhere for France to hint at repudiation and the United States to draw farther into its shell, saying merely, "France must pay." It does no good for American politicians to go up and down the country seeking to gain merit for themselves by declaiming against the French attitude.

We say that we don't care for the role of Shylock. Must we not, then, while standing against cancellation, seek to find some adjustment that will take account of French difficulties—some middle ground between remission of the debt and the collection of the "last red cent?"

ITALY HONORS VITO VIVIANO FOR SERVICE TO THE ALLIES

St. Louis Manufacturer Made Cavaliere of Order of Crown of Italy.

Official notice has been received by Paulo Emilio Giusti, Italian Consul in St. Louis, that there has been conferred on Vito Viviano of St. Louis, the honor of Cavaliere of the Order of the Crown of Italy in recognition of his services to the cause of the allies during the World War and to the Italian soldiers and Italian people in general in relief work. The decoration will be bestowed later on Viviano, possibly at a meeting of the local Italian Society.

Viviano, who resides in University City, is president of the V. Viviano & Bros. Manufacturing Co. of St. Louis, and has lived here for 25 years. During the war he contributed to every war fund, particularly to relief measures, and always has worked for the educational and moral advancement of Italian-American children.

MRS. WILLEBRANDT TO SPEAK

Accepts Invitation to Address Religious Board Here in April.

Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, an Assistant Attorney-General of the United States, in charge of prohibition matters, will address the annual luncheon of the Board of Religious Organizations, at Hotel Chase, April 20.

Her acceptance of the invitation was received Friday by Mrs. Joseph S. Calfee, president of the board. She recently was under consideration for appointment to the Federal bench in California. A number of members of the Board of Religious Organizations became acquainted with her last June at the National Conference of Social Work, at Toronto, Canada.

Exploration of Unknown Land.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 7.—Departure of a Geological Survey party in charge of Gerald Fitzgerald, topographer, and Walter R. Smith, geologist, from Seattle for Northern Alaska to continue the exploration of Naval Petroleum Reserve No. 4, was announced today by the Interior Department. The party will travel by dog team from Nenana to Kotzebue, where supplies for four or five months will be loaded. From Kotzebue the men will mush up Noatak River, hoping to arrive on the northern slope of Brooks Range early in May. They plan to explore a region never before visited, between the head of the Pitmegea and Utukok rivers.

Appeal in Jennings' Will Case.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, March 7.—An appeal from the decision of Probate Judge Horner refusing to admit to probate a purported will of the late Edwin B. Jennings, eccentric recluse, who left a $6,000,000 estate and no relatives nearer than cousins, was filed today. Scores of persons in many states have claimed to be related to the deceased, but claims of only a few have been properly qualified. The supposed will, in a mutilated condition, was mailed anonymously to a trust company which turned it over to the court. The document purported to give two-thirds of the estate to educational purposes as a memorial to Jennings.

GLASGOW BUILDING PROGRAM MENACED BY LABOR UNIONS

is coming when steel houses will supplant the older types.

Objections to steel houses are as strong as objections to a new idea ever have been. Officers of the building trades declare they never will consent to dilution of labor on housing schemes and in support of their objections they use every method of propaganda—pamphlets, newspaper articles and political influence. In Glasgow, the housing committee has been thoroughly scared by a threat that work on all house building will be stopped unless full union wages are paid to skilled workers employed on steel houses. The Government may yet have to intervene in order to get any progress with plans already under way.

Once the auxiliary scheme becomes effective, the slums should disappear rapidly. Section by section the congested areas will be cleared, solid concrete foundations will be laid on the old sites and either brick houses or concrete houses will replace the disgraceful slum tenements.

It may be found in the course of their work that permanent building is no longer satisfactory, and the best method of dealing with overpopulated areas is to build in such a way that whole sections can be demolished at intervals of 15 to 20 years and dwellings of new types erected cheaply and quickly. Whatever the future holds, there is gratification in the thought that out of Glasgow's slums something clean and decent will emerge.

GREAT WIRELESS STATION AND OBSERVATORY FOR GENEVA

Work Begun on $2,000,000 Plant—League of Nations May Broadcast for 15 Minutes Daily.

Copyright, 1925, by the Press and Pulitzer Publishing Cos., the New York World and the Post-Dispatch.

GENEVA, March 7.—Construction of the world's largest wireless station and astronomical, meteorological, and seismological observatory was started yesterday on the crest of Mount Saleve, overlooking Geneva. Completion within two years is expected, and the total cost is estimated at $2,000,000.

Signals of the wireless station are expected to reach around the world, and to keep it in constant communication with ships in the Atlantic and Pacific. It is understood the League of Nations will be allowed 15 minutes daily for broadcasting under conditions that will provide uninterrupted world communication in wartime, regardless of land wires or ocean cables.

The telescope for the observatory is being constructed by the American scientists, Professors Richie and Bauer. It will be the largest in the world, exceling even that at Mount Wilson, Cal. The diameter will exceed 10 feet and the instrument will make possible the tabulation and exploration of hitherto unrecorded stars. It will also be used in efforts to verify the Einstein theory of relativity.

A movement is under way to make the observatory the seat of an international meteorological office in connection with the League of Nations. Mount Saleve, 19 minutes by automobile from Geneva, is 4000 feet high and contains the ruins of an ancient Roman war camp.

A NEW HARDING STAMP

Portrait to Be Used on One and Half-Cent Denomination.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 7.—The late President Harding's picture will appear again on United States postage stamps beginning April 15, when the new postal rates go into effect. The same portrait which appeared on the Harding memorial 2-cent stamp will be used on the 1½-cent stamp now being prepared for use in connection with the new rate on third class mail. The new Harding 1½-cent stamp will be printed in light brown. A 1½-cent stamped envelope, bearing the present design with Washington's profile, also is being prepared.

Three other new stamps will be the 15-cent special delivery stamp, bearing the same design as the present 10-cent special delivery, printed in light canary yellow color, and the 20-cent special delivery bearing the picture of a motor mail wagon standing before the Washington city postoffice. The 15-cent special delivery will be used on parcels from 2 to 10 pounds in weight and the 20-cent on parcels weighing more than 10 pounds. A 25-cent "special handling" stamp, which under the new postal rate law will obtain for parcels the same expeditious handling, transportation and delivery accorded first-class mail, is being printed in plain blue.

MORE THAN 15,000 ST. LOUISANS

have invested $14,000,000 of their savings in Preferred Stocks sold by this Company in the last eight years. No one ever has missed a dividend. No one ever has been forced to sell his shares for one cent less than he paid.

The present issue of Cahokia 6% has been on the market for only six weeks.

Yet, in that short time, St. Louis savers have bought more than half the $1,500,000 authorized.

You can see that Cahokia 6% has become the favorite investment of St. Louis savers who demand safety and, with safety, a liberal return.

You can see that the issue soon will be exhausted. You can see that if you want to get your savings into Cahokia 6% you must act quickly.

If your savings are earning less than 6% you are losing money. Cahokia offers you 6% with super safety. The price is par, $100 a share for cash. We suggest that you do not delay.

FAKE MAGAZINE SALE EXPOSED BY CHAMBER

Charities Bureau Calls Public Attention to Periodicals Which Pretend to Give Aid.

In an open letter, the Chamber of Commerce Charities Bureau calls attention to a popular method of raising money by pseudo philanthropic and commercial organizations through the sale of magazines or publications. The bureau has on file information about a number of such enterprises. The statement issued by the bureau follows:

"For years magazines of a purely commercial nature, and with no legitimate claim to philanthropy have been peddled on the streets and from house to house by agents who use misleading statements in order to make sales. The name of the publication and certain wording on its cover, or in its contents, are designed to give the impression that receipts from its sale will benefit philanthropic work of some kind, usually work with babies or children. Analysis shows that the choice of words has been carefully made, so that while the inference is there, there is no direct claim that can be considered fraudulent.

"Often it is something of this sort, 'Published in the interest of child welfare work.'

"In its broader sense, this can be said of any propaganda which stimulates interest in, and, therefore, is of benefit to, work with children. However, the salesmen enlarge upon these brief printed statements by direct claims of aiding welfare work in the city, the State or even on a nation-wide basis.

No Basis for Claim.

"On the other hand, the editors freely admit that there is no justification for such claims; that the magazine is essentially commercial in its nature, and that agents 'are expected' to sell it on its 'merits.' We know of one firm which publishes three such magazines and is itself known under several names.

"Then there are the publications whose promoters make a plea of aiding the fight against tuberculosis. Those of which we speak have no connection whatever with the recognized agencies in this field, and are often found to be the personal activity of one individual. They would seem to be profitable, as the sale has continued over a period of years in spite of the fact that a number of cities have been successful in putting the agents off the street.

"Still another and even more spectacular type is the so-called Veterans' Magazine, of which a goodly number have flourished since the war. In the early days the agents wore uniforms of the army, navy or marine corps, and made the plea of helping ex-service men. However, the authorities soon put a stop to this practice and since then the salesmen are careful to only use a part of a uniform, the most popular being the chevrons or insignia of some sort attached to civilian clothes.

New Cover, Old Contents.

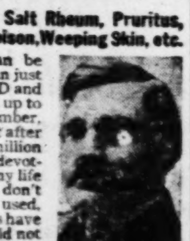
"The contents of these magazines is of questionable value. Usually they contain poor cartoons, old jokes and reprints of stories from uncopyrighted publications. We have even found that the same material will be issued during succeeding months with only a change in the cover to make it seem up to date. We have never been able to discover that the receipts from the sale of these publications benefit ex-service men in any way, unless perhaps some of the salesmen who are employed come within this qualification.

Because of misrepresentation and lack of proper peddlers' licenses, salesmen handling the magazines have been arrested in a number of cities. Unfotunately, this seems to have little effect, as new ones are ready to step into their shoes. It is only through pressure of public opinion and refusal on the part of the public to purchase these publications that such activities can be stamped out.

Information on 20 to 30 such magazines is also available through the files of the National Information Bureau of New York City, an organization for the purpose of investigating all national drives. The Charities Bureau of the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce is a member of the National Information Bureau and announces that it will be glad to furnish information on request on the worthiness of any project, whether national or local.

ECZEMA

Also called Tetter, Salt Rheum, Pruritus, Milk Crust, Water Poison, Weeping Skin, etc.



DR. J. E. CANNADAY

I believe eczema can be cured to stay. I mean just what I say: C-U-R-E-D and NOT merely patched up to return again. Remember, I make this statement after handling over half a million cases of eczema and devoting over 20 years of my life to its treatment. I don't care what you have used, nor how many doctors have told you that you could not be cured; all I ask is just a chance to prove my claims. Don't be discouraged but write me TODAY and I will send you a FREE TRIAL of mild, soothing, guaranteed treatment that will surely convince you as it has me. If you are disgusted and discouraged just give me one chance to prove my claims. By writing me today I believe you will enjoy more real comfort than you really thought this world held for you. Just try it, and I feel sure you will agree with me.

Stops Asthma
or You Pay Nothing

Mrs. C. A. Myers, whose work has brought her in touch with more asthma sufferers probably than any woman in the world, says she has known the worst chronic cases quickly yield to Leaven's Prescription. She now heartily recommends it to all sufferers. A few teaspoonfuls usually stop the choking and you can sleep like a baby and run up hills without exhaustion. It makes real health possible for those who now suffer. To prove this, C. Leavengood, 1634 S. W. Blvd., Rosedale, Kas., will gladly send any sufferer a full bottle—not just a sample—FREE. Use all of it at his expense. Then after 10 days if you are delighted with your improved condition you may remit him its small cost of $1.25. Otherwise you owe nothing or pay nothing. Mrs. Myers advises every sufferer to write for this free trial. She feels sure you can once for all get rid of your asthma trouble.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE DELEGATION ON WAY HOME

Party to Return From Cruise in West Indies Wednesday; All Reported Well.

The St. Louis delegation which for two weeks has been cruising in the Caribbean Sea on a good will tour to Cuba, Panama, Costa Rica and Jamaica, will arrive in New Orleans Tuesday on the way back. The delegation departed Feb. 18, and will return Wednesday, at Union Station.

In a cablegram received from P. V. Bunn, general secretary, yesterday, it was stated that everyone has enjoyed the best of health and that the weather throughout the trip has been ideal. W. Palmer Clarkson, president of the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce, headed the party and was the principal speaker at a number of banquets held in honor of the tourists at the various places where stops were made.

FASTER TRAINS TO EAST ON THREE ROADS

April 26 Is Day Set for Instituting New Service Out of St. Louis.

Railroads running east from St. Louis are preparing to speed up their schedules this spring in the same way that the lines between St. Louis and Chicago did last fall. April 26 is the day set for instituting new and faster service on the Pennsylvania, Baltimore & Ohio and New York Central lines between St. Louis and New York, Washington, Boston and Philadelphia.

The Eastern lines will not try to establish new speed records, as the Chicago lines did. They will return, approximately, to the schedules which prevailed before the war.

The Pennsylvania, which made the first announcement, will run a 24-hour all-Pullman train between St. Louis and New York and Washington, to be known as "The American." It will leave St. Louis at 8:58 a. m. and will arrive in North Philadelphia at 8:21 the next morning, and in New York at 10:05 a. m. It will carry cars for Baltimore and Washington, via Harrisburg, arriving in Baltimore at 9:15 a. m. and in Washington at 10:20. Westbound, "The American" will leave New York at 6:05 p. m., North Philadelphia at 7:51 p. m., Washington at 6:30 p. m. and Baltimore at 7:30 p. m., and will arrive in St. Louis at 5:10 p. m. the next day.

The New York Central's new train, all-Pullman, will leave St. Louis at 9 a. m. and will reach New York at 10:50 a. m. and Boston at 1 p. m. the next day. Westbound, it will leave Boston at 2 p. m., New York at 4:45 p. m. and will arrive in St. Louis at 5 p. m. the following day.

The B. & O. has not announced the schedule of its all-Pullman train, which will leave here at noon for Washington and New York, and which will be called "The National Limited."

Other lines running east from St. Louis, which have not thus far announced a purpose to join in the competition for through passenger business to New York, are the Wabash, which has eastern connections via Detroit and Buffalo, and the Nickel Plate, which runs to Toledo and Cleveland.

TO OBSERVE QUIET DAY FRIDAY

Bishop Will Address Women at Christ Church Cathedral.

The annual Quiet day for women under auspices of the Woman's Auxiliary of the Episcopal Church will be observed Friday at Christ Church Cathedral. Bishop Irving Peake Johnson of Colorado will give three addresses during the day.

Bishop Johnson, who is giving noonday addresses at the cathedral throughout this week, will speak Tuesday evening at the Church of the Holy Communion and Wednesday evening at Trinity Episcopal Church.

Reed's Speaking Date Uncertain.

By the Associated Press.

CAPE GIRARDEAU, Mo., March 7.—The speaking engagement here of United States Senator James A. Reed of Missouri has been canceled temporarily until a new date suitable to Reed can be chosen.

Rheumatism Left Him As If By Magic!

Had Suffered Over 50 Years!

Now 83 Years, Yet a Big Surprise To Friends

Regains Strength Goes Out Fishing Back to Business Laughs at "URIC ACID"

How the "Inner Mysteries" Reveals Startling Facts Overlooked By Doctors and Scientists For Centuries

"I am eighty-three years old and I doctored for rheumatism ever since I came out of the army, over fifty years ago," writes J. B. Ashelman. "Like many others, I spent money freely for so-called 'cures,' and I have read about 'Uric Acid' until it worried me. I could not sleep nights or walk without pain; my hands were so sore and stiff I could not hold a pen. But now, as if by magic, I am again in active business and can walk with ease or write all day with comfort. Friends are surprised at the change."

HOW IT HAPPENED.

Mr. Ashelman is only one of thousands who suffered for years, owing to the general belief in the old, false theory that "Uric Acid" causes rheumatism. This erroneous belief induced him and legions of unfortunate men and women to take wrong treatments. You might just as well attempt to put out a fire with oil as to try and get rid of your rheumatism, neuritis and like complaints by taking treatments supposed to drive Uric Acid out of your blood and body. Many physicians and scientists now know that Uric Acid never did, never can and never will cause rheumatism; that it is a natural and necessary constituent of the blood; that it is found in every new-born babe; and that without it we could not live!

These statements may seem strange to some folks, who have all along been led to believe in the old "Uric Acid" humbug. It took Mr. Ashelman fifty years to find out this truth. He learned how to get rid of the true cause of his rheumatism, other disorders, and recover his strength from "The Inner Mysteries," a remarkable book now being distributed free by an authority who devoted over twenty years to the scientific study of this particular trouble.

NOTE: If any reader of the Post-Dispatch wishes the book that reveals these facts regarding the true cause and cure of rheumatism, facts that were overlooked by doctors and scientists for centuries past, simply send a post card or letter to H. P. Clearwater, 20 H Street, Hallowell, Maine and it will be sent by return mail without any charge whatever. Cut out this notice lest you forget! If not a sufferer yourself, hand this good news to some afflicted friend.

PIMPLY? WELL, DON'T BE

People Notice It. Drive Them Off With Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets.

A pimply face will not embarrass you much longer if you get a package of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. The skin should begin to clear after you have taken the tablets a few nights.

Cleanse the blood, bowels and liver with Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the successful substitute for calomel; there's no sickness or pain after taking them.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets do that which calomel does, and just as effectively, but their action is gentle and safe instead of severe and irritating.

No one who takes Olive Tablets is ever cursed wit a "dark brown taste," a bad breath, a dull, listless, "no good" feeling, constipation, torpid liver, bad disposition or pimply face.

Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil; you will know them by their olive color.

Dr. Edwards spent years among patients afflicted with liver and bowel complaints and Olive Tablets are the immensely effective result. Take one or two nightly for a week. See how much better you feel and look. 15c and 30c.

Cod Liver Oil in Sugar Coated Tablets For Puny Kids

Forget the nasty tasting, stomach upsetting cod liver oil and give the thin, puny, underdeveloped children McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets if you want to give them a good appetite and put pounds of good, healthy flesh on their bones.

Doctors know all about them and so does Wolff-Wilson, Judge & Dolph, drug stores, Enderle Drug Co., Johnson Bros. Drug Co., and all good pharmacists all over America, for they are in great demand, because they are not laggards but show results in a few days.

They are not expensive either—60 tablets—60 cents and children take them like candy.

A very sickly child, age 9, gained 12 pounds in seven months and is strong and healthy.

One skinny woman gained 9 pounds in 24 days.

MISSOURI CRIME SURVEY EXPECTED TO BEGIN IN APRIL

Three Experts to Co-operate With Arthur V. Lashly, Operating Director, in the Investigation.

First the diagnosis, then the remedy. The lawyers have borrowed this plan from the physicians, and they are going to use the formula in the attempt to cure Missouri of present crime conditions.

So Missouri is to be surveyed, this summer, by investigators under expert direction, and the facts they find are to be put before the public, and before the courts and the Legislature, in an effort to have the remedy applied.

The appeal for funds for this work, made by the Missouri Association for Criminal Judges, has met with a quick and a large response, and about $25,000 has been pledged in St. Louis for the Association's objects. The organization is not a St. Louis affair, but a Statewide one, and its work is to embrace all parts of Missouri, so that the rest of the State is expected to follow up the contributions made in this city.

Business Men's Movement.

The contributors are largely business men. Only one considerable contribution has been made by a lawyer. And the results of the survey are intended to appeal to business men and the general public, rather than to the legal profession.

Early in April, it is expected, the work of the survey will be commenced actively. Arthur V. Lashly, operating director, plans to give his entire time to the work for seven months. Three experts are to co-operate, at least in the early stages.

Raymond Moley of Columbia University, who supervised the Cleveland crime survey, will be one of these advisors. Alfred Bettman, corporation counsel of Cincinnati, who had a part in the Cleveland survey, will be another. Walter F. Dodd of Chicago will be loaned by the American Institute of Criminal Law, which is an endowed institution on a Rockefeller foundation.

First to Cover Entire State.

The survey will be the first to cover an entire State, and it is believed that the chance of getting results will be greater than in the case of a survey confined to one city, as were those in Cleveland and Chicago. This is because the interest of the whole State appeals more strongly to legislators and the state-wide public than does any need which appears to be confined to a city.

The plan is to begin the inquiry in St. Louis, Kansas City and St. Joseph simultaneously, and to extend it to the smaller cities of the State, Springfield, Joplin, Sedalia and Hannibal.

Five rural counties north of the Missouri River, and five south of the river, all in different judicial circuits, and so distributed as to show conditions in all sections of the State, will be subjected to a thorough examination by men who will spend as much time as necessary in finding out the facts as to the effectiveness of criminal justice in those counties.

Data on Other Counties.

In the other counties, Prosecuting Attorneys and local abstractors will be asked to compile data, with strict requirements as to its accuracy, in the hope that the facts for every county can be ascertained.

The survey will go back probably as far as five years. Its subject matter will be crime, arrest and punishment. The number of crimes unsolved by arrests will be ascertained, and then, in the crimes where arrests have been made, the cases will be followed through the process of indictment, trial and appeal, when appeal is the sequel. The number of nolle pros orders, and acceptances of pleas of guilty in lesser degrees, will be shown.

When, after conviction, the convicted person has been admitted to probation by the Court, that fact will be set forth as accounting for his failure to arrive at the penitentiary.

When a prisoner goes to the penitentiary and is paroled, the record of that prisoner will be followed, to determine whether the theory of the parole law worked out in that particular case.

Supreme Court Included.

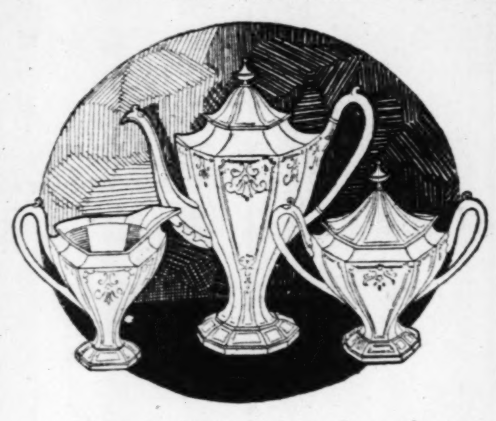
In the Supreme Court, the time taken in determining appealed cases, and the grounds on which criminal convictions are reversed and remanded, will be the subject of the survey.

The principal divisions of the survey, as planned by Lashly, will be those of courts, police, prosecutors, paroles, probation and penal institutions. Another subject, which will tend to lead to the causes of crime, will be juvenile delinquency.

Medical relations is the subject of still another division of the subject, and an endeavor will be made to learn how much disease and mental incompetency has to do with criminal acts. In this part of the inquiry, Dr. M. A. Bliss of St. Louis is expected to help.

As showing that the public has become interested in the movement, Lashly showed a letter addressed to him by six members of a jury which tried a case in one of the criminal courts here recently. The jury, in deliberating on the case, got into a dispute as to what certain witnesses had said, and as to the meaning of articles introduced as exhibits. The six men said, in their letter, that they could have acted more satisfactorily on the case if they had been able to have a transcript of parts of the testimony, and if they could have looked at the exhibits in the jury room. Under the present court procedure, this would not be permitted. They asked that a new rule, more calculated to give jurors a clear view of the facts, be recommended.

The Colonial Influence in Silver Design



Illustrated above is a three-piece Coffee Set of very heavy quality of silver plate. A true Colonial pattern featuring a design in hand-chased scroll. Unequaled quality and value sold as a Set, priced $83.25

It is not generally known that among the skilled artisans that came over on the Mayflower and in the succeeding settlement of New England, probably the most accomplished craftsmen were silversmiths. Paul Revere of Revolutionary fame was a silversmith of exceptional ability. During those days it was customary to turn silver money into useful silver items, which had a standard immediate value and could be converted in quick time.

Jaccard's selections in Colonial designs are comprehensive in range of choice, and widely noted for their preservation of the best examples of Colonial art.

Building Your Sterling Service

Is a constant satisfaction when you take advantage of Jaccard Open Stock Service. Additions from time to time in the same pattern. And many beautiful, desirable patterns to select from.

TREND TOWARD DECREASE IN AUTO ACCIDENTS NOTED

Total in 10 Largest Cities in U. S. 34 Per Cent Less Than in January a Year Ago.

"For the first time in the history of the safety movement, traffic accidents are decreasing. The total in January, 1925, in the 10 largest cities of the United States was 34 per cent lower than in January a year ago," reports George M. Graham, chairman of the Traffic Planning and Safety Committee of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce.

"That seven of our 10 largest cities have registered marked reductions in their traffic toll records is the most encouraging news in highway history.

"There are many signs of hope in the totals for the complete year 1924. Fatalities were held to a 1½ per cent increase over 1923, compared with the 17½ per cent growth in vehicle registrations. There might be small comfort in this alone but for the fact that many cities showed an actual numerical decrease for the entire year.

"Twenty-nine of the 68 cities having more than 100,000 population achieved reductions in 1924.

"The situation is constantly coming under better control. These facts refute the can't-be-done man.

"They give warrant for the efforts of those organizations and citizens who have pioneered in this field.

"The drive to eliminate accidents by abolishing the causes—to know the facts, provide better traffic facilities, improve safety education,

MOST DRIVERS INVOLVED IN ACCIDENTS EXPERIENCED

Inexperience a Factor in Only One Auto Fatality in St. Louis in 1924, Committee Finds.

The Statistical Committee of the St. Louis Conference on Street and Highway Safety, has just reported to Oliver T. Remmers, chairman of the conference. The report consists of maps, charts and other comparisons of traffic accidents and deaths last year in St. Louis. The statistics were compiled by the St. Louis Safety Council from records in the Coroner's office, newspapers and the Police Department.

The 189 motor vehicle fatalities occurring in 1924 were analyzed from a study of the transcripts of the evidence at the Coroner's inquests, police and medical reports.

More Killed on Saturdays.

The report is summarized as follows: "As only a small percentage of pedestrian crossings are made at other than intersections, yet 40 adult pedestrian fatalities occurred at other than intersections (53 at intersections), the practice of jaywalking is clearly a distinct hazard and should be eliminated by education or legislation, or both.

"More pedestrians are killed on Saturday than any other day. This is possibly due to the fact that both pedestrian and vehicular movements are heavier on Saturday.

"One hundred and twenty-seven or 67.9 per cent of the 189 deaths last year occurred between 4 p. m. and midnight.

"Ninety-seven, or 75.8 per cent of the 128 pedestrian deaths last year occurred between 4 p. m. and midnight.

"Most fatal traffic accidents at any one hour occurred at 8 p. m.—28 in all.

"A comparison of all traffic accidents in 1923 and 1924 shows that most accidents occur at 5 p. m., which is the traffic peak in many parts of the city.

"Thirty-five children under 15 years of age were killed in motor vehicle accidents. A few of these were accompanied and might have been saved had the persons with them used due caution. In many cases motorists showed no consideration for the irresponsibility of children.

Principal Causes of Deaths.

"The following shows the principal causes and number of deaths charged to each cause: Inattention, 77; speed, 42; children, 24; intoxication, 16.

"Responsibility for most of these deaths is placed as follows: Drivers, 103; adult pedestrians, 43; children, 24.

It has been proven that the majority of drivers involved in motor vehicle accidents are experienced drivers. In only one of the 1924 motor vehicle fatalities was inexperience set down as a cause and even in that case it was only as a contributing cause. The driver in that case had owned an automobile for two years, but the evidence indicated that someone else probably had driven the car most of the time.

The operator controls the vehicle, the operator's mind controls the operator—hence it is the operator's mind with which we must deal.

The distraction, irritation and confusion that can be caused by a passenger or a back seat driver are too well known and generally understood to require further comment. Yet, the driver with neither visible nor audible factors to cause confusion may still be, and all too often is, lacking in attention to his duties. Deep cushions, easy springs, pneumatic tires, the purring of a smooth-running motor, all have a tendency to lull the mind of the operator into abstrac-

FORD MOVES TO SOLVE PROBLEM OF THE USED CAR

Orders Dealers to Take and Sell Used Cars According to Definte Rules That Insure Profit.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

DETROIT, March 7. — Henry Ford has just taken a step which will do more to end the used car problem than any that has preceded it. This week he sent out word to all his dealers that, under penalty of losing franchises they must follow this fundamental rule in handling used cars: Offer no more for a used car than the price set for its particular make and model in national used car market ratings, and sell it at a figure that will include that price, the cost of reconditioning the car and 25 per cent for overhead and profit.

Probably Will Be Obeyed.

The order is perhaps the most determined step taken to solve the used car problem. Certainly, due to the broadness of the Ford dealer system, it is the most far-reaching. Needless to say it most likely will be rigidly observed.

No manufacturer has done so much to solve the used car problem, a thorn in the side of all of them, as is represented by this Ford ruling, though admittedly none is in Ford's position to do it. Certainly, if they had been, dealers in every make of car would have had such instructions years ago.

Ends Competitive Bidding.

The Ford order will be watched with interest. It will mean an end of competitive bidding for used cars among Ford dealers. It will also mean a higher used car price to the purchaser, and may also mean a lower allowance on the car to be traded in, as the dealer, free from competition from his fellow Ford dealers, will not be forced to stretch his price to affect a sale.

Ford's order has struck at the root of the used car problem, which arose from the practice of excessive allowances on used cars for the sake of sales. It has been kept alive by continuance of that practice. Rarely have dealers been able to get back what they paid for used cars. When it is recalled that the problem was responsible in 90 per cent of the cases for the 65,000 bankruptcies among dealers in 1923-24, and in 1923 alone cost them $80,000,000, the enormity of the problem and pressing need of some solution is revealed.

Now that Ford has led the way, it is not unlikely that other makers will make like requests on their dealers and that many dealers will find in it a source of courage to handle the problem in equally determined fashion. If they do, automobile merchandising will be freed of its worst evil, to the ultimate good of the maker, the dealer and the public.

NEW HIGHWAY MAP OF MISSOURI AVAILABLE

The Missouri State Highway Commission has authorized publication of a new highway map of the State. The map is now ready for distribution. All State roads, the most important county roads, and all places of interest in the State are shown in red. The map also shows all railroads, county line, rivers, etc. Upon request to the Highway Department at Jefferson City, the map will be sent anywhere for 25 cents, which charge has been authorized by the Commission to cover actual cost.

CUTTING CLOSED CAR COST NOW IS BIGGEST PROBLEM

Production Expense for Bodies Halved in Some Cases, Yet Strength Has Been Increased.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, March 7.—The chief worry of the automobile engineers and manufacturers in 1925 will be how to make closed cars at touring car prices. This will prove a poor "stunt" year, according to general expectations, since engineering experiments are being directed more toward perfection of machinery to make cars cheaply than to machinery to make them run cheaply.

One large producer has found it possible by the use of huge metal stamping machinery to "punch" out about half the metal paneling of a closed body in one operation of the presses. Heretofore several operations were required to accomplish the same result. Greater use is being made of steel for body construction, and the company referred to has effected reduction in labor and materials amounting to nearly 50 per cent in making the closed bodies.

Body Cost Cut in Half.

Probably no business is undergoing at present such changes as the automobile body-building industry. Bodies in some cases which formerly cost the automobile manufacturer $500 can now be produced for about $250 and in the opinion of engineers who have designed them, they are stronger than the old-time bodies and more attractive in appearance.

There seems a feeling in the industry that perhaps too much importance has been placed on some of the "stunts" of automobile construction. Four-wheel brakes came and caused considerable furore, but now are mentioned less often in selling talks and advertising copy. The majority of producers who make products above the so-called "Ford class" furnish four-wheel brakes as regular or optional equipment, but purchasers seem still somewhat divided as to the necessity for this type of wheel control.

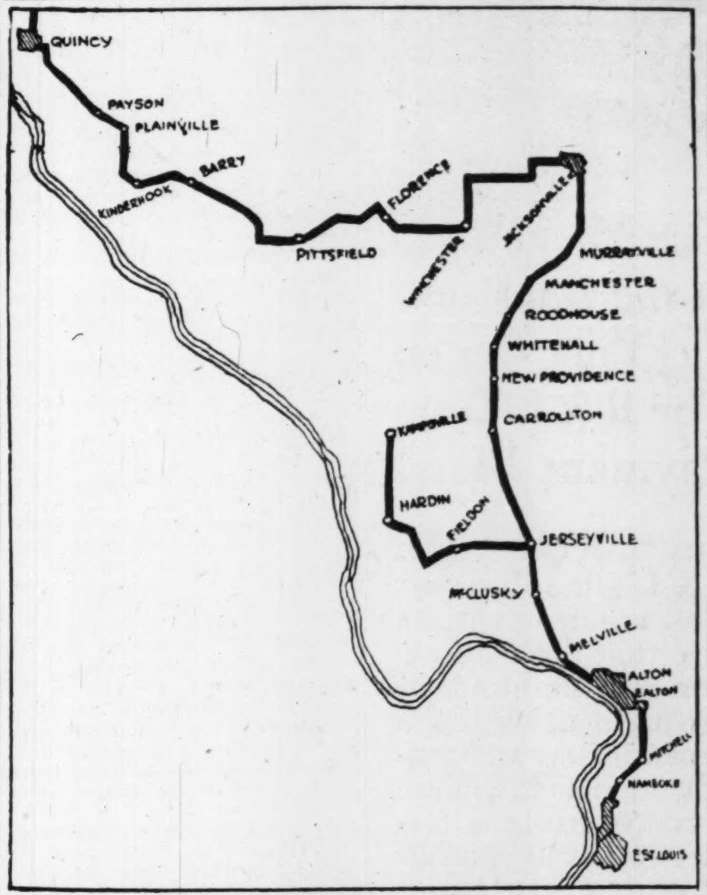
Where Illinois Will Lay Much Concrete Highway This Year



Map showing region between Alton and Quincy, Ill., in which much concrete pavement will be laid by the State this year. Work is to be pushed on routes No. 3, No. 36 and No. 38, as is told in another column on this page.

ROAD WORK NORTH AND NORTHWEST OF ALTON PUSHED

Road to Jacksonville to Be Finished by Summer — Plans for Routes to Quincy and Calhoun County.

By a Special Correspondent.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., March 7.—Officials of the State Highway Department are bending every effort toward completing the last mile of road construction authorized under the $60,000,000 bond issue by the end of the year. They state that no work under the new $100,000,000 issue will be undertaken until the other schedule has been finished.

Progress North of Alton.

The pressure to get road work done will benefit materially motorists of St. Louis and vicinity and West Central Illinois. It will not be long before there will be plenty of good motoring north and northwest of Alton. Route No. 3, through Jerseyville, Carrollton, Whitehall, Roodhouse and Murrayville to Jacksonville, before long will be concrete all the way from Alton to Jacksonville. A contract for paving the last unfinished stretch—between Whitehall and Carrollton—has been awarded and this pavement should be completed early in summer. There are a few gaps without concrete because of plans for railroads that have rights of way at these places.

Plans for Route to Quincy.

No. 36, which runs west and northwest from Jacksonville through Winchester, Florence,

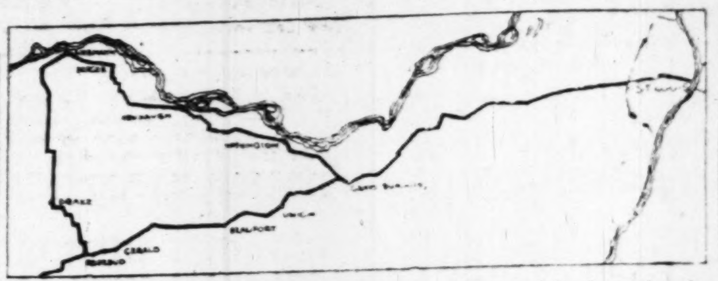
Motor Trip to Hermann Worth Taking

Tour Via Washington and New Haven and Back to St. Louis Over Old Iron Road and No. 12 Made Easily in Day in Hup "Straight Eight."



Map of route from St. Louis to Hermann, Mo., and back to the city via Drake and Union.

An unusually interesting motoring trip of about 200 miles was taken Saturday in one of the new Hup "straight eights" from St. Louis to Washington, New Haven and Hermann, Mo., then down over the Old Iron road to Drake and back into the city on route No. 12 from Jefferson City. This tour traverses some very pretty scenery, and, except for about 10 scattered miles of dirt, can be made in virtually any weather. There is some rough going, but most of trip may be made in comfort and at good speed. The tour has the added advantage that Washington, New Haven and Hermann, all of which are old Missouri River towns, have their picturesque aspects and well repay stopoffs to look them over. Starting about 8 o'clock in the morning one can make the tour and be back in St. Louis any time from 5 to 8 or 9 p. m. The Hup party started at 8:30 a. m., stopped for an hour or so for lunch at Hermann and was back in the city before 5 p. m.

Many Fine Views.

The route goes out the Manchester road on concrete to the St. Louis-Franklin County line. From the end of the concrete to the county line the road is rather rough on through Gray's Summit to where No. 47, the road to Washington, branches off. This road is good gravel all the eight miles to Washington. There is a splendid view over the Missouri River as the road drops down from the ridges to the little city.

Beyond Washington the road is good for about seven miles, then becomes rather rough macadam with occasional rutted spots. This looked as if it would be slippery when wet, but a car could get over it in any weather. About two miles farther on the road became better and for some distance was fair and not very good, and very badly rutted. It wandered in and out of hollows and little woods, and continually there were sweeping views across rolling country with occasional glimpses of the river.

About 16 miles beyond Washington, the road became very fair, to good into New Haven, which is prettily located on a series of hills and along the river bank. The road winds down steeply to the river, and then is good out of town up a grade, onto the ranges again, with some gorgeous views out over the river. The road continues good up and down a number of well engineered grades.

Attractive Country.

About six miles beyond New Haven, the road is not so good for a mile or so, then is fair again, then crosses a bridge over a small creek and follows up a pretty valley. The road gradually rises out of the valley and continues through lightly timbered country, the going being very good.

Eleven miles from New Haven, the road becomes very good dirt, and then, after a mile and a half, enters Berger, beyond which the road is rather rough and jigly to fair on dirt and stone for three miles through river bottom. Then it crosses a bridge over a creek at a rather picturesque place, and follows an old stone road, rather rough and narrow, for another mile, then becomes a dirt road, which would be bad if wet. The road alternates between gravel and dirt with three fords about four miles from Berger, but the country it traverses is generally attractive. About six miles beyond Berger, there is a rough up-grade with several "thank you marms." A half mile farther on, the road becomes better, then drops down to the river bank and a bad railroad crossing to Hermann, which is situated picturesquely along the river.

Leaving Hermann, the party followed Route No. 45, formerly known as the Old Iron Road, which strikes almost due south. For a number of miles the road is splendid gravel through a very pretty country, wandering up hill and down dale, with bits of woods and pretty glimpses of side valleys to lend variety. Nine miles beyond Hermann, there is a double "S" curve down a hill and a little ford. There are some wide views over the bare hills.

Fourteen miles beyond Hermann the road is quite rough for 300 yards, then fair, and then rough to fair for about a mile. It is very fair going the rest of the way, with some mean ruts, to Drake. Twenty-one miles from Hermann.

At Drake, No. 45 runs on with No. 12 from Jefferson City for a little way, and a sign announces it is 82 miles to St. Louis.

Some distance beyond Drake, the party swung to the left and continued along No. 12 into the city. The road is well graded and surfaced with gravel and natural gravel, so it was possible to make very good time in spite of a sleet and rain storm. The State is maintaining this road and a number of road scrapers were encountered at work. About 15 miles beyond Drake and a couple of miles beyond Gerald, two shallow fords were encountered, but neither should give trouble except in a cloud burst. The road continues very good into Union, but from Union to the concrete was rough and jiggly.

How the Car Performed.

The Hup eight, which was driven by Emil Weber of the Weber Implement and Automobile Co., with Joseph Weber and a newspaper man as passengers, performed with a vibrationless smoothness, speed and power that made touring at all kinds of speeds over all manner of roads and grades a pleasure all the time. It sauntered along at two and three miles an hour in high. It flashed in and out of city traffic, its four-wheel brakes bringing it to an almost instantaneous smooth stop, while it accelerated with surprising alertness. One time Weber brought the car down from 35 miles an hour to a stop, then instantly accelerated in high and at the fifth telegraph post had the car running an even 45 miles an hour. It fairly leaped past other cars on the open road when passing.

The entire run was made in high gear, except for stops in the towns and once on a steep, rough hill when a "Thank you, marm" looked so menacing that Weber brought the car to a stop before climbing over it. It picked up in speed on all grades and fairly leaped up and over the Gray's Summit Hill in high; in fact, it showed so much power that it had to be throttled down continually on curves on the grades. It runs as sweetly as a watch at 40 to 45 miles an hour as long as one cares to hold that speed, and at 60 miles and over is vibrationless. The balloon tires and good springs smoothed out the rough stretches so that there was no noticeable jolting.

TREND TOWARD DECREASE IN AUTO ACCIDENTS NOTED

and ban the reckless—hereby receives new impetus.

"The total fatalities in 1924 were 17,345 compared with 16,452 in 1923, an increase of 5.3 per cent."

Among the outstanding facts of the survey compiled by National Automobile Chamber of Commerce from reports by newspapers, health departments and others covering 1924 are the following:

Twenty-nine of the 68 cities having over 100,000 population reduced their accident record.

Fifteen of the cities having 50,000 to 100,000 population achieved reductions.

Thirty-five of the 143 cities having 25,000 to 50,000 persons had an improved record during the past year.

One hundred and seventy-nine cities (mostly between 5000 to 25,000 population) had no motor fatalities during 1924.

"Immediate steps to safeguard traffic are particularly needed in the smaller cities where the rate of increase in fatalities exceeded even the rate of gain in registration."

Hudson is not called "the World's Greatest Buy" for today alone. That is acknowledgment of ten years' constant refinement of a great car around the famous patented Super-Six principle.

The reasons for that position affect all motor car buying. They cannot be ignored.

A supreme and exclusive motor principle, added power, smoothness, performance, without added weight, cylinders or cost.
The largest production of 6-cylinder closed cars in the world—and the value advantages of that position.
Actual proof of greatest value—which is SALES.
And now the greatest price advantage with the finest quality Hudson ever offered.

It is only as you find the real comparisons for Hudson qualities among the costliest cars that the enormous difference in price is so astonishing.

All now know that higher price can buy no smoother performance than Hudson's. It cannot buy more brilliant results in pick-up, power or speed. It cannot buy greater reliability or endurance.

And with all this capacity and flexibility Hudson keeps the economy, simplicity and easy maintenance of the "Six."

At today's prices need you own a lesser car? Can a costlier car satisfy you more?

FOR TEN YEARS-DEPENDABLE

Exceptional dependability has been a characteristic of Dodge Brothers Motor Car since the day the first of these sturdy cars was marketed.

Not once in a decade has it failed to uphold and enhance its reputation for faithful performance.

The reason for its consistent goodness and continued betterment points directly back to the ideals of the founders.

Instead of fluctuating between an endless series of annual models, they determined to concentrate on the perfection of a single chassis.

Dodge Brothers Motor Car today is the embodiment of that ideal—an ideal that will endure as long as the institution itself.

NATION-WIDE LICENSE RECIPROCITY SOUGHT

Motorists Pay Millions Yearly in Taxes to States Other Than Their Own.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, March 7.—The American Automobile Association plans a campaign to get for all motorists the free use of roads without restrictions as to registration fees or license tags other than the motor vehicle taxes they pay their own states and the gas tax they now pay as they go along.

The aim is to get by state action abolition of the system of limited automobile reciprocity whereby the motor tourist is compelled to pay to states registration and license fees after a limited period of time in addition to the dues paid to his own state. The practice is a serious hindrance to the development of touring provides a legal mask for mulcting automobile owners of many millions of dollars every year and subjects them to innumerable delays and annoyances.

Only 14 states and the District of Columbia have put full reciprocity into effect. A motorist from any of these may go into any of the other 13 and use his original state license plate so long as it is good without being required to pay for additional registration and license plates.

In the remaining 34 states the time limit varies from six months to 15 days.

Officials of the A. A. A. pointed out that because of the shortness of the session of Congress just concluded, it was not found possible to get passage of national legislation abolishing restriction on automobile commerce. So it was decided to resort to the other alternative, a campaign to get state Legislatures to amend their motor vehicle laws.

MOST DRIVERS WHO HAVE ACCIDENTS ARE EXPERIENCED

tion—into a false sense of control and security.

The salesman leaves the office of a prospect, steps into his car, through habit goes through the necessary motions to start his car and moves out from the curb with his mind still intent upon the sales effort made in the office he has just left. What happens? He crashes into a machine in the moving lane of traffic—a serious accident due to lack of attention to his driving.

An executive leaves his desk after a day spent with a perplexing problem. He takes the wheel of his machine and begins the homeward drive. He follows his customary route as a matter of habit. His mind is still engrossed with the problem. A child runs out in front of his machine. It is entirely possible that he may never see the child until the shock of striking it or of the wheels passing over its body arouses him.

Almost every day we hear someone say they did not see the pedestrian or the other machine until he or it was right at the fender and he couldn't for the life of him tell where the pedestrian or machine came from. Every day we read of accidents due to confusion on the part of a motorist or pedestrian.

The individual who neglects to keep his mind constantly on his driving or walking and thereby causes injury or death to another or himself is as guilty as the wilful aggressor, for it is obviously but a question between acts of omission or commission.

"The analysis shows that pedestrian traffic dsicipline and control are as necessary for the protection of the pedestrian as motor vehicle regulation is necessary for the safety of the driver and occupants of the car.

"To be effective, the punishment must be of sufficient severity to act as a deterrent not only on the offender involved but on all potential offenders. Punishment must be sure, otherwise the gambling impulse in human nature will nullify its effect.

"It is recommended that an operator's license law with an effective revocation clause be passed to remove from the highway those whose wills do not react to inhibitions created by education and fear of punishment.

"Another element to be considered in street and highway accident prevention is the necessity for unobstructed vision. Proper vehicle lights, well-lighted streets, windshield wipers, keeping windshields free from dust, all tend to reduce accidents. Pedestrians apparently fail to realize that in dark clothes, at night, against a dark background, they are not visible to the driver of a machine except in the strongest rays of the vehicle's lights at close range.

"Automatic traffic signals in the center of an intersection, in addition to facilitating movement of traffic, at congested intersections and making regular breaks in traffic to enable pedestrians to cross, arouse the driver whose mind is preoccupied. When these signals are placed on four corners, they are more frequently violated because of inattention.

"Similarly, the small red lights on railroad crossing gates often fail to arouse the operator whose mind is concentrated on something other than his driving. The report of one railroad alone shows an average of one crossing gate a week smashed. Three drivers were killed in St. Louis last year in this manner. An intermittent flashing light is recommended as more effective in attracting attention than the constant light.

"Likewise, our boulevard stop signs, other stop signs and warning signs, are not sufficient to arouse the consciousness of an operator whose mind is otherwise occupied. In all these cases a distinctive marking should be placed on the roadway 75 or 100 feet from the sign as a warning. Experience has shown these to be effective for even the preoccupied driver's eyes are on the roadway through force of habit.

"Children represent the most difficult problem. As they have not reached the age of discretion, specific causes cannot be charged against them, and the only means of reaching them is through education in the schools and at home."

What's New in Cars

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, March 7.—Four new four-cylinder cars, all butone to sell under $1000, are about to be launched on the market.

One is the so-called "mystery car" that was featured during Chicago automobile show week. It develops tha prime mover in its designing and manufacture is Norval A. Hawkins, former sales manager of the Ford Motor Co.

Chief interest is in the Ajax, to be made by the Nash Motors at the plant it recently bought at Racine, Wis. Specifications of the Ajax are being closely guarded.

The "Mayfair" was announced this week at Boston, and plans are to make it at Jamaica Plains, N. Y. Production is just starting, and the statement is made that the sedan will sell for only $495.

The fourth new four is the "Barbarino," to be made in Brooklyn. It will be semiassembled with 3⅛-inch bore, 4½-inch stroke, 110 wheel base, selective transmission, four mechanical brakes, balloon tires and a number of European features. No bodies are to be built, these being supplied by the dealer or purchaser. The chasis will sell for $1500.

Practical automobile men who inspected the Hawkins' car at the Chicago show and elsewhere pronounce it an extremely serviceable vehicle, embodying features found only on much higher-priced cars. It is reported to have been tested for 18 months under severe conditions, and to have come through satisfactorily. It is said the car will appear in a full line of models, the most expensive of which will be under $900.

Hawkins emulates the Dodge Brothers, Frank Klingensmith, former vice president and general manager of the Ford Motor Co., who founded the Gray car; and Alex. Y. Malcomson, one of Ford's original backers, in leaving the Ford organization to build a car of his own. The Dodges and Klingensmith met with success, considerable in the case of the former. Malcomson quit after a company he started failed with only 20,000 cars to its credit. Malcomson placed James Couzens in a clerical capacity with Ford. Malcomson early lost heart over the company's seemingly drab future and sold his holdings to Couzens for a few thousands. In 1919 Couzens sold those same holdings back to Ford for $30,000,000.

Another "Straight Eight."

Another maker, the Kurtz Motor Car Co. of Cleveland, has joined the eight-in-line ranks. It soon will offer a new straight eight-in-one model, a brougham, with automatic gearshift, dashboard, emergency brake, hydraulic brakes and balloon tires. This makes the eleventh company to produce "straight eights," seven of them having entered the field since Jan. 1. Kurtz will continue to make six-cylinder cars.

Drives Across Australia.

An Olds six has just been driven from Darwin across Australia to Adelaide, a distance of 2091 miles in nine days and nine hours elapsed time. Much of the route was over bushmen's trails. The driver had to carry his own food, and gasoline was sent ahead by camel team and bury it in caches.

On Auto Row

T. F. FOWLER, manager of the export division of the Gardner Motor Co., Inc., St. Louis, reports an order for 60 Gardner cars from Jacobo Mauthe at Buenos Aires. Mauthe, who has represented Gardner in the Argentine for the last nine months, stipulated in his order that the cars be shipped in four lots of 15 each, over a period of six weeks. The cars will go on Mississippi barges which will carry them to New Orleans, where they will be transferred to ocean steamers. To cover his order for these cars, Mauthe established letters of credit in New York for $63,000. Available statistics, Fowler says, indicate that this one order comprises about 35 per cent of the American-made cars in Gardner's price class which Argentina imports each month.

Production Increasing.

The automobile industry moved toward higher production the past week, taking on its first aspect of quantity production with the turn of March. Average for the industry is now 80 per cent, with plants such as Packard, Nash and Chevrolet and falling behind orders. The greatest activity is among low-priced cars. Production of them is considerably higher than that of medium-priced and quality models. Though output is at the highest point thus far this year, makers persist in their new practice of making output adhere closely to actual sales. The latter, judging from reports received in the Detroit area, are improving in almost every section. Unfilled orders far surpassing expectation, factory in full production, and increase of working force by more than 200 per cent the past six weeks, following introduction of the new Wills Sainte Claire six at the New York show are reported by the Wills Sainte Claire factory.

February Production Total.

Figures compiled from shipping reports and submitted to the directors of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce indicate a production of 277,600 cars and trucks in February. This is a 15 per cent increase over the January figures. Output figures reflect actual sales this year, it is stated. Reports from dealers in most sections of the country bear this out, stating that new car stocks are light, that used vehicle inventories are cleaning up and that demand in the truck field continues active. Winter sales have been better than last year in the Middle West, though lighter on both coasts.

Dealers Visit Distributer.

The following Hudson-Essex dealers in this territory visited the offices of the Hudson-Frampton Motor Car Co., Hudson-Essex distributer, during auto show week: Charles M. Strawn, Jacksonville, Ill.; Ralph Eddleman and R. R. Sims, Duquoin, Ill.; Leslie Lewis and Charles Maulding, Mt. Vernon, Ill.; W. Crashaw and Herman Arbeiter, Murphysboro, Ill.; John Williams, Benton, Ill.; W. O. Ragsdale, Cape Girardeau, Mo.; George Hemphill, Kennett, Mo.; Dr. J. B. McKinney, New Madrid, Mo.; Jack Taylor, Columbia, Mo.; A. H. Bartlett, Hillsboro, Ill.; A. M. Borlin, Carrollton, Ill.; Jess Byerly, East St. Louis; George Cassens, Edwardsville, Ill.; Dr. L. M. Cone, Campbell, Mo.; James Davis, Sesser, Ill.; D. A. Mallicoat, De Soto, Mo.; John Green, Metropolis, Ill.; Jess O'Neil, Jefferson City, Mo.; August Langenfeld and Joe Langenfeld, Centralia, Ill.; E. J. Meckfessel, Belleville; Pat. Schrieber, Red Bud, Ill.; George Perringer, Fredericktown, Mo.; Leonard Shade, Caruthersville, Mo.; Walter Thormann, Washington, Mo., and Alex. Wernert, Louisiana, Mo.

New Truck Rolls Up Sales.

The Knight sleeve-valve engine is no longer a dream, says G. Edward Bleil, manager of the Federal Motor Truck Co. branch in St. Louis. The Federal-Knight one-ton truck was put on the market last August, and to date 3000 of them have been sold at retail, while 678 dealers have taken franchises to sell it.

Factory Official Here.

Sid Black, vice president and general manager of the Cleveland Motor Car Co., was a guest of the Cleveland Motor Sales Co., local Cleveland distributer, at the automobile show.

Adds Accessory Department.

The Weber Motor Car Co. has established an accessary department in charge of Homer Weber. The firm will distribute Lomar shock absorbers and Majestic bumpers besides retailing accessories to its Studebaker owners and buyers.

Ford Plans Factory in Japan.

The Ford Motor Co. of Japan, Ltd., has been organized and will build an assembly plant at Yokohama. Manufactured parts for this plant will be shipped from the Ford plant at Kearney, N. J., which undoubtedly will be expanded. Japan has been absorbing about 250 Ford cars monthly, but sales have been hindered by lack of facilities.

Factory Sales Manager Here.

"The automobile buyer of today is quick on the trigger and loses little time in determining what is the latest thing in engineering or body design and the best buy on the market," says R. T. Hodgkins, general sales manager of the Rickenbacker Motor Co., who was in St. Louis this week as the guest of the Diesing Motor Sales Co., Rickenbacker distributor, to study conditions in this territory during the auto show. Manufacutrers who have vainly tried during the past two or three years to stem the tide of progress have found to their cost the average buyer is pretty well informed and always on the alert to discover newer and better things in automobiles. When I left the factory we were more than 2000 cars behind orders. Never in my experience in the automobile industry—and I have been the general sales manager of large concerns for several years—have I seen so many telegrams pour into a factory in any one day, as we received every day last week, all begging for immediate deliveries. If the demand is like this in February, what will it be in May?

To Continue Duesenberg Car.

The receivership under which the Duesenberg Co. has been operating has been terminated, the stockholders and creditors having bought its property and assets and turned them over to the newly organized Duesenberg Motors Co., of which Fred S. Duesenberg is president. The Duesenberg "straight eight" will be continued. Baarent Ten Broek of St. Louis, is one of the directors of the new company.

Ford Sales in January.

January sales of Ford cars and trucks totaled 103,022. In addition the Ford Co. sold 4156 Fordson tractors and 395 Lincoln cars. Domestic retail deliveries in January were 76,062 Ford cars, 13,796 trucks, 3384 Fordsons and 371 Lincoln cars. Foreign sales figures in the totals do not include those in Canada or British possessions which are served by the Ford Motor Co. of Canada, Ltd.

Visit Local Distributor.

A number of Rollin officials were guests of Methudy & Page, Inc., the new St. Louis distributor of Rollin cars, at the auto show. Among them were C. D. Fleming, treasurer of the Rollin Motor Co. of Cleveland; F. N. Morgan, Oklahoma district manager; P. P. Kearney of Kansas City, assistant district manager of the Chicago district; G. D. Groce, manager of the Rollin experimental department; F. N. Sager, service manager in the Chicago district, and Carl T. Metzger, Chicago district manager of sales.

Tire Dealers to Meet Tuesday.

The Associated Tire Dealers will hold a dinner meeting at 7:30 p. m. Tuesday at Hotel Claridge. A. J. Kruse of the Associated Retail Credit Bureau will be the principal speaker, and will discuss the tire credit situation. The cards showing schedules of maintenance charges will be distributed, and there will be an attendance prize.

Factory Executive Changes.

I. J. Reuter has been made general manager of the Olds motor division for General Motors. He was transferred from the Remy electrical division.

Frank E. Witt, general manager of the Chicago Flint Co., has become general sales manager of the Flint Motor Co., with headquarters at the Flint factory. A. F. Jenkins has been named as assistant general sales manager.

The Prest-O-Light Co. of Indianapolis announces appointment of Henry Knippenberg, formerly of the Homer McKee company, as sales promotion manager.

Safeguard the Owner's Investment

American business has bought more than 100,000 Speed Wagons, to serve in every class of commercial haulage, because the Speed Wagon is fundamentally sound in vital elements:

The Speed Wagon is the most economical 2500-pound commercial car in the world, according to initial investment, price per pound pay-load, per horsepower or any other basis of computing relative values.

No other vehicle combines so much power and ruggedness per pound chassis weight, is so capable of easy owner-attention, nor is so widely backed by service facilities.

The Speed Wagon makes hurried travel safe on highway routes or on city streets.

The stability of Reo as an institution guarantees the permanence of the Speed Wagon, thereby insuring the maximum resale or trade-in value.

John Smith and His Car

by FREDERICK RUSSELL

THE BATTERY BALKS.

ILLNESS had prevented Smith from using the car for about a week, and during the time that the car had been standing in the garage the weather had been very cool and damp. When he tried to start the car he forgot to pull out the choker and the result was he consumed a lot of the battery's energy before the engine started.

"I can't understand that," he said, several mornings later when the battery failed him entirely. "I put distilled water in the cells religiously and use the lights sparingly when the car is not running."

"The amount of electrolyte in the battery has nothing to do with this case," I explained. "Your carburetor is adjusted for a lean mixture, so since the weather has been cool and damp the battery has had to work much harder than usual in order to start the engine. You stalled the motor three times yesterday morning before you reached the street, and you have been making a good many stops around town. Naturally the battery has become gradually discharged because you have not given it any assistance."

Smith thought this over and then asked:

"Do you know where I can get another battery right away? I need the car this morning."

"This battery will do you well enough for today," I replied. "If you will pull out the choker and crank over the engine a few times by hand, I'll show you how."

"Not on your life!" Smith exclaimed. "If you want to break your arm, go ahead."

It seemed like repeating an old story to tell him where he was wrong, for he should have reasoned that he never could have a backfire with the ignition shut off—not even if he cranked away all day. There is danger of a backfire in cranking with the ignition turned on, but my suggestion was simply that he do the battery's work of cranking the motor until the cylinders were filled with raw gas. Then if the battery could make even a feeble attempt at operating the starter motor the engine would most likely start.

We tried this, but found that the battery was too far discharged to even give the starter motor one turn. At this point I told Smith that if he had given the engine a few turns with the hand crank on each of the damp mornings the battery would have been spared all the additional work and he would have been spared his present inconvenience. I added, too, that by giving the battery a rest for a few minutes after it fails it will sometimes gather enough strength to do the trick. I warned him, however, not to crank too much by hand, for this would be simply flooding the engine with raw gas, making it as difficult for a cylinder to fire as when it is gasless.

When I found that the battery was too dead to be encouraged, I turned on the ignition and gave the hand crank a quick upward pull, turning, of course, in clockwise direction. The engine started right off.

If I had attempted to turn the crank all the way around, or had just pressed downward with it, I might have had a backfire and a broken arm. I then told Smtih that if he ever was stuck with a dead battery and didn't want to try cranking with the ignition turned on, he often could start the engine by having someone push the car.

"Put the gears in second," I explained, "turn on the ignition and throw out the clutch. When your helper starts the car rolling let in the clutch quickly and the engine will start."

"That is all very well," Smith commented, pointing to the motor, which was now humming away, "but how am I going to start the next time I have stopped."

"If you will let the engine run that way for 10 minutes," I replied, "the battery will be strong enough to crank it again. It will probably do all your work for the rest of the day, for it will be constantly charged by the generator and the engine will be warm. But if you try to start the motor tomorrow morning without giving the battery a 'lift' you can expect the same trouble again. Of course, it will pay you to have this battery recharged at the service station as soon as possible, but if you don't do anything to help the battery during periods of excessive discharge recharging will be only a temporary gain. It's well to be on your guard for such unseasonable turns of the weather, for they are not confined to any particular month of the year or locality.

Next week: ONE COLD MORNING.

ROAD WORK NORTH AND NORTHWEST OF ALTON PUSHED

Pittsfield, Barry, Kinderhook, Plainville and Payson to Quincy, has been finished between Jacksonville and Pittsfield. It still is necessary, however, to ferry across the Illinois River. Contracts have been awarded for paving an 8½ mile stretch northwest from Pittsfield. On March 16, bids will be received for paving a 15-mile stretch on No. 36 southeast from Quincy. Bids for the 18-mile stretch between these sections have been received, but no contracts will be awarded until details concerning the rights of way have been settled. Much grading must be done on this particular section.

In Calhoun County.

Route No. 38, which runs from Jerseyville into the Calhoun County apple region, also is scheduled for early completion, except the last stretch from Hardin to Kampsville. Heavy grading is necessary before concrete can be poured, and this is progressing satisfactorily. Concrete has been laid for about eight miles on No. 38 out of Jerseyville, and bids are being received for paving the next three and a half miles. From the end of this second stretch the surveyors are busy on the route to Hardin.

CUTTING CLOSED CAR COST IS NOW BIGGEST PROBLEM

Several concerns have attempted to market four wheel brake systems for Ford cars, but have made little progress. The Ford Co. has taken no official notice of four-wheel brakes either, but it appears safe to say that the new brakes have come to stay on cars selling in the $1000 and upward classes.

A good many trade authorities feel that the volume of sales of balloon tires for replacing high pressure tires depends to some extent on whether they are brought down to or below the price of cords. Motorists are divided on the necessity for balloon tires, but it is undeniably true that once a driver has used balloons he seldom is willing to go back to high pressure casings.

Don't Wait for Your Ship to Come In

Don't let the ship of prosperity ride at anchor; be your own power boat and bring it in. Don't depend on luck or expect "something to turn up;" but seize the opportunity on every hand to buy St. Louis real estate.

On every side of the city are attractive residential and suburban districts, investments which will open the way to home and fortune. St. Louis, marching forward—constantly growing — means rising real estate values.

Don't envy the man that made a fortunate investment ten years ago. Don't wish you had his opportunity. You have his opportunity if you only make use of it.

There are many beautiful home spots in and around St. Louis where any man would be proud and happy to make his home—to live the way he has always wanted his family to live—to be a better neighbor and a better citizen.

Don't consider St. Louis property as only an investment for wealth; it is the best possible investment for health and happiness. Talk it over with your wife today. Investigate what the dealers have to offer you.

Read the "Real Estate" columns of the Post-Dispatch every day. They contain valuable information regarding wise real estate investments.

ILLINOIS MUSICIANS ON KSD PROGRAMS

Symphony Orchestra, Broadcast by This Station, Ends Its Season Next Saturday Night.

The broadcasting of concerts given by the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra this season will end with the Symphony concert of Saturday night. That will be the outstanding feature of the week's schedule at Radio Station K S D and will immediately precede the orchestra's departure for its annual spring festival tour through the states of the Middle West and Southwest. With this exception and two others, the programs scheduled for the week will be given by organizations and artists from the neighboring State of Illinois.

On Monday night St. Paul's Band of Waterloo, Ill., will give its second concert at K S D, the first having taken place last year. On Tuesday night Shurtleff College of Upper Alton, Ill., will send its glee club to K S D for a program, and on Thursday night Mrs. Emil Bansbach and Miss Hilda Torstensen, two popular artists of Springfield, Ill., will give a recital at this station.

On the same evening Miss Margaret Nolan, soprano; Miss Lois Gage, pianist, and A. J. Cameron, baritone, will present a studio recital which will begin at 10:30 o'clock. In the dinner music at the Missouri Athletic Association played Tuesday evening by Rader's Orchestra there will be as a special number a cello solo, Saint-Saen's "Swan," to be played by A. Torgove, a member of the cello section of the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra.

Speakers this week will be Dr. A. G. Pohlman, who will discuss "Appreciation of Music (Allegro con brio)," and E. J. Brennan, whose subject will be "The interior Decorator." Dr. Pohlman will speak on Monday night at 9 o'clock and Brennan at 8 o'clock on Thursday night. In the Home Hour Program of Thursday afternoon there will be a special talk on sport clothes for women, given by Miss Margaret Rohrman.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

The Post-Dispatch Radio Department cannot undertake to answer questions by mail.

Q. Please publish instructions for making a wave trap. J. A. M.

A. A good wave trap may be made by placing a .0005 mf variable condenser across a 50-turn coil of wire wound on a three-inch tube. To connect this to a set attach one end of the coil to the antenna and the other to the antenna binding post on the set.

Q. Will the efficiency of a set be reduced by putting the instruments farther apart? M. R.

A. There are sets that work best with the instruments spread out over a large area and others that work very efficiently when the parts are placed close together. The position of the various parts depends upon the kind of a set that you make.

Q. Will connecting a set throughout with pigtail wire improve it? J. B.

A. No, it would make very little difference whether you used pigtail or solid copper wire. Solid copper or tinned copper wire or bus bar is much easier to handle and is as good as could be used.

Q. In building a neutrodyne the directions call for 23-plate condensers. Suppose I use 17-plate condensers, what difference would it have in tuning? J. F. K.

A. If the specifications designate 23-plate condensers and you used smaller ones the result would be that you would not be able to pick up stations on the higher wave lengths.

Q. I would like to know the correct number of turns for a primary and secondary coil, both stationary, to be used in the antenna circuit of a two-tube regenerative receiver.

A. Twenty-five turns of wire on the primary and 40 on the secondary wound on a 4-inch tube is about right. If your set oscillates too easily try a tickler coil instead of a plate variometer.

Q. How many turns of wire should be wound on the primary and secondary of a tuned radio frequency transformer using a 23 plate condenser to tune the secondary?—J. B. L.

A. Start out with six turns on the primary and 60 on the secondary. If the amplifier goes into oscillation too easily try cutting down the number of turns on the primary. If signal strength is not good use eight turns on the primary instead of six. If the set will not tune to the shorter wave lengths decrease the number of turns on the secondary of the radio frequency transformer.

Q. We have a five-tube set and fail to get very good service. We would appreciate it very much if you could tell us why this is.—J. W. B.

A. From the information that you have given it would be impossible to suggest what might be wrong with your set. Take it to a radio repair or service station and have them examine it.

Q. 1—I am using an ultra-audion set and have difficulty in keeping it tuned to any station. When I tune in for a distant station I turn the filament rheostat and variable condenser until I hear a carrier wave. Then I turn down the filament rheostat until a point is reached where the signals are clear and distinct. This lasts only a few seconds and then fades away. I cannot hold the filament where the music is best. Where do you think the trouble is? 2.—Why is it that I cannot tune out K S D and have no difficulty in tuning out WCK and WIL? —F. S.

A. 1. It is quite probable that some of the trouble that you have encountered is due to the filament rheostat. If the wire on it is of a poor grade its resistance will vary and detune your set. However, the ultra audion circuit is noted for such action. This particular set and others that control regeneration by variations of filament current are wrong in principle. Regeneration should be controlled by varying the feed back from the plate to the grid circuit either by the use of a ticker coil or a feed back condenser, and the tuning of these should not affect the tuning of the other circuits. When you vary the rheostat of any tube set you also vary the output of the tube. On the short wave lengths you do not get but a portion of the maximum output from the tube. When tuned to the longer wave lengths you very probably burn the tube at a temperature higher than the point of saturation and seriously cut down the life of the filament. It is true that such sets work, that is they pick up distant stations and give fairly good volume, but that is no proof that you would not get better results if you used a better designed set. At the very least the ease of operation of a well made regenerative set makes it well worth while. Such a circuit was published in these columns in the edition of Feb. 15. 2. The main reason why you are unable to tune out KSD is that your set tunes very broad. You are able to tune out other local stations because they do not use such high power and the chances are that your set does not pick up the short wave length stations as well as it does those operating on longer wave lengths.

Q. Where can I obtain a copy of the book, "Experimental Radio," written by Prof. R. R. Ramsay of Indiana University?—A. A.

A. From the University Book Store at Bloomington, Ind.

Q. Will a neutrodyne set re-radiate or rebroadcast?—W. W.

A. No.

Q. 1. Can a battery be used with a crystal set, and if so will it increase the efficiency of the set? 2. Is galena better than silicon? F. S.

A. 1. There are crystals that work best when used with a battery. Carborundum is one of them This crystal is noted for its ability to hold an adjustment and when used with a battery is about as sensitive silicon. Galena and other crystals that are popular today are more sensitive than carborundum and do not need a battery. 2. Yes.

Q. Please advise how a six-volt battery may be used with UV 199 tubes. W. R. T.

A. Disconnect one cell of the storage battery, or, in other words, just use two cells. That will give you four volts which will operate one or more UV 199 tubes quite satisfactorily.

Q. Where are stations WSRF and KFUP? V. H. B.

A. As far as we know the call letters WSRF have not been assigned to any broadcasting station. KFUP is located at Denver, Colo., and is operated by the Fitzsimons' General Hospital.

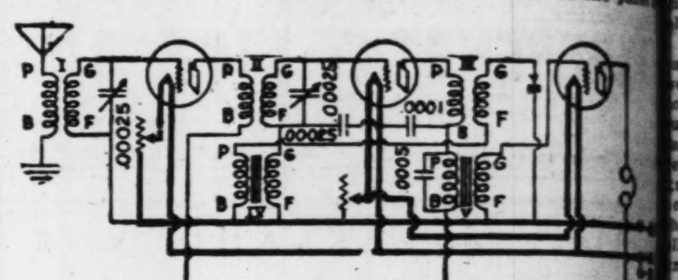
A Reflex That Is Easy to Build

Development of reflex receiving sets is already making great progress, due largely to the recent announcement that the United States Navy Department will license all reputable American manufacturers under the navy owned patents, which are basic on reflex and radio frequency circuits. One of the first concerns to have its application for a license approved by Secretary Wilbur was the All-American Radio Corporation.

The engineering staff of this concern has worked out a circuit which is extremely simple to build and operate, and which will give much more than ordinary strength from a minimum amount of apparatus. The reflex circuit has long been recognized as about the most economical to construct and operate and, in the circuit here described, three tubes will do the work of five under ordinary circumstances.



The three tube reflex embodies two stages of radio frequency, detector, and two stages of audio frequency amplification. The set is highly selective and is capable of receiving from long distances. A crystal detector is used and gives the circuit true and faithful reproduction. The range of the set is not limited by the crystal detector, as the signal is amplified by two tubes before it reaches the detector. In this manner signals that are too faint to be heard with a crystal set are readily reproduced.

In contrast with many types of receiving sets that use three main tuning dials, the reflex has but two, which greatly simplifies tuning. The two condenser dial settings follow each other closely and can be accurately "logged" so that a station can be found again by turning the dials to the same place. The circuit is non-oscillating and therefore will not interfere with other receiving sets in the neighborhood.

To construct the receiver will need the following appara

2 25-ohm rheostats.

2 3-to-1 type R-21 All-Americ audio frequency transformers.

1 Type R-201A self-tuned American radio frequency former.

2 Type R-140 All-American versal couplers.

2 .0005 mfd. variable conden

1 .0001, 1 .00025 and 1 .0005 fixed mica condensers.

3 All-American vacuum sockets.

7 binding posts.

1 7x18x3-16 panel.

1 7x17x½ baseboard.

1 semi-fixed crystal detector.

Mount the apparatus as show the rear view of the receiver the variable condensers and two rheostats on the panel. the sockets and radio transfo in line at the rear of the pan as to make all leads as short direct as possible. If a fixed tal detector is used, then it mounted directly on the fixed frequency transformer. If a justable or semi-fixed crystal used, then it should be mo in the front panel where it easily adjusted.

The wiring of the receive simple. All leads are short usually run from a binding one transformer to the binding on an adjacent transformer by eliminating the need of ing connections in all but a places. In making the conne on the fixed condensers it to use a small machine screw nut, making a bend in the wire placing the loop of wire under head of the screw and tight It is not advisable to solder metal ends of the condenser heat of the iron is liable to the capacity of the condenser.

A BATTERY ATTENTION.

The cost of operation can be cut if a few simple directions are followed with the A battery. Considerable power is lost in overcoming the resistance due to unclean corroded connections. The battery terminals may easily be kept clean by polishing them occasionally with fine sandpaper and the same should be done to the terminals of the battery leads.

The top of the battery should be kept free from acid and water, as the presence of either one will cause the current to leak from one cell to the other. Only distilled water should be used in filling the battery and enough should always be present to come at least ¼ inch above the top of the plates.

Bermuda to Have Station.

A broadcasting station has been authorized and is under construction in the island of Bermuda. Radio fans in Hamilton report reception from European and American broadcasters.

Can't Use Bureau's Name.

The United States Bureau of Standards has forbidden the use of its name in connection with the sale by various manufacturers of dry batteries for radio sets.

NEW TYPE OF INSULAT

A new crystal type insul made of glass, claimed to have sile strength greater than the nary antenna wire, has been pl on the market by the Brach M ufacturing Co. Nation-Wide-Recognition

EVERYWHERE in the United States Formica is recognized as the leading insulation for radio purposes—among manufacturers, jobbers, dealers, and all users of radio sets who build their own.

They know Formica stands for uniform quality and for mechanical and dielectric strength; that it will not warp, sag, and that screws and binding posts will remain tight indefinitely when fastened to it.

Formica is used by 125 leading manufacturers of radio sets. Be sure to insist that your dealer give you Formica when you buy a radio panel, or base panel.

other receiving sets in the neighborhood.

To construct the receiver you will need the following apparatus:

2 25-ohm rheostats.

2 3-to-1 type R-21 All-American audio frequency transformers.

1 Type R-201A self-tuned All-American radio frequency transformer.

2 Type R-140 All-American universal couplers.

2 .0005 mfd. variable condensers.

1 .0001, 1 .00025 and 1 .0005 mfd. fixed mica condensers.

3 All-American vacuum tube sockets.

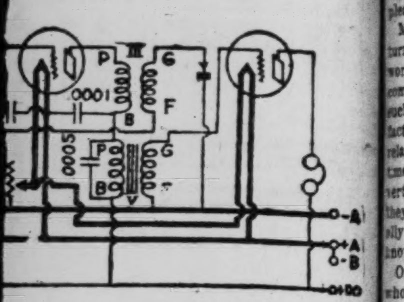
7 binding posts.

1 7x18x3-16 panel.

1 7x17x½ baseboard.

1 semi-fixed crystal detector.

Mount the apparatus as shown in the rear view of the receiver with the variable condensers and the two rheostats on the panel. Mount the sockets and radio transformers in line at the rear of the panel so as to make all leads as short and direct as possible. If a fixed crystal detector is used, then it may be mounted directly on the fixed radio frequency transformer. If an adjustable or semi-fixed crystal is used, then it should be mounted in the front panel where it can be easily adjusted.



The wiring of the receiver is simple. All leads are short, and usually run from a binding post on one transformer to the binding post on an adjacent transformer, thereby eliminating the need of soldering connections in all but a few places. In making the connections on the fixed condensers it is well to use a small machine screw and nut, making a bend in the wire and placing the loop of wire under the head of the screw and tightening. It is not advisable to solder to the metal ends of the condenser as the heat of the iron is liable to change the capacity of the condenser.

NEW TYPE OF INSULATOR.

A new crystal type insulator made of glass, claimed to have tensile strength greater than the ordinary antenna wire, has been placed on the market by the Brach Manufacturing Co. The insulation depends primarily upon the high test glass, free of lead yet mechanically strong. It has wide flanges similar to other types of radio insulators. The idea of the corrugated surface is to give a length of five and a half inches against creepage of the high frequency currents, although the distance between the two rings is only three inches. Flanges also offer drip points for rain or snow, which otherwise might cause leakage of the incoming currents.

Dial Vernier.

To keep the rubber tipped pencil from moving away from the dial, drive a phonograph needle through the panel at the edge of the dial. The rubber in the pencil can be forced onto the needle and then on the dial. It cannot slip and good vernier control will be obtained.

HOME SET BUILDERS ON THE INCREASE

Revival of Demand for Parts Is One of the Notable Developments of the Radio Season.

In every stage of the development of radio, from the beginning down to the present, the number of homemade sets has largely exceeded the number of assembled sets bought readymade.

Not only have the majority of radio users built sets for their own use, but the growth of radio has been marked by an increasing number of what have come to be called "attic manufacturers," that is, ingenuous individuals interested in radio and skilled in the use of their hands, who have not only built sets for themselves, but have made something of a business of building sets for other people, either for pleasure or profit.

Many such individuals who have turned their attics into little radio workshops have made a good income. There are several thousand such persons who are "attic manufacturers" of sets for their friends, relatives, neighbors, and sometimes for radio concerns. Some advertise to the general public that they will build or repair sets, usually specializing in some well-known circuit.

One man in a New York suburb who conducted a garage found that he could earn more money making sets than he could repairing automobiles, so he put some one in charge of the garage and he is constructing several radio sets a week and making excellent wages. The great majority of the attic manufacturers, however, make sets during spare time and on holidays and Saturday afternoons.

These attic manufacturers are an important factor in radio, and recently they have become more important than ever before. There was a time during the last year or so when the number dropped off from what it had been previously. This was due to the fact that the market for a while was flooded with cheap sets. Many persons bought such sets in haste and repented at leisure when they discovered glaring defects, and especially when they got out of order and no service facilities were available.

The "attic manufacturers," on the other hand, usually build sets from standard parts sold by brand names, and if anything goes wrong with the sets there is both the guarantee of the manufacturer and the service which the attic manufacturer or the parts manufacturer provides. For instance, one well known parts manufacturer, which dominates the amplifying transformer field, maintains seven service stations in various parts of the country in which it renders free service to owners and builders of sets using their parts. These have been a tremendously popular feature of the company's service to radio builders and users, and many letters and callers comment on the value of such service.

A company which has from the beginning catered to amateurs wishing to build their own sets had distributed three-quarters of a million copies of a treatise on set building, and this has become a handbook among radio fans and attic manufacturers everywhere. Individuals wishing a set and who do not feel that they could build one themselves would not have to look long among their friends to find an "attic manufacturer" who, either for the fun of the job or for a small fee, would build a set for him. It can readily be seen that the "attic manufacturer" is one of the factors which has made radio the great industry it has become in but a few short years.

HELPFUL RADIO HINTS.

Use a water pipe (preferably the coldwater pipe) for the ground to your receiving set. It will almost invariably give you better results than other grounds, such as the radiator, the gas pipe or fire escapes. Of course, it does no harm to use them all at once if you like, then you will be sure of getting at least one good one. Usually the cold water pipe is sufficient.

You may be able to get an increase in efficiency equal to as much as 50 to 75 per cent by merely switching the tubes around in the different sockets in your set. First tune in a signal, and then take two of the tubes from the sockets and reverse them, putting them each in the other's socket. keep on doing this in various combinations until you hit on the particular combination that gives you the loudest results.

Never test "B" batteries by short-circuiting it with a screwdriver, or with any piece of metal, to see if you get a good spark. This will ruin a good battery in a short time. Don't use a cheap voltmeter. Use a high-resistance voltmeter that is made for this purpose.

Don't forget to check the polarity of your head-set when putting it on an amplifier. If you don't get the polarity right, the permanent magnets in the phones will be demagnetized, and will be rendered practically worthless.

Keep a good watch on the diaphragms of the telephones. If they are bent, even if ever so slightly, it will practically ruin them for reception. Get a couple of new ones, anyway, and see how much better they work in the phones.

Don't throw away the No. 6 dry cells when they are too far run down for your set. Use them on the door bell, and they'll last nearly as long as new ones, in the latter service.

Sometimes, when using a bulb charger, you will find the filament sagging, which indicates an approach of the end of its life. If this is the case, you can quite often save the tube for many more hours, if you turn it upside down and let the sag go the other way.

Don't try to use old batteries in the plate circuits of your set, unless you want plenty of unaccountable noises. B batteries that are more than about 15 per cent lower in voltage than normal should be replaced, as they have served their useful life.

Don't forget that it is better to put up a reasonably short antenna than a long one. Also if the lead in is very long, it will often serve as a very good antenna, without any flat-top portion.

Never let the radio set stand before an open window. It might rain and the set would be damaged if it were to get wet. Even if the set were not touched by the water itself, it might be damaged by the moisture carried in by the atmosphere.

Sixth Victor Concert.

On the Victor Artists' program next Thursday night the performers will be the International Novelty Orchestra, the Peerless Quartet; Billy Murray, singer of popular songs; Rudy Wiedoft, saxophone soloist, and Henry Burr, tenor.

The concert will be broadcast by Station WEAF, New York, and 13 other stations.

Coil Winding.

The easiest way taps may be taken off is by winding on a certain number of turns and the wire twisted together at the point so as to make a five or six inch loop and a certain number of turns again wound on the tube and the next tap made in a similar manner. Or, a neater looking job is made by winding on a certain number of turns before making a tap and then allow six inches for a tap; push a hole in the tube and push the wire through it; push another hole in the tube about a quarter inch from the other and close to the last turn of wire and allow six inches for a tap and join the two six-inch ends together on the inside of the tube.

A German firm has been commissioned to install the first radio broadcasting and receiving station in Turkey.

REGULATION IN HOLLAND.

The Netherlands has adopted a form af radio regulation which follows that in effect in England, according to reports from The Hague. Under a new system radio amateurs, which is understood to apply to broadcast listeners, will pay a small amount to a national broadcasting company which plans to organize all wireless interests there, including commercial, amateur, industrial and intellectual. A broadcasting station at Hilversum is planned.

Vacuum Tube Efficiency.

Changing the tubes around in the set often improves the operation of the receiver. Vacuum tubes rarely are exactly the same, even though of the same type. Some tubes are better as radio-frequency amplifiers, some as detectors, and some as audio-frequency amplifiers. Change them around until they are placed to work most efficiency. But be careful not to get a "dry cell" tube into a "storage-battery" socket.

NEW BEAM STATIONS.

WASHINGTON, March 7.—Two beam radio stations to communicate respectively with England and with Canada will be erected in Australia under an agreement by the Amalgamated Wireless, Ltd., and the Marconi Co., Ltd., according to reports to the Department of Commerce. The Marconi Co. which is supplying apparatus and material, has guaranteed that the station for English traffic will have a capacity of 43,000 words duplex daily. The stations are to be in operation 12 months from date of signing of the contract.

Erin is having its first radio exposition from Feb. 23 to 28, inclusive, in Dublin. The Irish Free State is soon to have its own broadcasting station.

GIANT TRANSMITTER FOR SHENANDOAH

Aircraft Will Have a Sending More Powerful Than All but Two Broadcasters.

Although the Shenandoah has broken nearly all radio records with her short-wave set, her radio operators are ambitious and hope to establish new achievements with the new long-wave high-powered transmitter just installed.

When this air cruiser makes her trial trip on March 3, after being overhauled and filled with fresh helium, she will test out her new high-power radio transmitter. The new radio equipment is 2 KW in power, the strongest set ever installed in an aircraft, and more powerful than all but WEAF and KGO of our big broadcasting stations.

The transmitting equipment, designed and built at the Bellevue laboratory, covers a band between 500 and 1500 meters, although the ordinary calling wave will be 952 meters. The set is the result of designs laid out for long-range radio apparatus, when it was first planned to send the Shenandoah to the North Pole, a little over a year ago. Transmission is effected through 10 250 watt air-cooled tubes, which put between 25 and 30 amperes in the antenna. One of the most interesting features is the antenna, which is suspended from each side of the gigantic airship, being brought up to the central radio car so that it forms a "W." The lower points of the "W" are kept steady by two weights. When landing, the antenna system is hauled up by windlasses so that it hangs close to the sides of the ship, out of the way. Sufficient antenna length, without interference with power cars and other apparatus is given by the "W" shape.

The most unique part of the equipment is the power plant which supplies electric power for lighting and cooking as well as the radio transmitter. It comprises a four-cylinder gasoline engine which drives directly a double-wound alternator. The larger armature is rated at 5 kilo volt ampers, generating a 220 volts at 660 cycles. The smaller winding serves as a 4 KW exciter, developing a voltage of 12. The combined power plant, approximating about 10 KW, weighs only 560 pounds, the lightest power plant yet developed. Besides being very light, the prime mover is compact, being all on a single shaft. A special governor regulates the gasoline feed so that with added work applied, more gas is given automatically, keeping the generators at a constant speed. Other new features include hydraulically operated engine valves.

RADIO IN POLAND

Polish radio regulations have met with disfavor from fans, manufacturers and dealers, due to their severity and complexity. Recent advices state dealers are forced to see official permits before they can sell complete receiving sets, or loud speakers, but now sell parts freely. Importation is discouraged, as the Poles hope to establish a large home industry. At present the one large producer is seeking a monopoly.

Despite the regulations and handicaps, radio is becoming a craze. Demands are increasing for equipment of foreign make, in spite of a high sales tax of 20 per cent on imports. Only Polish is permitted on the air.

A new broadcaster is expected to open this month, but as the wave lengths to be used are not yet announced, the types of sets best adapted to reception are unknown. The band may be between 350 and 600 or 600 and 2000 meters. Broadcasters are held rigidly to regulations, the number is limited in districts, and special concessions are necessary. A fee of 100 zlotys per year per kilowatt is required from private broadcasters. Receiving set licenses are granted only to citizens of age, and fees are charged by the Government and the broadcasters.

A site near Dorchester, England, has been chosen provisionally for the first of the British "beam" radio stations. This plant will act as a terminal for similar stations in Australia, Canada, South Africa and India.

PATENT ON REFLEX RELEASED BY NAVY

Schloemilch-Von Bronk Type of Receiver Believed by Experts to Have Basic Rights.

WASHINGTON, March 7.—The Schloemilch and Von Bronk reflex patent, which was purchased by the Navy Department from the Alien Property Custodian, is the basic reflex patent and a license under it will enable manufacturers to produce efficient sets, in the opinion of experts of the Navy Department.

Since the announcement that the Navy Department would license American manufacturers under the radio patents seized from the Germans during the war, statements have been current that the Schloemilch and Von Bronk patent is practically valueless because of its limited scope. While the value of the patent has never been thoroughly gone into by the navy, the belief is that a good set can be produced with it.

In the neighborhood of 150 applications have been received by the navy from manufacturers in different parts of the country for use of the reflex patent. A license under the patent will be granted to every manufacturer who meets the conditions set up by the navy.

"We do not attempt to place a valuation on the Von Bronk and Schloemilch patent," says Capt. McNeely, chief of the Radio Division of the Naval Bureau of Engineering. "Under the decision of the Attorney-General and the Secretary of the Navy we are prepared to grant licenses to manufacturers under the radio patents purchased from the Alien Property Custodian. We would not attempt to say that one patent is any more valuable than another. But we do know that of the 70 odd radio patents available, the manufacutrers have singled out the reflex as the most desirable.

"This convinces me that the reflex patent is of particular value. The manufacturers who have applied for licenses under this patent know what they are doing, and they would not want a dead cat."

Whether or not the Von Bronk and Schloemilch patent is the basic reflex patent may have to be decided in the courts.

Steinite Leads Again With Something Better for Crystal Users

Amazing Discovery of Fred Stein, makes it possible to enjoy better Crystal reception, local or distance, without ever adjusting detector for hot spots. The new Steinite Rectifier is hot all over, no interruption.

Steinite Rectifier Takes Place of Crystal

Absolutely new and different from anything you ever tried before. Takes the place of the crystal on your set. Fits any standard Crystal holder—installed in a minute—no tools. Does away with the Crystal, Catwhisker and critical adjusting. It uses a specially constructed graphic contact point—don't confuse it with the socalled fixed crystal. It is developed for use on the simple crystal set and gives amazing results in reflex circuits.

Surprising Distance and Volume
Revolutionize the tuning of crystal sets for distance because the entire surface of Rectifier is uniformly hot and amazing super-sensitive. Users testify to unheard of distance and unusual volume.

Wonderful Tone Quality
Unbelievable improvement in tone. Always clear, steady, unfluctuating and bell-like. Everyone enthusiastic about reception with the Steinite Rectifier.

Always Hot Supersensitive New Radio Delight
Think of the new joy this new discovery will give you on your crystal set. Always adjusted ready to tune in. No loss of programs through tinkering with dead crystals. The Steinite Rectifier is not a natural crystal. It is not a synthetic crystal. It is not a fixed crystal. It is an entirely new and revolutionary principle giving the wonderful tonal quality of a perfect crystal with none of a crystal's annoying drawbacks.

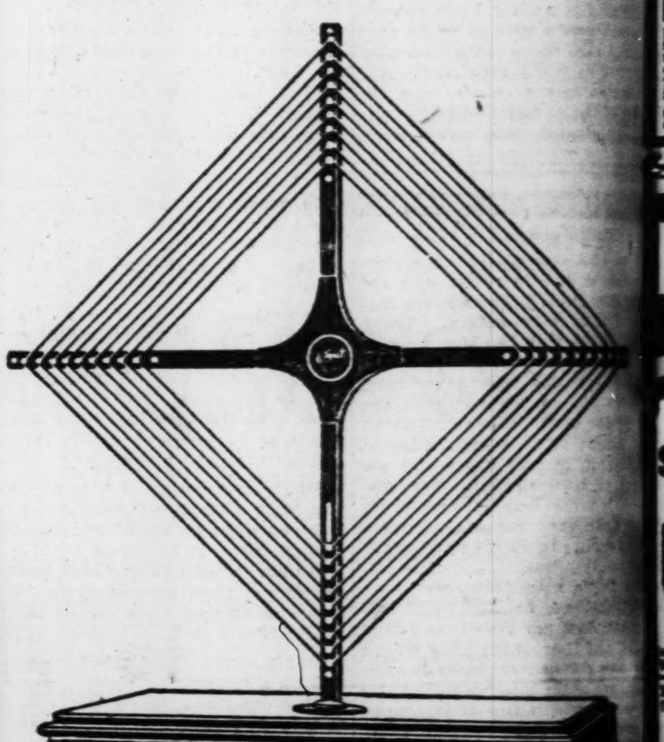
DE FOREST D-17 RADIOPHONE



This is a promise—you will hear a different, better tone!

YOUR ears will tell you —more than a thousand experts, more than a million advertisements how great the De Forest D-17 set really is. When into your home is poured the liquid, life-like, matchless sound that the radio world knows as De Forest tone, then you will know why De Forest is the greatest name in radio.

Some remarkable things have been done with this new De Forest D-17 Radiophone. Yet it was not built for stunts or tricks. It is built for you. It is built to give you, simply, certainly, and always, the entertainment that is waiting in the air for you.

The De Forest D-17 is simple. There are no wires to string, and run through walls and ceilings. The batteries all go inside the cabinet. The true-toned De Forest loud speaker is built into the cabinet. All you need to do is to sit down, adjust the dials, with your own fingers, and listen with your own ears to radio!

The De Forest D-17 Radiophone is a five-tube radio receiving set. Prices ready for use, except for batteries, are: Two-tone mahogany cabinet, $195; and two-tone Fabrikoid cabinet, $185. Smaller model, without accessories, but with space for B batteries, the D-17 A, $125.

SWEDISH RADIO STATION

The Swedish Government radio ation at Grimeton (near Gothen- g) is rapidly gaining populari- , according to advices from de Commissioner Klath at ckholm. In December the ffic was satisfactory and service on the American side been perfect. During the three t days of its operation, the meton station handled 71 per cent of the messages between Sweden and the United States. Within a short time it is predicted that practically all telegraphic communication with the United States will be by wireless. An evidence of the victory of radio telegraphy over cables, is the present rate for cablegrams to the United States. The cable companies have been forced to take low prices in order not to lose all the business.

Steinite Low Loss
Interference Eliminator
What Radio Users Have Been Looking For

For those who have had Interference Troubles this new auxiliary tuning device will trap out the undesired stations.

Select Your Stations at Will

The air is so crowded with music and voices that the average set fails to bring in the desired stations properly. The Steinite Interference Eliminator shuts out local and other interference. You get one station at a time, whatever one you want, and can tune it in loud and clear.

Improved Results with Tube or Crystal

Try for yourself entirely at my risk the wonderful improvement this inexpensive little device will make in the reception of your set. Sold on absolute guarantee of satisfaction or money back and the greatest dollar's worth ever offered the radio public. Improves results on both crystal and tube sets that use an indoor aerial, outdoor aerial or light socket; but will not help a set using loop antenna. Clears up reception wonderfully and partially absorbs static.

CONFERENCE ON RADIO RIGHTS

The fight between authors, composers and writers on the one hand and broadcasting stations on the other, which started in the United States some time ago, has assumed international proportions. An international conference to discuss the protection of intellectual property rights in radio transmission has been called by the Society of Authors of Spain for May 16.

The Junta Directiva de la Sociedad de Autores of Madrid has invited all societies of authors, editorial syndicates, editors, transmission companies and radio societies of Europe and America to be represented. The patronage of the Spanish Government will be solicited, also the support of the Society of Composers, the Associations of Impreseries of Public Spectacles, the Syndicate of Spanish Actors and the Spanish Musical Union.

The subject to be discussed at the conference will be international protection of the rights of authors, composers, et al., to deny or permit the use of their works, for a consideration, when transmitted by radio. After affirming these rights, the conference may ask all nations adhering to the convention of Berne to add to their legislation on intellectual property, articles in conformity with the findings of the conference. Probably through the amendments of copyright laws, as is being sought in the United States.

The Powers will have to determine what amounts transmission stations must pay for each program, how much for each song, composition or other item of the program, or whether a percentage, probably not less than 10 per cent of gross receipts, may be charged.

The meeting of this congress will give the international press an opportunity to debate the legitimacy of using the radio for advertising purposes and to discuss rules for receiving as well as transmitting stations.

SPEED OF A RADIO WAVE.

DES MOINES, Ia., March 7.—Less than one-one-hundredth of a second is required for a radio wave to speed from a high-powered, 1500-watt broadcasting station in New York to the antenna of Iowa receiving sets, Dr. Paul S. Helmick, professor of physics at Drake University has calculated.

But when a tired Iowa business man settles down in his easy chair after dinner and twists the dials of his super-heterodyne until the loud speaker floods the room with music of an Eastern orchestra, he little realizes the feeble intensity of the radio waves which pulse across the turns of his loop antenna at the rate of 600,000 waves per second, with a speed 300,000 times as fast as that of the bullet of a high-powered rifle.

Notwithstanding its disregard for speed laws, a radio wave is not a good traveler, Dr. Helmick says. A long journey makes it quite fatigued. While a radio wave requires less than one-one-hundredth of a second to travel from New York to Iowa, yet in this short interval of time it has become so attenuated that it is able to induce in the receiving loop a current of only a millionth of the intensity required to operate your cellar light.

But small as is the energy received from the 1500-watt station, radio amplifiers are so effective that the power given the loud speaker is billions of time the power received by the aerial.

You just KNOW it's well
Your baby, too, can laugh and coo and crow in the best of health.
You just know it's NOT well
There is no reason for your baby to look or feel this way.

CONSTIPATION means SUFFERING

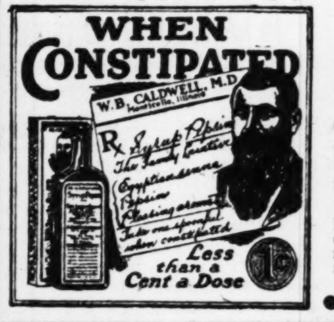
Poor little thing! It can't tell when the milk is wrong, or it has a little cold, or any of the hundred things that might happen to one so young! But Nature can—and does. The baby becomes constipated, it cries, it frets. That is the warning to look out. Danger and disease are lurking in the body. All the poisons are bottled up in that little frame. Relieve this condition at once or you may have a very sick child.

Dr. Caldwell's
SYRUP PEPSIN
The Family Laxative

—relieves constipation and brings the little one back to health. It restores the bowels to normal activity and so gently that baby joyously laughs. It's Nature's relief for constipation—Egyptian senna, pepsin and pleasing aromatics in a pleasant tasting liquid combination prescribed by Dr. Caldwell for years in his extensive practice and used throughout the country for over 30 years.



Gentle As Nature—Pleasingly Sweet

Nor is baby the only one who needs it. As effective for old as for young. Your bowels should act at least twice daily. Do they? If not, assist Nature as millions are doing annually. Buy a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin now and use as directed. More than 10,000,000 bottles sold annually.

It is sold everywhere medicine is sold—and guaranteed. Try it at our risk. Your druggist will return your money if it fails to do as promised.

KEWANEE

What Boiler Is In Your Building?

Have you a Kewanee All-Steel Smokeless Firebox Boiler in your building? If not, just step around the corner to some fine building that has one, and quiz the owner about his experience. Ask him for his fuel costs—his heat supply—his repair costs—how much that boiler has contributed to the profits of his building—net profits. Ask him why he hasn't had any smoke?

Ask him why he built his building of steel—whether it was for permanency, or just to be in style—whether it was because he thought the building would last longer or because Reginald Montmorency Vandersquash had built his building of steel. Then ask him why locomotives, bridges, ships, and everything else that has to have strength and lasting qualities are built of steel—riveted.

Ask him why the Kewanee All-Steel Firebox Boiler is built of steel, riveted together, and if that is the reason why it lasts forever—does all the work that is expected and required, and asks for no more repair-money in a year than you spend for cigarettes in a day or so.

Don't be a left-handed business man! Don't build a fine building of expensive steel, and install in it a boiler made of some kind of material whose family history reveals a continuous string of constitutional and hereditary weaknesses.

Write to The Old Man Behind the Boiler and ask him the virtue of steel in boiler-making—what the Kewanee has done—and what it will do. Why you can burn any kind of fuel in a Kewanee without smoke.

Come and Get Cured—You'll Then Be Able to Enjoy Doing Business—Your Social Affairs, Etc.—Both of Which Are Utterly Impossible While You Are Afflicted and Suffering. In the Following Letter, Mr. Farrar Tells the Same Story Told by Hundreds Upon Hundreds of My Former Patients.

Dr. C. Matthew Coe, Windsor, Ill., Jan. 26, 1925
501 Pine St., St. Louis, Mo.

Dear Dr. Coe:- Since being treated by you in Sept., 1924, for Internal Protruding Piles, I am now cured. I know I have gained in weight and have not had a headache in the five months since you cured me. Neither have I lost a day's work since being cured, and before I was off from work every few weeks, for days at a time.

My appetite is good, and my general health is better in every way. It surely has been a blessing to me, for I was bothered with Protruding Piles for 10 years or more.

You do as you agree to do, and your methods are mild.

With many, many thanks and best wishes for your success, I remain, Your friend and patient,

ROTARY CLUB READY FOR ANNUAL BENEFIT

Minstrel Show to Raise Funds for Welfare Work to Be Given Tomorrow Night.

After three weeks of rehearsal, the Rotary Club tomorrow night will give its fourth annual minstrel show at 8:15 o'clock at Moolah Temple, 3821 Lindell boulevard, for the purpose of raising money for its fund for welfare work among children.

Forty members of the club will participate, dropping the dignified inflection of their speech as business men and their "Rs" in emulation of the Dixie cotton picker. Two interlocutors and six end men have been schooled to bear the heaviest part of the witticisms and repartee and to execute the "clog" and "buck-and-wing."

Following the show, a dance will be held, for which a 12-piece orchestra has been employed.

Attendance at the show last year was 2290 and advance ticket sales indicate that this number will be increased tomorrow night. Tickets may be obtained from any member of the club or at Rotary headquarters on the mezzanine floor at the Hotel Statler. Tickets also will be on sale at Moolah Temple tomorrow night.

Welfare work of the club is a major activity, featured by an annual picnic for orphans, a Christmas party for newsboys and other underprivileged children, and a theater party for crippled children. The theater party, held Feb. 23, at the Missouri Theater, was attended by 3000 crippled and underprivileged children.

RARE BIRD IS PHOTOGRAPHED IN NATIVE HAUNTS IN EGYPT

Features of Pelican and Stork Combination in Yellow-Eyed Creature.

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

STOCKHOLM, Feb. 18.—The giant stork "abu markub," or father shoe-beak," rarest and most fantastic among living birds and looked upon as a curious relic of prehistoric eras, has at last been seen in its native haunts by white men, and has been induced to pose before a motion picture camera. This is the accomplishment of Bengt Berg, called "Sweden's bird wizard," who has just returned from Africa.

Bengt Berg has devoted his life to the study of birds and migratory wildfowl in their habitats, especially rare specimens. He seems to have an almost uncanny knack of getting on familiar terms with them by dint of extreme patience and carefully planned ruses. His latest exploit, the filming of the "abu markub," was preceded by weeks of cruising on the upper Nile.

The discovery of the strange bird was made on an unnamed, almost impassable tributary of the Nile. The bird has a body somewhat like that of a European stork, while the large bill reminds one of the pelican. The eyes are large and yellow, and his whole aspect is that of a creature of fable.

'ABIE'S IRISH ROSE' OPENS AT SHUBERT-JEFFERSON MARCH 29

Howard Thurston to Appear at the American Theater Next Week.

"Abie's Irish Rose," the miracle play of the day, is announced for an indefinite run at the Shubert-Jefferson, beginning March 29. This opus by Anne Nichols is near the end of its third consecutive year in New York, and is being played on the road by companies too numerous to reckon. Next week this theater will offer J. P. McEvoy's well-known comedy, "The Potters."

Following the engagement of Howard Thurston, magician, next the American announces in order Margaret Anglin and William Faversham in "Footloose," by Zoe Akins; Jeanne Eagels, in "Rain;" Earl Carroll's "Vanities," and an all-star revival of Sheridan's "The Rivals," with Mrs. Fiske, Chauncey Olcott, James T. Powers, Tom Wise and Lola Fisher.

CANNA STARCH SELLS READILY

Hawaii's New Industry Growing Rapidly.

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

HONOLULU, Feb. 10.—Hawaii's most recent industry—the production of starch from canna plants—came through the past year with a total output of 22,000 cases, according to announcement by Edouard R. Doty, secretary of the Hawaiian Starch Co.

The entire production will be absorbed on the mainland and is sought anxiously by mainland manufacturers of starch who mix it with their own product to raise the quality, Doty said. The manufacture of starch from canna tubers was launched by the Hawaiian company about four and a half years ago with the company harvesting its first appreciable crop in 1924. The demand for the product, Doty said, is practically limitless and 100,000 cases of the starch could have been disposed of in 1924. Considerable new acreage is being planted to canna, which is refined at Hilo.

ON CAILLAUX AT CLUB

[illegible] Fear Someone Might Shy a Glass at Him.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, March 7.—Joseph Caillaux is persona non grata at the fashionable Sporting Club of [illegible] because it is feared that [illegible] reactionary might try his marksmanship on him. The club refused to serve this week's Anglo-American Press Club luncheon there if M. Caillaux attended, and as the former Premier was to be the guest of honor, the luncheon had to be served at a hotel.

Tristan Bernard, the dramatist, who is president of the Sporting Club, said that he appreciated the press club's impartiality in inviting politicians of all complexions, but he did not want any scenes in the club. He remarked that, personally, he was not hostile to Caillaux, but that "someone in the dining room might shy a glass at him or do something of that sort," and he knew scores of members who would resign. He would not say who they were, but mentioned that Louis Barthou and others known to be hostile to Caillaux were members.

FARR'S GRAY HAIR RESTORER

Don't be afraid of living.
Enjoy all the wonderful modern advantages!

While famous laboratories have been perfecting radio, the great manufacturing chemists have been busy producing a formula for restoring gray hair that should be as superior to old-fashioned hair dyes as the perfected cold white electric light is to the old-fashioned smoky lamp.

The Brookline Chemical Co. guarantees their product as a simple, absolutely harmless means of bringing back gray or faded hair to its original natural color, leaving it glossy, soft and lustrous.

Price, $1.10

Easy to use, because perfectly clear, not sticky and will not rub off or stain the scalp. No trouble at all to use; a few minutes in your room is enough. Every bottle sold with the positive guarantee that it cannot cause the slightest harm or annoyance to hair or scalp. Once the hair has returned to its original color it is easily kept so, and can be washed or curled without affecting the color.

FEW BRITISH SERVANTS DESPITE LACK OF WORK

300,000 Women Are Unemployed Yet Domestic Problem Continues.

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

LONDON, Feb. 18.—Great Britain's surplus of women combined with the unemployment problem, there being approximately 300,000 women and girls out of work, has brought about a strange situation in the servant shortage which experts for months have been endeavoring to straighten out. American women living in London say that it is more difficult to obtain the services of a cook or housemaid than it is in most of the cities of the United States.

Authorities disagree as to the cause of the scarcity. Some contend that a great many women who have been receiving unemployment doles from the Government prefer to exist as best they can on a few shillings a week to working out where they are virtually on duty all day long. Their pay here averages from $150 to $300 a year, with board and room, but in many instances maid servants or general cooks in large households receive a good deal more than this.

The London newspapers are filled daily with advertisements for cooks and maids of various kinds, many of the housekeepers offering some sort of inducement to attract the attention of the eligibles. One of these which appeared recently, read:

"Servant bonus—A $15 reward will be paid to anyone finding a really reliable cook general. Apply Lady ——."

Another advertisement, which ran for several days, was as follows:

"Wanted—A truthful, happy, willing girl, trained for general housework—if there is one."

The Government has under consideration an investigation of the system of doles which, it is contended in housewives' circles, should be tightened up a bit so that girls and women, and men too, would not be able to draw a regular allowance from the state treasury unless they were willing to work, and were compelled to show documents indicating that they had actually sought a task of one kind or another.

Incidentally, it is related that twice as many young women as young men were sent to the overseas dominions last year under the auspices of the Salvation Army, which, in the opinion of Commissioner Lamb, is 'a matter for congratulation in view of the tragic excess of females over males in the British Isles."

Minister Thankful

"I had stomach trouble for nearly 20 years, also constipation which filled my system with gas and fever. I could not do my work, and while I was down sick a lady from out of town sent me a bottle of Mayr's Wonderful Remedy which proved truly wonderful. I believe it is the best medicine on earth." It is a simple harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. TIRES WITH 500 NAIL HOLES LEAK NO AIR

A new puncture-proof inner tube has been invented by a Mr. J. W. Milburn of Chicago. In actual test it was punctured 500 times without the loss of air. This wonderful new tube increases mileage from 10,000 to 12,000 miles and eliminates changing tires. It costs no more than the ordinary tube. Mr. J. W. Milburn, 331 West 47th St., Chicago, wants them introduced everywhere and is making a special offer to agents. Write him today.

One Spoonful Helps 60 Year Old Man

Stomach Trouble For Years. Now Feels Fine

"After taking only one spoonful Adlerika I feel better than for years. At my age of 60 years it is ideal—so different from other medicines." (Signed) W. Carter.

Intestinal Evacuant

There is now offered to the public a liquid preparation which is not only a wonderfully effective and QUICK intestinal evacuant, but which also seems to stimulate the glands of the intestinal tract and to cause expulsion of flatus (GAS). This preparation, known as Adlerika, is a valuable agent for the purpose of cleansing the bowels of matter which has been in the system a long time and which other less effective means have been unable to dislodge. It is often astonishing the great amount of matter Adlerika draws from the intestinal canal—even right after a natural movement it sometimes brings out unsuspected quantities of additional matter. Many times it brings out much GAS, thus relieving pressure in the abdomen. Adlerika is especially valuable when PROMPT action is necessary or to encourage the elimination of metabolic poisons through the bowel.

In slight disorders such as occasional constipation or gas on the stomach and headache (when due to bowel inaction), a single spoonful of Adlerika often produces surprising and gratifying results. In cases of obstinate constipation or stomach trouble, if Adlerika does not bring relief in 24 to 36 hours the advice of a reputable physician should be secured.

Reports From Physicians

"I congratulate you on the good effect from Adlerika since I prescribed it." (Signed) Dr. L. Langlois.

"Adlerika is the best in my entire 37 years' experience." (Signed) Dr. G. Eggers.

"I prescribed Adlerika with highly satisfactory results." (Signed) Dr. A. O. C. (Name given on request.)

"I can't get along without Adlerika." Signed) Dr. W. H. Bernhart.

J. E. Puckett (a user of Adlerika) writes: "After taking Adlerika feel better than for 20 years. Haven't language to express the impurities eliminated from my system."

Adlerika is a big surprise to people who have used only ordinary bowel and stomach medicines because of its REAL and QUICK action. Sold by leading druggists everywhere. In St. Louis by Wolff-Wilson Drug Co. and Enderle Drug Co.

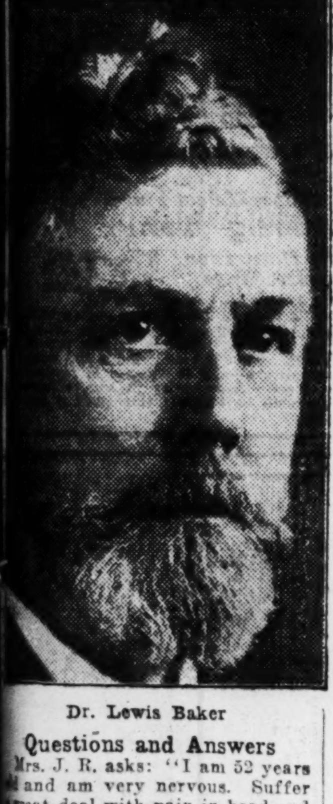
Telling How and When to Use Trustworthy Products and Reproducing Extracts of Patrons' Letters Relating to Cadomene, Balmwort, Sulpherb, Arbolone, Su-thol, Mentho-Laxene, Minyol, Hypo-Nuclane, Vilane, Etc.



Dr. Lewis Baker

Questions and Answers

Mrs. J. R. asks: "I am 52 years old and am very nervous. Suffer a great deal with pain in head and back of neck. Have no ambition and am always tired and depressed and pale and listless."

Answer: Anemia—a deficiency of blood or of the important constituents of the blood, produces such symptoms. Pull down the lower lid of your eye; if it is pink, instead of red, you have pretty good evidence of anemia, and I suggest Cadomene tablets be taken to aid improvement of the quality and quantity of the blood, and thus restore the normal health of the body organs and nervous system.

J. D. asks: "I am seventeen and under weight for my age and height. Am troubled with costiveness and pimples and boils on my face and body. Would like to know what to take?"

Answer: To quickly aid the bowels and rid the blood of the [illegible] causing pimples and boils, take Sulpherb Tablets as a laxative blood-medicine. To increase weight try Hypo-Nuclane Tablets as a nutritional tonic. They may be taken at same time.

H. A. S. asks: "I have bladder and kidney trouble. I have to get up from four to five times at night, and often have dull aches and stiffness of muscles and joints. Can this condition be helped?"

Answer: This condition is sometimes due to constipation, in which case take Sulpherb Tablets as a bowel and kidney regulator. If due to functional inactivity of the kidneys, take Balmwort Tablets as a diuretic-tonic and neutralizing agent to tone up the kidneys and overcome the bladder irritation.

Answer to Mrs. E. M. H.: Where high blood pressure exists the personal attention of a physician is necessary.

Answer to Mrs. J. R.: The pains of neuritis may sometimes be relieved by lightly anointing with triple strength Mentho-Laxene Salve. Su-thol Tablets give relief in some cases, of rheumatic character.

Y. W. asks: "In the past year I have gotten too fat and also I suffer with embarrassment, because I have to have all my clothing made to order, as nothing will fit me. Can I reduce?"

Answer: I suggest that you obtain Arbolone Tablets, which are generally very effective in reducing superfluous fat.

Mrs. E. H. asks: "It seems like I can't eat anything. It lays on my stomach and ferments, forms gas and presses on my heart. I wish you would tell me what to do?"

Answer: If constipated, take Casca-Royal Pills as a pleasant laxative. Also begin taking Triopeptine Tablets, which tend to aid and overcome functional distress of the stomach and bowels.

W. E. B. asks: "My hair is falling, have itching scalp and a bad case of dandruff. Is it necessary to cut the hair before using the plain yellow Minyol? Does Minyol stain the hair?"

Answer: No, do not cut hair. No, Minyol does not stain. It quickly stops dandruff, falling hair, and itching scalp, and improves the strength and beauty of the hair. Bobbed oily hair is particularly benefited by its regular use.

Answer to Mr. H.: Cadomene Tablets and Balmwort Tablets may be taken at the same time when conditions warrant.

Answer to Mrs. E. E.: For your child's obstinate cough try Mentho-Laxene. Contains no opiates, narcotics, pine or chloroform and helps where ordinary cough syrups fail.

K. R. T. asks: "After recovering from the 'flu' I was left with a stubborn cough. Have tried many cough remedies and doctors' medicines with no good results."

Answer: For obstinate, deep-seated cough, not due to tuberculosis. I have recommended Mentho-Laxene for the past fifteen years, and thousands have found it superior to anything else. It is best for both children and adults.

Mrs. K. R. asks: "Will you please advise a remedy for nasal catarrh and bad breath?"

Answer: Obtain antiseptic Vilane Powder and use as per directions as a nasal douche, mouthwash and to gargle throat twice or more daily. Also apply Mentho-Laxene Salve in nostrils morning and night. This is the most effective treatment when used regularly for several weeks.

NOTE: For many years, Dr. Lewis Baker, Medical Director, The Blackburn Products Co., College Bldg., Dayton, Ohio, has been recommending trustworthy medicines to millions of people through the medium of the newspapers and doubtless has helped in relieving the ailments and minor infirmities of the public more than any single individual in the world's history; and by an inexpensive method.

The medicines mentioned by him are pure and free from habit-forming drugs. They represent the combined wisdom and experience of physician and chemist.

Progressive druggists can supply them.

Letters to Dr. Baker

INDIANAPOLIS, IND. — Mr. John P. Hart, 546 W. D. Woodruff Place, writes: "In 1918 I was feeling very miserable. Felt weak and no ambition. I got worse from day to day and became too weak to climb stairs. I called a doctor and he asked what I was doing to help myself. I told him I had just commenced using Cadomene Tablets. He told me to continue as they were as good as anything he could prescribe. After using two boxes I kept getting better until now I am fit for most anything. Appetite good, sleep well, etc. Had weighed 145 pounds and now weigh 175 pounds. I think it is the best medicine for a run-down system and recommend it to everyone, etc."

BRIGHTON, KY.—Miss Mamie E. Brooks, writes: "I never wrote a letter like this, but I feel that I must say that Balmwort Tablets are the best I ever used. I suffered two years with kidney and bladder trouble. Had to get up ten or twelve times at night. My brother, who had successfully used Balmwort, told me to try them, and now I am ever so much better. I never have to rise more than once, and you can use my letter to tell others, etc."

ROCHESTER, PA. — David Davis, 613 Case St. E., writes: "I must say you certainly do recommend the right thing. I had been badly constipated for five years and had to continually take strong purgatives to prevent serious results. But since taking Sulpherb Tablets, which you advised some one else to take, whose case was similar to mine, I am now free of constipation and feel in fine conditon after taking only one package, etc."

FAIRBANKS, IND. — Mrs. E. Price Thomson, R. R. No. 1, writes: "I am 46 years old and have been troubled with indigestion for over two years and had doctored with several doctors. They said they couldn't do much good and I would have to suffer it out. I would have spells of belching, heavy feeling in stomach, bloating and at times could scarcely get my breath. One day I read your answers and saw that some one else had suffered as I did and had gotten relief from taking Triopeptine Tablets. I used them and have not been troubled since, and I gladly tell others of their goodness, etc."

BEAVER FALLS, PA.—Herman A. Yokie, 2411 8th Av., writes: "I started taking Sulpherb Tablets about two weeks ago and they are sure helping me. I was bothered with pimples, boils and blackheads for some time, but they are all leaving me now, since I started taking Sulpherb Tablets. You may use my letter, etc."

INDIANAPOLIS, IND. — Mr. Lester Cook, 2728 W. Vermont St., writes: "I had the worst cough, I could not sleep nor rest at night. I tried many remedies and got no results. Mentho-Laxene gave me wonderful results. In one week I was sound and well. This medisine is a Godsend to suffering humanity."

* * *

WEST LYNN, MASS.—John A. Garrity, 84 South St., writes: "For 3 years I have been using Vilane Powder for catarrh and thought it time to tell you what it did for me. A man who worked in a hospital told me about it. Have told my shopmates about it, and quite a few of them are using it, and they all speak well of it. I would not be without it for it is doing me good, etc."

TOLEDO, OHIO—Ernest Dolly, 333 11th St., writes: "Had been troubled with itching scalp, falling hair and dandruff for years, but have used one jar of Minyol and must say that the troubles have left me. Am very much pleased and grateful and recommend Minyol at all times."

* * *

INDIANAPOLIS, IND.—Mr. H. Mitta, 2913 Orange St., writes: "The medicines which you advise surely are the best I have ever tried. I always keep on hand Casca Royal Pills, Cadomene, Balmwort and Mentho-Laxene."

bsen a Freudian, As Shown by Revival Of "The Wild Duck" ramatist Described Complexes Before They Were Invented — "Starlight," With Doris Keane, Based on Career of Sarah Bernhardt.

By Heywood Broun,
Drama Critic of the New York World.

NEW YORK, March 7.

WHEN "Candida" was produced, New York was reminded that Shaw still belonged among the modern dramatists. And now Ibsen has been taken down from the shelf and restored to the rtistically living.

One may like or dislike "The Wild Duck" as he pleases, though e former emotion is much the easier. But no one can say that is play of many years ago has in any sense drifted out of touch th contemporary life.

Indeed, Ibsen, in revival, takes on new values. Much that he s of the human ego sounds precisely like a paraphrase of a new-gled Freudian neurologist. When Ibsen wrote, the complex had t yet been discovered, but the latest of man's afflictions is dealt th intimately in Ibsen's play, in spite of the lack of modern jargon.

Indeed, "The Wild Duck" is al-st altogether concerned with hat we are fond of calling "the w psychology," since it attempts mark the discrepancy between s underlying and the conscious tivation of man. Thus, Gregers erle is presented as a person of e very best intentions in so far as can recognize the impulses hich propel him. It is only the dience and the author who un-rstand how much his so-called ealism has been conditioned by s fierce hatred of his father. And, carrying out his buried revenge ainst his parent, others go down the wreck of his revelations.

BUT even as mild surmise as this is dangerous in dealing with "The Wild Duck." This e, thrilling and gripping play s already suffered a great deal om the encumbrances placed on it by the critics. In the old ys, symbolism was the barrier up to thwart the public. reudian psychology might easily ighten others. And the fact of e matter is that "The Wild ck" needs no afterthought, study examination. Above every-g else it is a good show.

Perhaps there are hidden impli-tions. I don't know. I'm no acious mole to burrow down der any playwright's apparent rds and intentions. The play has ple, obvious and immediate aning to hold anybody's atten-. Technically, it is among the t expert of all dramatic com-sitions. No character is wasted. Generally speaking, every play-ight finds himself forced to in-duce a few extraneous charac-s who have no importance of eir own but who serve to solve e knotty point of exposition. have, to be specific, the famil-butler and the servant maid o announce to each other at the y rise of the curtain that the ng master contemplaes marry-again and then proceed to dis-s in precise detail the condition his grandfather's will.

Every Role Is Important.

BSEN needs no such accessories before the fact. No person en-ters any one of his plays except the divine right of being inti-ely and vitally concerned with story itself. There is in "The d Duck" not one minor role. y character is rich in oppor-ty and importance.

This performance by the Actors' ity Co. is not perfect. One im-tant role is badly marred. All rest are well played, and one or magnificently.

The production is far better than t which Nazimova gave to this e play several years ago. Upon t occasion the star elected to e the role of Hedvig and she de a strange, mystifying, and olly adult person of the little . Now this part is played sim-and sincerely by a young ac-s named Helen Chandler, and putting the part back into lescence the intent of the au-r is clarified.

Blanche Yurka Stars.

NCIDENTALLY, I don't know why there is much fishing into deep waters for "The Wild ck." There has been a disposi-n to insist that you must begin trying to grasp the symbolism the play. That's nonsense. Ib-n has told a straightforward and dible story in perfectly under-ndable terms. He may have re-ved the parable rights to the y, but what of it? Certainly t is not the first consideration. need not take "The Wild k" on the wing. Here is a play move and thrill you just as it

After seeing this performance I wondering how any person h a choice of roles could pos-y have passed up that of Gina. nche Yurka makes the woman dominant figure even in a play h gives so much to every role. a marvelously written part great performance.

In Criticism of the Stage, Moralistic Canons Do Not Apply

Reflections on "Artists and Models" Lead to Memories of Hanno the Carthaginian, Whose Sailors Flayed Band of Nude Females.

By RICHARD L. STOKES,
Music and Drama Critic of the Post-Dispatch.

LAST week a revue entitled "Artists and Models" established the point farthest north, in respect to nudity, that has yet been hazarded on a St. Louis stage; and about 25 centuries ago a Carthaginian admiral named Hanno accomplished the most intrepid feat of navigation known to man until Bartholomew Dias, 2000 years later, rounded the Cape of Good Hope.

Cruising along the east coast of Africa, Hanno proceeded as far as Sierra Leone, and there he encountered a band of naked barbarians. The males scuttled off to the hills, but the females gave battle. The sailors were so far from being enamored of this display of unhidden charms that they killed the women, flayed them and carried their pelts to Carthage.

The point, both then and now, is that nudity is a trait of the savage state, more likely to kindle aversion than bewitchment. It is a return to ugliness, a denial of man's age-long struggle to poetize his love-life through the glamour and illusion of adornment, including dress. Therefore the writer, in Monday's comment on "Artists and Models," indicted its disclosures on esthetic grounds, but lodged no accusation of immorality.

This attitude rose from a conviction that the critic's province is not conduct, but reason and beauty. Such a belief is inescapable, since an application of ethical criteria to works of art would sweep many masterpieces off the earth. The failure of St. Louis to become scandalized over "Artists and Models" was a symptom of health, far removed from the hysteria with which New York, shocked by a play called "The Good Bad Woman," hastened to appoint a citizens' committee which is to pass judgment on the moral virtues of the theater.

Immoral Masterpieces.

WHAT havoc would not such a committee wreak upon the monuments of genius? It would destroy "Hamlet," which treats of adultery; Shelley's "The Cenci," which deals with incest; and Goethe's "Faust," which comprises seduction and infanticide. To the penitentiary of books would be sentenced "The Canterbury Tales," for lechery; Browning's "The Blot on the 'Scutcheon," for glorifying prenuptial love; "The Decameron," for pruriency; "Paradise Lost," for passages of amour; and the Bible itself, for gross licentiousness. Upon the index would be placed nearly every great book in the world; to say nothing of the wreckage should the censors extend their proscriptions to painting, sculpture and music.

"There need be no objection," writes Havelock Ellis in his study of Pietro Aretino, "to obscenity as obscenity. It has its proper place in art as in life. The greatest writers have used it, Aristophanes, Dante, Chaucer, Rabelais, Sterne; Shakspeare and even Goethe have sometimes been obscene. So also have the greatest painters, even Rembrandt, and the greatest sculptors down to Rodin.

"Nor must we, as some would have us, regard the obscenity of these great spirits as a stain to be pardoned and effaced; it is in the texture of their minds and their works, and that is why we must always resist any would-be 'expurgation.' To deny the obscene is not merely to fetter the freedom of art and to reject the richness of nature—it is to pervert our vision of the world and to poison the springs of life.

"But the expression of obscenity alone can only be a satisfaction, and then but monetary, to the Capitol—"A Breath of Scandal" with Patsy Ruth Miller and Lou Tellegen.

Orchestra Ends Season With Wagner Program

THE fifteenth and final pair of concerts of the Symphony Orchestra's 1924-25 season will be given Friday afternoon and Saturday night at the Odeon, and will present Mme. Julia Claussen, contralto, and Arthur Middleton, baritone, in an operatic program selected from the works of Richard Wagner. At next Sunday's popular concert, the orchestra will be audible in its home city for the last time until next fall. It will depart at once on a spring tour of three weeks, comprising 40 concerts in six States and 20 cities.

The Wagner program, which is expected to prove one of the features of the season, will include vocal and orchestral excerpts from "Die Meistersinger," "Parsifal," "Tristan and Isolde" and "Die Walkuere." Mme. Claussen and Mr. Middleton will join during the closing number in presenting the great farewell scene between Wotan and Bruennhilde, including the Magic Fire Music, which forms the finale of "Die Walkuere." The program follows:

1. Prelude to "Die Meistersinger von Nuernberg."
2. Aria, "Wahn, Wahn!" from "Die Meistersinger."
   (Mr. Middleton.)
3. March of the Knights of the Holy Grail, from "Parsifal."
4. Prelude and Love-Death, from "Tristan und Isolde."
   (Mme. Claussen.)
5. Ride of the Valkyrs," from "Die Walkuere."
6. Finale of "Die Walkuere."
   (Mme. Claussen and Mr. Middleton.)

Two Soloists Today.

THIS afternoon's popular concert, the last but one of the series, will offer two soloists—Miss Beatrice Wright, pianist, of Birmingham, Ala., and Joseph Faerber, violinist, a member of the orchestra. The program follows:

1. Overture to "Russian and Ludmilla" ....Glinka
2. Concerto for Pianoforte No. 2, in D Minor, Op. 23.......MacDowell
   I. Larghetto calmato.
   II. Presto giocoso.
   III. Largo; Molto allegro.
   (Miss Wright.)
3. Symphonic Poem, "Danse Macabre," Op. 40 ....Saint-Saens
4. Second and Third Movements from the Violin Concerto in a Minor, Op. 53 ....Dvorak
   II. Adagio ma non troppo.
   III. Allegro grazioso, man non troppo.
   (Mr. Faerber.)
5. Intermezzo, Valse Lento and Pizzicato, from the Ballet Suite, "Sylvia" ....Delibes
6. Hungarian Rhapsody No. 2— Liszt

Itinerary of Spring Tour.

AS soloist for its tour, the orchestra has engaged Mrs. Helen Traubel Carpenter, St. Louis soprano. The dates of the concerts on the trip will be as follows: March 16, Indianapolis; March 17, Louisville; March 18, Owensboro, Ky.; March 19, Bowling Green, Ky.; March 20, Nashville; March 21 and 22, Birmingham, Ala.; March 23, Tuskegee and Montgomery, Ala.; March 24, Selma, Ala.; March 25, Meridian, Miss.; March 26, Hattiesburg, Miss.; March 27 and 28, New Orleans; March 29, Baton Rouge, La.; March 30, Shreveport, La.; March 31, Vicksburg, Miss.; April 1, Jackson, Miss.; April 2, Greenville, Miss.; April 3, Clarksdale, Miss.; April 4,

Massenchor Sings Paean By Bruckner

His "Te Deum" Will Have First St. Louis Performance Tuesday Night at Coliseum.

THE St. Louis Massenchor of 400 mixed voices, supported by the entire Symphony Orchestra and directed by Hugo Anschuetz, will give a concert Tuesday night at the Coliseum which will present three choral works hitherto unheard in this city. They are Anton Bruckner's "Te Deum," Max Bruch's "Frithjof at His Father's Tomb" and Korning's "The Power of Music."

The "Te Deum," one of the most distinguished works of a composer whose symphonies have been making the tour of Europe recently, but none of which has ever been played in St. Louis, is written for mixed chorus, quartet and orchestra. "Frithjof," one of Bruch's finest productions and the first of his works to achieve a signal success, is scored for solo baritone, female chorus and orchestra. "The Power of Music," by a German composer just coming into prominence, is written for solo soprano, male chorus and orchestra.

The "Te Deum" is famous for its stupendous skill in counterpoint and its individual writing for the orchestra. It will be sung in Latin. "Frithjof," based on Bishop Tegner's far-famed "Frithjofsaga," was written when Bruch was only 25 years old, and it met with extraordinary favor. An analysis of the work follows:

Work Has Six Scenes.

A LIVELY orchestral introduction, entitled "Frithjof's Return," leads to a beautiful aria for baritone, "How Bravely O'er the Floods So Bright!" which is accompanied by an attractive chorus. The second of the six scenes depicts Princess Ingeborg, whom Frithjof has come home to wed, being led to the altar by King Ring, as the result of a plot engineered by Ingeborg's brother. A brief wedding march is followed by a bridal chorus and Ingeborg's lament.

The next scene, "Frithjof's Revenge," is intensely dramatic in both the vocal and instrumental scores. It opens with a chorus of priests, after which comes the hero's rugged aria, "Where My Father Rests." As he sings this, he fires the temple and flees to his ship, amid the outcries of the people and curses of the priests.

The fourth scene is entitled "Frithjof's Departure From the Northland," the fifth is Ingeborg's outburst of despair, and the sixth is a chorus of Frithjof and his vikings as they sail away in the good ship "Ellida" in quest of further adventures.

Alsen and Middleton as Soloists.

THE soloists engaged are Arthur Middleton, baritone, who will also appear in the Symphony Orchestra's all-Wagner program this week; Elsa Alsen one of the leading sopranos of the late lamented Wagnerian Opera Co., and two St. Louisans, Mrs. Maude Covington, contralto, and Clarence Bloemker, tenor. Mme. Alsen, a Norwegian by birth, has been hailed in Germany as one of the greatest present-day Bruennhildes. The program in detail follows:

1. "The Omnipotence" ("Allmacht") —Schubert
   (Arranged for mixed chorus, solo soprano and orchestra.)
2. (a) "Es Waren Zfei Koenigskinder."
   (Old German Folksong.)
   (b) "Der Jaeger" ("The Hunter")
   (Rhenish Folksong.)
   (Mixed Chorus a capella.)
3. "Frithjof at His Father's Tomb" —Bruch
   (Solo baritone, female chorus and orchestra.)
4. "The Power of Music"....Kornig
   (Male chorus, solo soprano and orchestra.)
5. "Te Deum Laudamus"..Bruckner
   (Mixed Chorus, quartet and orchestra.)

The concerts of the Massenchor, the proceeds of which are invariably devoted to charity, are among the leading musical events of the year, and always draw large audiences to the Coliseum. The chorus is composed of members of various singing societies, mostly German and Swiss.

Dr. Levin of Palestine to Speak.

A lecture on "Judaism as a Philosophy of Life" will be delivered at the Sheldon Auditorium at 8 p. m. Wednesday by Dr. Shmarya Levin of Tel-aviv, Palestine. Dr. Levin, a noted Hebrew scholar, settled in Palestine three years ago.

IN STAGE CRITICISM MORALISTIC CANONS DO NOT APPLY

crudest and most childish mind. Obscenity only attains its true and full value when it is the means of attaining a deeper reality and newer beauty. Those who object to obscenity and yet have never realized this—even when they are so-called artists who wish to proclaim their own refined superiority, yet thereby merely 'write themselves down, in the Shaksperean sense—have no right to lay their sacriligious hands on the obscene."

Chandala Virtues.

IN OTHER words, Heywood Broun observes, "a play may be obscene and excellent or obscene and worthless." An Einstein of moral relativity might retort that obscenity cannot exist; no process of life may possibly be more degraded than any other—or, as Swinburne would phrase it, each process of life is as exalted as another. And this ethical physicist would not be compelled, for purposes of perspective, to take his stand on Betelgeuse. He would need merely to step outside Anglo-Saxondom—that is to say, upon almost any spot beyond the borders of the United States and of Great Britain and her colonies.

Our creator of a new moral geometry would point out that, under the iron rule of Rome, it was perilous among subject peasantries to do otherwise than turn the cheek and pretend to love those who used one despitefully; and that, to vindicate themselves to their own self-respect, men had to feign that such grovelings were somehow virtuous. He would conclude that it was persons of anemic instincts, incapable of the conquest of beauty, who in desperate envy fashioned such epithets as "salacious" and "obscene."

The Birth of Propriety.

WHAT was the origin of prudery? In the ascetic religions, one fancies. These were credos born of servile populations, who with much reason abominated reality in contrast to an imaginary hereafter, compounded of harps and streets of gold, in which sex would have no being. In logical consequence, it was necessary for these unhappy wretches to damn the very sources of life with bitter contumely.

In paradisical innocence, the virgins of Sparta danced naked during holy ceremonies. What is called decency was unknown to antiquity, and remains more or less of an enigma to France, Italy, Germany and Russia, not to speak of the continents of Asia and South America. The Renaissance was pagan; its reaction fastened with peculiar virulence upon the unfit for survival, upon those afraid of life and therefore hating life. Of course the view that a great majority of mankind was doomed from the cradle to everlasting damnation was quite theoretical, for the production of fatalists persisted with unabating fury.

When America was discovered, it was found that, as in all barbarous societies, woman ruled the clan. If the Indians had remained undisturbed, it is probable that, after some eons, the sovereignty would have passed to man. As mastery became masculine, in similar stages of evolution, the new despot began to choose his harem on grounds of what he considered beauty. Male selection accounts almost exclusively for the existence of feminine loveliness.

The Stellar Role of Clothes.

CLOTHES played a portentous role in the development of woman from the brutes skinned by Hanno's sailors to the delectable creatures of the present. With an instinct for beautifying his mate and ennobling his sex experience beyond the trite adventures of animals, man, the incorrigible rhapsodist, decked her in the charm and enchantment of furs, gems and exquisite fabrics. Nudity is a betrayal of many eras of esthetic evolution.

Aristotle, with infallible intuition, put his finger on the theater's peculiar function of emotional purgation. He failed to supply a reason, though it is obvious. In letters, sculpture, painting and music, the artist employs such substitutes for actuality as words, marble, pigments and tones. The imagination must busy itself with the task of deciphering these hieroglyphics. The stage approximates facts by using human bodies as material. Reality is always disenchanting, so that drama is the most innocent of the arts.

SLEEVED EVENING GOWNS IN MAJORITY IN FRENCH STYLE

Frocks and Wraps Shown at Opening of Spring Season Reflect Oriental Influence.

PARIS, Feb. 17.—A directoire touch in day costumes and Oriental influence with gorgeous embroideries in evening frocks, marked the opening of the spring season of the Paris dressmaking establishments, now in full swing.

Long haired mannequins have virtually replaced the bobed haired variety at the grand openings of the leading houses.

The lines are straight and skirts flare. The long V and dropped stomach effects are evident. Many of the models have the front cut in the long V, or the ornamentation is arranged with the V as the basis.

In the tailored costumes the colors incluine to browns and the various shades of beige, in which kasha cloths are extensively employed.

Evening frocks and wraps run to Oriental styles, many of them having the wrapped around effect finished on one side, with a long tassel where a sleve might have been. But sleeves, on the whole, appear to be in the majority and they are more or less fancy and curious in their cuts.

Memphis, and April 5, Cape Girardeau.

After the orchestra returns to St. Louis on April 6, Mr. Ganz will held auditions of aspirants for solo engagements at next season's popular concerts. Application blanks may be obtained at the orchestra offices, 302 Odeon Building.

Concerts in the Offing.

AMONG the musical events of the near future will be Mischa Elman's recital at the Odeon on March 17, which will close the first series of the Civic Music League; John McCormack's deferred concert at the Coliseum, now announced for March 24; and the concert of the New York String Quartet at Sheldon Auditorium, on March 26.

John Halk, violinist, a member of the Symphony Orchestra, will give a recital Thursday evening at Sheldon Auditorium, with Mrs. Julie Stevens Bacon at the piano. His principal numbers will be Tartini's Sonata in G minor and Wieniawski's second concerto.

Bloomfield-Zeisler's Recital.

MME. FANNIE BLOOMFIELD-ZEISLER, one of the most distinguished women pianists of the country, who recently celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of her debut as a public performer, will give a recital at the Odeon on the evening of March 20, under the auspices of the Musicians' Fund of America.

O. Wade Fallert will give a free organ recital at 3 o'clock this afternoon at the Scottish Rite Cathedral, with the assistance of Mrs. Louise M. Gelber, contralto. A musical program will be given at a meeting of the Tercentenary Shakspeare Society at 5:30 p. m. Tuesday, at Vandervoort Hall. Persons under 18 are eligible to join the Morning Etude Junior Club, which will meet at 4 p. m. Tuesday at the Divoll Library. There will be a program and papers on musical topics.

15 PERFECT SCORES IN GAME OF 'GUESSING INSTRUMENTS'

75 Papers, With Only One Error, Turned in After Test at Children's Concert.

Perfect scores in the game of "guessing the instruments," recently conducted at a children's concert by the Symphony Orchestra, were made by Thomas F. Galt, Joseph Tushinsky, Virginia Wendel, Margaret Daley, Erma Schleicher, Sylvia Nejelski, Geneva Spesia, H. Baldwin, Joseph Duleth, Kathryn Livingston, Daine Smith, Jane Steinberg, Katherine Frantz, Virginia Schaub and Nancy Kring Prosser.

They are pupils at the University City High School, St. Joseph's Academy, the Rosati-Kain High School, Hosmer Hall and the St. Louis Country Day School. Prizes have been sent to the winners.

In the test, a curtain was lowered before the orchestra, and the children were asked to write the names of the various instruments as they were played. Some adults who were present submitted answers, in which the French horn was mistaken for the trombone, and the tone of the clarinet was not recognized. Among the children's answers, there were 75 papers with only one error, and twice as many with but two mistakes. The test was held Feb. 26 at the Odeon.

IBSEN A FREUDIAN AS SHOWN BY "WILD DUCK" REVIVAL

burlesque. The figure of the Scandinavian show-off becomes a Gilbertian Bunthorne. The man is a bluff and the playwright is merciless in his observation, but the utter falsity of Ekdal's pretensions must not be exposed to the extent that he is not calculated to fool a single other character on the stage. To do so is to throw Gregers Werle, the young idealist, out of focus. He becomes then a half-wit and that is not the idea. He is merely, as the doctor explains, suffering from a severe attack of integrity.

Its Brutal Bitterness.

FORTUNATELY, the role is so well played by Tom Powers that it does carry complete conviction. Thomas Chalmers, incidentally, is excellent as Relling, and there is expert work by Cecil Yapp as Old Ekdal.

"The Wild Duck" is not precisely calculated to increase the stock of sweetness and light along Broadway. Few plays of such brutal bitterness have ever been written. "The Wild Duck" represents Ibsen's irritation at the mood of his followers to make him a latter-day apostle. He has turned with a terrific and sometimes obscene fury upon the whole cult of idealism.

Still, to paraphrase the slogan of another current slice of life, "The Wild Duck" will be remembered when every clean play on Broadway has been forgotten.

Doris Keane in "Starlight."

WHEN a chronicle play is built wholly around one individual it is essential that this central figure shall be important or at least interesting. To my taste "Starlight" falls short of this requirement. Aurelie, who occupies practically every moment of the new play at the Broadhurst, is not a character made sufficiently arresting either by the author or by Doris Keane, who plays the role.

The play is an adaptation by Gladys Unger of Abel Hermant's Dialogues. Almost it seems like a burlesque of the conventional life of an actress. Only a slight push here and there is needed to turn it into travesty.

And, for that matter, Miss Keane comes perilously close to pushing it over the edge. It is broadly written. Some of the comedy strokes are amusing, but all of them are delivered with a full and rounded sweep by the star. She never flicks the fun, but always lashes it. No one is likely to be much surprised by the fact that when the play begins our Aurelie is the daughter of a French tavern-keeper and that a prominent apache is her chief admirer. From then on we watch her as she mounts to stardom and then boredom. We see her failure and her journey into South America in order to expiate the sin of marrying a Marquis and putting on a few airs.

Bernhardt's Life.

AS I understand it, there was nobody in the Paris of that time to forerun Marjorie Rambeau's question to a stage lady of our times: "My Gawd, dearie, ain't ya ever common?" Then we see her return, triumphant, her subsequent successes, her retirings, her successes, and so on and so on.

Now this is all very well, and, as I have said, would be much better if Miss Keane had seemed at all a likely container of deathless genius. But after the second act, a disturbing hint of which had not been lacking earlier, the story and the make-up of Miss Keane both did everything possible short of open announcement to indicate that the play was the story of Sarah Bernhardt's life.

Play Is Offensive.

I THINK that if it had been said in the beginning that this was the life of Bernhardt, almost anything might have been done, however irreverent, and nobody would have been any the worse for it. But to call this French actress one thing, and then behave as if she were another, taking advantage of the slim disguise to be brutal and of the failure of the disguise to wring a few easy tears, seems to be an offense.

I have not often been more truly disturbed in the theater than by the final scene, which was to all purposes except the open one the last scene in the stage life of Sarah Bernhardt, and which showed her staggering in all but physical coma to the tune of the "Marseillaise." I do think it is an affront to the real gallantry and the true heroism and spirit of Sarah Bernhardt to array it in shoddy and theatrical flamboyancy and use it to trick the generosities of an audience.

The piece was on the whole badly played, though Frederick Vogeding as an actor-manager and Edwin Mills as a small child were good.

Ziegfeld's Musical Comedy.

A MUSICAL comedy of true delight is "Louie the Fourteenth," which Florenz Ziegfeld Jr. displayed on the stage of the Ziegfeld-Cosmopolitan Theater in Columbus Circle Monday night. Much has been forecast along Broadway regarding the scenic and musical excellence of this production, in which the master of the "Follies" brings back Leon Erroll as a principal comedian. It is all justified.

Probably not in his career has Mr. Ziegfeld accomplished anything quite so beautiful to see and to hear and this is no insignificant report. His has been a line of girl and dance shows to send the name of musical comedy ringing over the earth.

Now, I think he tops them all and so there can be no doubt that here is, indeed, the world's finest entertainment of its kind.

It is evident at all times that first in the minds of the makers of the play has been the framing of pleasing pictures. There are, no doubt, a hundred girls, and not a one is less than glorious. The settings of the second act showing the banquet hall in a French chateau and the garden of the chateau are superb examples of stage carpentering and painting.

Gorgeously Produced.

THE costumes are finer and lovelier than Mr. Ziegfeld has lavished upon his children of other days. I doubt if so wholly admirable a closet of clothes has ever been assemibed before. Of course, this is raving a bit, but so did everyone else last night.

It falls upon the competent shoulders of Mr. Errol to portray an American doughboy, frequently soused, much taken up with the French girlies and bound by no responsibilities, who finds it pleasanter to remain in France after the war has ended than to come home. He becomes a mountain guide and he learns to yodel. He is known as Louie the 14th because his name is Louis and also because he has been employed by a wealthy French host as the fourteenth guest at a lawn party attended by the best people.

Errol Is Still Falling.

TO me Mr. Errol is extremely funny, authough it is true enough he does nothing more comical than his old act of falling down horribly and humiliatingly ever so often. He speaks humorous lines occasionally, but the impression is distinct that a book of few opportunities has been written for him. In story it is neither novel, smart nor particularly interesting. Mr. Romberg's melodies are of the most enchanting swing.

Among those to whom one feels a word of kindness should be spoken are Harry Fender, the tenor; Evelyn Law, who dances; Pauline Mason, for her loveliness and grace; Ethel Shutta, a new and accomplished prima donna; Judith Vosselli, striking in her white face and black hair, and Louis Casavant, Major Domo. With one grand gesture, I bow to the chorus.

"Michel Auclair."

A PLAY in three acts, entitled "Michel Auclair," by Charles Vilderac, was presented Wednesday night by the Provincetown Players, under the direction of Robert Edmond Jones. It is a static drama of frustration that ends in a rather improbable promise of happiness. It crawled along as drearily as a subway express during the rush hour.

The offering possesses three good points—the carefully selected detail of the settings by Robert Edmond Jones after sketches by M. Vilderac, the third act and the red trousered Walter Abel. Offsetting these are the almost eternal blather, blither and twaddle of the first act, and the later speeches of Michel which can only be equaled in length by those of a past master of a Masonic lodge; and the monotony of direction, and tempo.

The plot, in brief, is concerned with the love of Michel Auclair, an idealist and book seller with dreams of converting the dull town of Saint Serge into a friendly place of well-read persons. Michel departs for Paris, leaving his fiancee, Suzanne. In his absence she becomes enamored of a young soldier whose physical attractions beguile her into marrying him.

WHEN Michel returns a year and a half later, he finds her miserable, living in poverty because of her stupid husband's addiction for the racing charts. Michel becomes their friend, tolerant, understanding, aiding them with money when the young husband is found dishonest. Through Michel, however, the debt is paid, and he shows the despondent couple the way to happiness by means of postmastership—if the husband can pass the exams. Curtain.

Life as it happens in all its mediocrity satisfies the poet-dramatist, who has inserted into the drab monotony of days before the great war patches of poetry that glow like poinsettas in twilight. Interspersed with these are moments of exact realism where Suzanne sews and irons the family wash, and where the husband in his big silent scene in the third act pares and cleans his nails with a penknife.

This silent scene, acted by Walter Abel, is perhaps the most telling in the entire play.

SAN CARLO OPERA COMPANY TO PRESENT 'TOSCA' MARCH 23

Choice for Opening Night of Week at Odeon Made in Memory of Puccini.

The work chosen to open the San Carlo Opera Co.'s week of opera at popular prices, beginning March 23 at the Odeon, will be "Tosca," chosen in memory of its composer, Giacomo Puccini, who died last November. The title role will be sung by Elda Vettori, that of Mario Cavaradossi by Manuel Salazar, and Baron Scarpia by Mario Valle. In the cast also will be Pietro di Biasi, Natale Cervi, Francesco Curci, Luigi de Cesare, Pietro Salori and Gilda Mercaille.

On the second night, Verdi's "Rigoletto" will be given, with Mario Basliola in the name part, and Josephine Lucchese as Gilda. Demetrio Onofrei will appear as the Duke, and Stella de Mette as Maddalena. Natale Cervi will sing the part of Monterone.

Other operas to be presented during the week are "Aida," "Cavalleria Rusticana," "I' Pagliacci," "Madame Butterfly," "Lucia di Lammermoor," "Il Trovatore," "Lohengrin" and "Il Barbiere di Seviglia."

Hair-Dyeing Popular in England.

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

LONDON, Feb. 17.—A leading West End hairdresser has said recently that hair-dyeing is now one of the most lucrative parts of his trade. Many women are asking for their hair to be dyed white because of the distinguished effect snow-white hair gives the owner. Others are seeking a steely-gray color, while others want the "pepper and salt effect" created when hair begins to be streaked with gray. Red and copper tints are going out of fashion and possessors of this class of dyed hair are most anxious to undergo the new process.

WOMAN LABORITE AIRS IDEA THAT WOMEN ARE OLD AT 40

Ellen Wilkinson Is Fast Becoming the Life of Parliament in Absence of Lady Astor.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, March 7.—Ellen Wilkinson, the one woman who sits on the Labor benches in the House of Commons, is 33 years old, but already is wondering whether women workers are not too old for further duty at 40. When she aired this idea this week it came as a shock to wrinkled suffragettes who still have a lot of life left in them. Yet Miss Wilkinson did not recommend the chloroforming of the middle aged as a famous scientist was once credited with doing; she merely said the position of British women wage earners when they reach middle age is a very grave menace, indeed.

She added that the expression "too old at 40" did not apply to Premiers, Cabinet members or parliamentarians, "judging from some of the wrinkle-faced gentlemen I faced day by day in the Commons."

Perhaps it was a happy afterthought to mention the parliamentarians, for in the Commons there are some women who will never see 40 again, among them Lady Astor, whose ready tongue strikes off sparkling witticisms and much-quoted aphorisms with a vivaciousness truly youthful.

In the absence of Lady Astor, who has gone to the country for an ordered holiday, Miss Wilkinson is getting to be the life of the Parliament. To begin with, she has red hair and she has had it shingled. Upon the reassembly of the House after the holiday recess she appeared in a vivid green dress instead of a plain dark frock such as feminine parliamentarians have affected ever since Lady Astor set the precedent with her demure black dresses and neat plain collars of white.

After Lady Astor, Miss Wilkinson, by what she says and does, supplies more "human interest" copy for the press than any other member of Parliament.

RECIPE TO DARKEN GRAY HAIR

You Can Make a Better Gray Hair Remedy Than You Can Buy.

Gray, streaked or faded hair is not only unbecoming, but unnecessary.

Anyone can prepare a simple mixture at home that will darken gray hair, to make it soft and glossy. To a half-pint of water add 1 ounce of bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound and ¼ oz. of glycerine.

These ingredients can be bought at any drug store at very little cost, or the druggist will put it up for you. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. This will make a gray-haired person look twenty years younger. It is easy to use, does not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy and does not rub off.

A Stubborn Cough Loosens Right Up

This home-made remedy is a wonder for quick results. Easily and cheaply made.

Here is a home-made syrup which millions of people have found to be the most dependable means of breaking up stubborn coughs. It is cheap and simple, but very prompt in action. Under its healing, soothing influence, chest soreness goes, phlegm loosens, breathing becomes easier, tickling in throat stops and you get a good night's restful sleep. The usual throat and chest colds are conquered by it in 24 hours or less. Nothing better for bronchitis, hoarseness, croup, throat tickle, bronchial asthma or winter coughs.

To make this splendid cough syrup, pour 2½ ounces of Pinex into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup and shake thoroughly. If you prefer use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, you get a full pint—a family supply—of much better cough syrup than you could buy ready-made for three times the money. Keeps perfectly, and children love its pleasant taste.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, known the world over for its prompt healing effect upon the membranes.

To avoid disappointment ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

HE KILLED HIS INVALID DAUGHTER TO END HER HOPELESS PAIN

Philosophy Which Could Justify Murder Deserts Colorado Doctor When His Suicide Plans Fail

Dr. H. E. Blazer, in His "Suicide Note," Made Out a Case for Himself in the Court of Final Appeal Beyond the Grave, but Now That He Has Bungled His Attempt at Self Destruction, and Faces Prosecution, He Turns to the Plea That He Cannot Remember and That, if He Killed His Daughter, It Must Have Been While Suffering a Temporary Aberration.

By FREDERICK H. BRENNAN,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

DENVER, Colo., March 7.

THEY'LL be trying the old doctor for murder pretty soon. He knows that, propped up in bed at the hospital, and his eyes are shrewdly defensive. Gray, stiffish, gaunt, he answers questions with a baffling "I don't remember." But, somehow, you feel, alking to him, that he does remember. He has come back from death's shadow where e might have forgot, to face the evidence he might have left behind forever. It is a ifferent story he must tell now, you suspect.

In the suicide note he prepared before it all happened, his case was stated clearly. e wrote of his weariness, his fear that he would die and leave his daughter Hazel be-ind. He declared, "I made up my mind a good many years ago that I would not leave er to be a burden to someone else." She had been his burden for 32 years—a deformed mbecile. Now they would leave the world together. He would chloroform her, and then ake his own life.

DR. H. E. BLAZER.

He had expected, perhaps, when it was one, to stand before the High Judge and ay: "Yes, I killed my daughter. I did it ecause her life was a hopeless agony." That as to be his plea to the murder charge. As o the matter of suicide he could argue as he ad argued on earth: "Life is given to be seful and to be enjoyed. When it ceases o be useful and enjoyable, man has a right o make an ending."

Why has he forgot this now? One look t him is enough for an answer. The murder f Hazel was accomplished; he failed to kill imself. Instead of the High Judge, he faces District Attorney. Not for him those judg-ents beyond the grave. For him the State f Colorado vs. Dr. Harold E. Blazer.

(District Attorney Joel Stone says, "He on't get to first base with a philosophical ea before a Colorado jury.")

So the doctor contends, "If I killed her, I on't remember it." (That emotional insanity edge won't work, either, the District At-rney feels.) There is so much evidence ainst the doctor. Seldom has so strong a rcumstantial case been placed in the hands f the prosecution.

Corpus Delicti

First of all, the corpus delicti is firmly ablished. The body of Hazel Blazer lies Coroner Mackin's undertaking shop at En-wood. Post mortem examination has re-aled that she came to her death by chloro-m. So skillfully had this been administered t there are no burns on the face. (The strict Attorney feels this is a good point, owing that she was slain by someone who ed her.) She went to sleep without a ruggle, indeed she could not have struggled, ing paralyzed and entirely helpless. Death me gently, sealing the mute lips that never rmed a word, quieting the twisted hands, ways restless from pain, snuffing out the ak flame of life that bound her to years of rture. She is not lovely, dead, but some f the ugliness has gone. Life no longer ocks her. (She had a right to live until e was a hundred, the District Attorney uld remind you, and it was murder to cut ort her days.)

The circumstances under which Hazel Bla-er died make the case against her father lmost conclusive. A week ago last Tues-y afternoon he told another daughter, Mrs. oy Bishop, who, with her husband made r home with the doctor and Hazel, that would work on the lawn. He suggested at she and Roy go into the village of En-ewood on a business errand for him. The ctor was proud of his bungalow home at 00 West Oxford street, with its view of the ckies and Fort Logan to the west. So n he told them he would work on the n, they saw nothing strange, and con-ed to do the errand.

r. and Mrs. Bishop left the house short-fter noon and did not return until 5:30 . (The District Attorney points out that Blazer had ample opportunity and time to carry out his plans.) When Mrs. Bishop reached the front door she found it locked. She and her husband tried to call Dr. Blazer, but received no reply. Finally, they broke a rear window and entered the house.

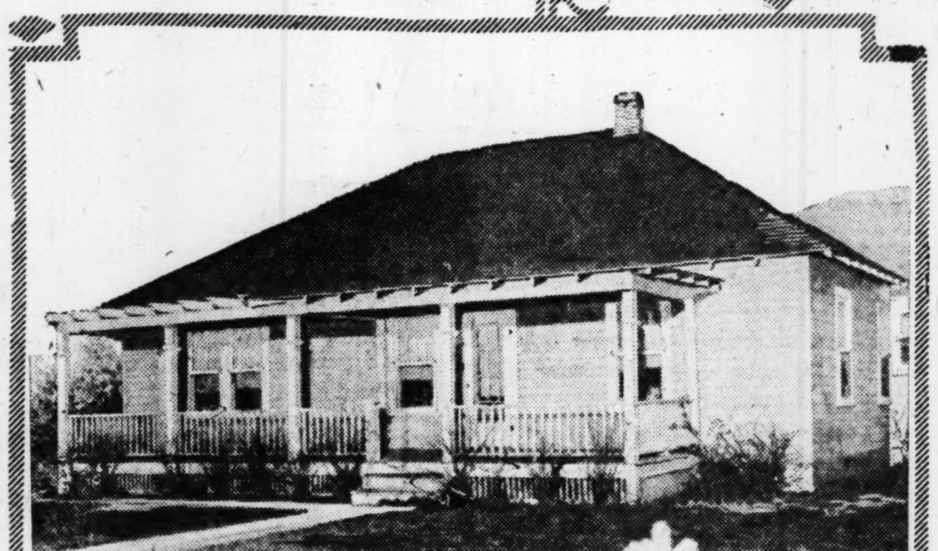
Sounds drew them to a rear bedroom. There they saw Hazel lying on the bed, as if asleep. The doctor sat on the side of the bed. He appeared to be ill and dazed, his face flushed.

"What has happened?" Mrs. Bishop cried.

"I don't know," he said.

"The Little Girl Is Dead"

The son-in-law telephoned for a doctor. Several were out and it was 6 o'clock before Dr. Hugh Alldredge of Englewood arrived. He did not know Dr. Blazer was a physician, and took it for granted both he and his daughter were victims of some accident. His first act was to examine Hazel.



Bungalow home of the Blazers, where the physician killed his daughter and tried to kill himself.

"The little girl is dead," he announced, and then, trying to get Dr. Blazer to leave the bed, "Come away, you can't do her any good."

"Isn't there some writing?" the father asked, rousing from an apparent stupor.

The facts of the tragedy began to dawn on Frances Bishop. She searched for a note, while Dr. Alldredge examined the evidence.

On the floor lay an empty quarter pound can of chloroform and several towels. A bottle of bichloride of mercury was on the bureau, its cork having been pried out by someone who used a nail file. The file was sticking in the cork. (Dr. Alldredge will be one of the State's star witnesses.)

"You chloroformed your daughter!" he accused Dr. Blazer.

The man on the bed started coughing blood. This is a sign of corrosive sublimate poisoning. "You took bichloride?" Dr. Alldredge asked. Dr. Blazer said nothing.

At this juncture Mrs. Bishop and her husband found the note. It read as follows:

Frances:

You know as much about my business as I do. If you can get the mill and timber back they ought to be worth at least $3000. Sell outright if you can. Please do not put much more money or time on the can. I still think it can be worked out, but it is uncertain about the patent. Do not pay an undertaker more than $100 for casket and his services for the two of us. Either have the ashes interred or scatter them on a windy day. I have been a very poor business man, you try and do better. Dear daughter, I am weary and afraid—afraid of being taken suddenly and leaving Hazel. I know my blood pressure is very high. I made up my mind a good many years ago I would not leave her behind to be a burden to someone else. She is a burden, notwithstanding our love for her. I never have been even partially reconciled to your mother's being taken. You have a very fine baby. Do the best possible for him. Write to my mother. I have always had great love for my people, especially Mother and Allie. With great love.

The Bishops thought then that they recognized Dr. Blazer's handwriting. (The District Attorney says they are not so sure of it now.)

Dr. Alldredge summoned Coroner J.J. Mackin, Englewood undertaker, newly elected to the post. It was Coroner Mackin's first murder case and he was at loss how to proceed. He says that the four of them discussed matter and decided Dr. Blazer was dying from corrosive sublimate poisoning. There would be no use to call the District Attorney until he died. So the Coroner removed Hazel's body and Dr. Alldredge tried to make his patient comfortable.

Dr. Blazer, still seeming dazed, would not take the antidote offered him, nor would he respond to his daughter's queries. His attitude antagonized Dr. Alldredge, who presently left the house, convinced there was no use in arguing with a dying man.

However, Dr. Blazer had recovered sufficiently by 4 o'clock the next morning to make another attempt on his life. Unobserved he walked to the bathroom and slashed his throat with a razor. When Dr. Alldredge arrived, the injured man once more refused medical attention.

It was Friday afternoon when Coroner Mackin decided to call in District Attorney Stone. The District Attorney spent the next two days gathering his evidence. Monday Dr. Blazer rallied from a sort of coma and physicians who examined him announced he would recover, and might now be questioned.

The Suicide Note

So he had emerged from these nightmarish hours to face a District Attorney and the evidence. The note he had left to be read by whoever came when he and Hazel were dead, was waved in his face. He was removed to the hospital at Littleton, county seat of Arapahoe County, and placed under guard.

The note decided matters as far as the District Attorney was concerned. It had been written in a fine, steady hand. (No sign of mental agitation, gentlemen of the jury.) It alluded definitely to two impending deaths. (Mark, gentlemen, he mentioned himself and daughter.) It betrayed a motive in two direct statements. (He was weary and she was a burden he would not leave behind.)

"Did you write it?" the District Attorney asked the doctor.

"I don't think so," he replied. "If I did, I don't remember."

"Ha!" said the District Attorney, "we'll see how that will go in court."

The District Attorney has not been unwilling to appreciate the motive for this crime. In fact, he will enlarge upon the motive in order to rationalize the doctor's act. (The prosecution's best attack on an insanity plea is to show how a crime was the logical outcome of circumstances which went before.)

Dr. Blazer's had been a long travail. Reared in an Ohio town and graduating from Western University, now called Western Reserve University at Cleveland, he had married early in life. He was 29 when Hazel was born, and life gave him his cross. She was not normal, and when three months old spinal meningitis completed the distortion. Doomed for life, beyond all medical aid, she never developed mentally, her mind being that of a baby. But the horror of years was that her body continued to grow in its cretinish, twisted way, until she had a woman's torso, head and face, a child's limbs and an infant's brain.

Anna Lavassor, Paris dressmaker, who, at the pleading of her suffering sister, shot and killed her.

For 32 years Dr. Blazer and his wife cared for this Thing. (The District Attorney would object to the word.) Dr. Blazer's own dedication to this tragedy seems to have colored his existence. As she was warped, uncanny, so he appears to have impressed strangers. Small wonder. He spent no leisure time away from her, seldom mixed with men except during working hours. He loved her. (The District Attorney will bring this point out strongly.) His wife cared for the two other daughters, and he made Hazel his charge. Fed her. Carried her. Played dolls with her. Watched while she rolled across the floor for exercise good days when her back ached less than usually. Thirty-two years of it.

The Motive

The Blazers moved to Colorado in 1910, and the doctor became a mine physician. His last post was with the Colorado Fuel & Iron Co. at Farr, Colo., some 40 miles from Denver. In March of last year Mrs. Blazer died at Pueblo. She talked with her husband about Hazel in their last time together:

"Promise you'll always look after her. She is our responsibility, you know. Her sisters are kind to her, but we should bear the burden."

The doctor promised. But he was nearing the end, too. He had sick spells when everything went black before his eyes. (This the District Attorney will deny.) His wife's death took the heart out of him. He gave up the practice of medicine and moved to Englewood where he invited his daughter Frances and her husband to live with him. They had been in Englewood since November.

He had laid by enough to last the rest of his days, but he felt he must do something. So he dabbled in business. One of his investments was to put $3000 in an auxiliary oil can for a Ford car. The inventor finally sold out his share for $150 and the doctor realized he had valued the patent too high. That worried him.

In health, in his profession, in business he was nearing the end. He feared he would die (The District Attorney will impress this upon the jurymen) and he wondered what would become of Hazel. Her sisters might care for her, but wouldn't their husbands object some day? Wouldn't she be put in a home for the feeble-minded? Maybe they would mistreat her——

Oh, the motive was there, all right. (The District Attorney will endeavor to show that he came to his decision, deliberately, philosophically.)

The Doctor's Failure

So he chloroformed her. Then he faltered. Being a doctor he should not have selected corrosive sublimate, one of the slowest and most painful poisons known, as the way out for himself. Nor should he have used so little chloroform to kill the pain, as he did. Nor should he have taken morphine, which made him sick and brought up the corrosive sublimate before it could do its deadly work. Nor should he have struck at his jugular vein with a razor and missed the mark, as he did. Did he really want to die?

(The District Attorney has announced he thinks Dr. Blazer was shamming suicide all along.) Perhaps that is too harsh a judgment. Perhaps the old doctor meant to take his case out of this world, but weakened, finding it easier to decide death for Hazel than for himself. No matter. Here he is, awaiting trial for murder.

Well—the State has the evidence and the motive. Perhaps had Dr. Blazer carried his appeal to a different court some element of justification, some extenuating facts might have been found in his story.

Perhaps he could have said: "I thought my course was best for both of us," and found agreement. (But not in Colorado, the District Attorney wishes to emphasize.)

"A human life is a human life."

"Thou shalt do no murder."

Here and there about Englewood are a few who say, "No jury should convict him for what he did." Dr. Alldredge was one of them who said that to the correspondent. But only a few.

The percentage of those who might find justification for him somehow can be seen in the doctor's eyes, as he talks to you at the hospital. It is a tiny faith. He will put no trust in it. He might have pleaded his case before the High Judge, but he will not stand before a jury with such a plea.

So he talks as he did with the correspondent:

Do you remember writing a note?

I remember something about a note, yes.

Do you remember killing your daughter?

If I did kill her, I don't remember.

Speaking generally, doctor, isn't your belief that in many cases taking the life of a helpless imbecile is justifiable?

Why, yes, I believe that. You believe it, don't you?

Isn't it probable that this was in your mind when you decided to write that note?

No, my daughter was happy. She enjoyed her food. She enjoyed life.

Then you can think of no reason that might have led you to kill your daughter?

No. If I killed her I must have been crazy.

Isn't it true that you loved your daughter?

Yes, I loved her.

You have been in poor health?

Yes.

You did not want to go away and leave her?

No one would.

You realize that all the evidence seems convincing, don't you?

They tell me so.

But you remember nothing of what happened that afternoon? Don't remember the chloroform can, the corrosive sublimate bottle, the towels?

No.

You admit the possibility of your having done this while suffering a temporary aberration?

It was possible, but don't try to make me say I did it. I just don't know what I did. If I did kill her I did wrong.

So he stands at bay, this gray, broken man. He is left in the world, facing a question he had not expected men would have to answer. "What is the degree of my guilt?" he perhaps meant to ask a different jury. Now a jury of men will decide and he fears that decision.

Millions at Stake in Court Fight Over "Desert Rat's" Blast Furnace Inventio

FEDERAL COURT OF APPEALS GIVES GEORGE CARSON DECISION AGAINST BIG SMELTING CORPORATIO

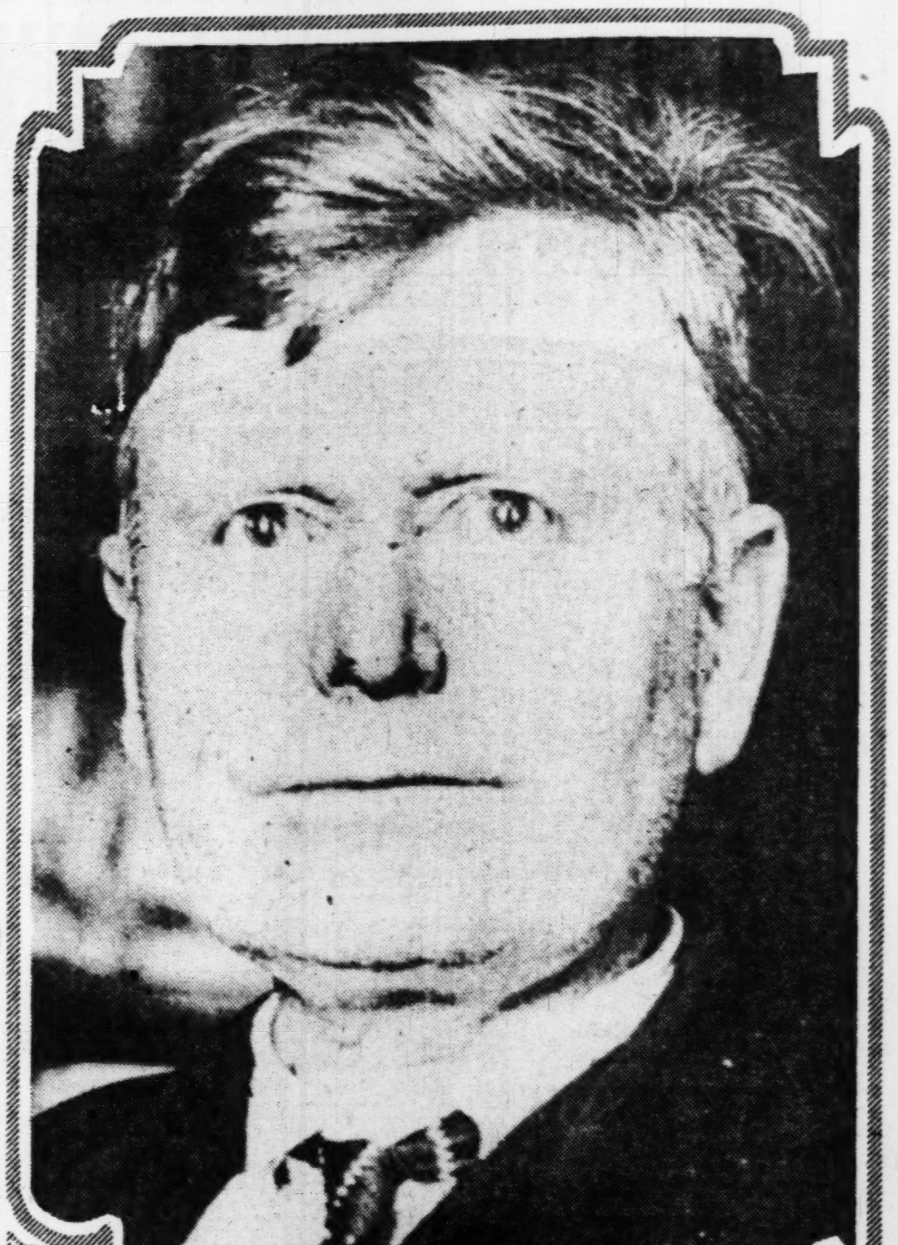
Oldtimer of the Copper Fields Was the First to Think Out a "Side-Feeder" and He Obtained Patents on It, but He Says the Great Companies Stole His Idea and Infringed His Patent, and the Court Says He Is Right About It—One Company Has Been Ordered to Pay Him Damages and Royalties and Suits Are to Follow Against Several Others.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., March 7.

THE other old fellows at The Sailor's Rest had grown weary of hearing George Carson talk of the millions somebody owed him. He was always harping on it; how he had invented a blast furnace and patented the thing, too, and then how the big companies had cheated him of his rights.

Once in a while one of the boys would get so tired hearing George talk he would say, "Let's see that there patent, George." They'd all nudge each other, sitting on the porch of an evening, and wink. George would get up from his cane-bottomed chair, defiantly. Going up to his room, he muttered to himself, and invariably came back with a paper and drawings.



George C. Carson, "Desert Rat," whose winning of Furnace Patent Suit is expected to net him millions.

"Thar she is," he would say, in a proud voice, "She's the best dad-blamed furnace ever invented. Feeds from the side, y'see, instead of at the top. My idee. Them crooks I'm a suin' are usin' it, and they haven't paid me a penny either. A poor man ain't got no chance in this country."

"No he ain't," they'd all agree, these men home from the seven seas with money belts for their remaining years. But they doubted George's claim to fame and fortune. Sometimes they even joked him a little.

"Hell, I invented a engine what would run on sea water," some humorist would say, "but them big steamship companies havin' a monopoly of the oceans wouldn't give me no fuel."

How They "Kidded" George

Or another would say, "George is like ol' Bill Blumpus, a buddy of mine on the 'Mary Ann.' Bill invented such a good anchor it's down at the bottom yet."

Or perhaps: "Why don't ye invent a furnace that'll run without a blast, and put the crooks out o' business?"

Hearing such talk George Carson would shake his head and say doggedly, "I'll get my rights yet. I'm goin' t' law them crooks to the Soopreme Court of th' United States. I'll law 'em straight t' Congriss. I've got millions comin' t' me and I aim t' collect."

He made strange journeys to lawyers' offices, trying to get someone interested in his case. Grizzled from years as a desert prospector, timid from lack of book-learning, but strong in the belief that justice was due him, George Carson sought aid. He found that most attorneys, after reading his papers, mistrusted his story.

"Er—what engineering degrees have you, Mr. Carson?"

"I ain't got none. Didn't learn the business thataway. I been workin' since I was 16 around mines and furnaces."

"Where did you get the technical training to invent a blast furnace?"

"No place. I know furnaces. Hell, I been workin' around 'em all my life, an' I'm 58 years old now."

It Didn't Seem Logical

"But Mr. Carson, it doesn't seem logical to us that your patent could be basically sound. Sure you didn't copy some other furnace?"

"Of course I'm sure. I took out my patent in 1906, and it wasn't till years later that these companies started using a furnace just like mine. I didn't copy them, they copied me."

Then the lawyers would look at the list of companies Carson wished to sue—The American Smelting & Refining Co.; Garfield Smelting Co.; the Calumet and Arizona, United Verde Extension and United Verde, the Phelps-Dodge; the Consolidated Kansas City Smelting and Refining Co.; the Anaconda Copper Co. and International Smelting Co. These corporations represented millions. They were firmly entrenched as concerns of reputation and power.

Usually the lawyers would glance up from the list and take in George Carson; his weather seamed face, his shabby clothes, his illiterate speech.

"Assuming that your claim is well-grounded, how well are you prepared to carry on a long litigation, Mr. Carson?" they would ask.

That was always a facer. Carson had heard that lawyers sometimes took cases on a contingent fee basis, financing suits on the prospect of a percentage of all money recovered. But he learned that few were willing to even consider his chance of success. They wanted a retainer and regular payments for the work they would do. And Carson had no money.

If he was without financial backing, he was even more without moral support. A bachelor, there were no folks at home to believe in him. True, his old mother, to whom he wrote every week, told him she was sure he had an honest claim and to believe in God. True, his seven brothers, all married, sympathized and helped as much as they were able. But they saw just what the lawyers saw—the appalling odds against him.

"Just a desert rat," the representatives of the copper kings called "Old Man" Carson. The blast furnaces Carson claimed to have invented were busy turning out dividends for the corporations he asserted had robbed him. It seemed too much for any outsider to believe that "Old Man" Carson could stack up against such forces and emerge victorious.

Inventor Carson lends himself to the laboratory mood.

The Lawyer Believed Him

"If I could only tell a jury my story," Carson said to himself, "I think they'd give me justice."

It was a long road from the Sailor's Rest in San Francisco to a courtroom; a long road from an old prospector's savings to an inventor's millions. But George Carson never gave up. He kept visiting lawyers' offices, shuffling in, apologetically, with his patent papers and his drawings.

A lucky chance at last led him to the man who could help. He was John H. Miller, an attorney.

Miller believed Carson's story. He had so much faith in the justice of his client's claim that he offered to finance the fight.

Accordingly, Miller filed suit against the American Smelting and Refining Co., intending later to bring action against every corporation listed by Carson. There were many delays and adroit maneuvers by counsel for the defendant. But the day came when "Old Man" Carson shuffled into a courtrom at Seattle to tell his story.

He entered timidly, accounts of the trial stated, glancing in bewilderment at the array of lawyers representing the corporation he attacked. They were imposing, handsomely dressed men with glittering glasses and a way of twirling gold knives on their watch chains. It was the plan of the defense, apparently to show that Carson could not have invented a blast furnace. It was argued that he, an ignorant fellow, a 'desert rat' must have copied his furnace from patents previously granted.

"Well," said Carson when he took the stand, "I admit I ain't never been to a injuneering school. But let me tell you how I learned about blast furnaces. When I get through you'll allow a man don't have to know book learnin' to be a inventor.

Story of His Life

"I was born 58 years ago near La Crosse, Kan., on my daddy's farm. It wasn't a good farm; them grasshoppers ate the corn and wheat most every year, and what the grasshoppers didn't get the drouth did, so I figgered it wasn't no place fer me.

"I lit out from home when I was 14 and took to bumming along the railroads going West. Bein' large fer my age I could always get work with section gangs. I tried this fer two years, and quit. Didn't like railroadin'.

"Pretty soon I had drifted into the silver country of Arizona. Silver and copper them days was just openin' up. I prospected up and down the country, gettin' as far north as the Yukon and as far south as Old Mexico.

"I got to be a practical geologist, just as my lawyer says. I wasn't no good at callin' off the names of all the minrals, but no man could fool me on a copper lode, an' I knew payin' silver rock when I saw it.

Sold Mine for $1500

"In 1886 I discovered a mine near Clifton, Ariz. Men called it 'The Wonderful Mine.' There was the best surface outcroppin' of ore y' ever seen. All surface ore. I'd have made my pile if I'd stayed with it. But I got discouraged an' didn't figger the killin' big enough. I sold out fer $1500. I was a plumb fool them days.

"Well, after that I drifted from one mining town to another. I joined a expedition of the American Jographical Sassiety into Old Mexico under Mr. Carl Lumbholz. Y'see I must have knowed somethin' or I wouldn't have been hired.

"When I got back, I went to work around the copper smelters. They was usin' old top-feeder furnaces then. Men had to work on top and in front, and it sure was hell. I've seen stout old timers fall in faints from the heat and gasses. I had sense enough to see, I reckon, that these furnaces wasn't as good as they could be. They'd only handle about 200 tons at a charge, and wasted a lot.

Invented the Side-Feeder

"I got to thinkin' about a better furnace. I went back East and worked around the big smelters at Pittsburg. They was usin' reverberatory furnaces with the blasts of fire passin' sideways instead of up and' down. That was a improvement, because the gasses passed out the side instead of the top. But they were still feedin' 'em from the top. The ore was put in hoppers and dropped down on the fire bed.

"My idee was to rig up a side-feedin' reverberatory furnace that would handle more ore and be easier on the men. So I figgered out a way to do it and drew my plans. Then I tried to get 'em patented.

Prospect of millions has not made Carson a man of fashion, as this street snapshot shows.

"The Patent Office didn't like the way I explained how the furnace worked. They said I hadn't spelled the words right. Well, I wrote the explanation again. Still they said some words warn't spelled legal. I wrote them plans five times before they would give me a patent.

They Stole His Idea

"I got my patent in 1906. Then I set out to sell it. It sure was tough pluggin'. I visited all the big smelters in th' East, but they wouldn't even look at my furnace. Finally, the officials of one refinery did go over my plans but they said 'Nothin' doin'.'

"I tried the big copper and silver companies. One vice president talked to me and examined the plans. He said, 'your furnace won't work, but we believe in encouragin' inventors. We'll give you two thousand dollars for your patent.' I said, 'Nope, I'm goin' to make you see that the furnace will work.' He just laughed at me.

"A few years later I happened to visit one of the smelters that I had tried to sell my furnace to, an' they war usin' a furnace just like it. I wanted to know 'who gave you the right to use my furnace?' They laughed at me. 'Your furnace?' they said. 'This furnace is patented.' I said 'I invented that furnace and it's my patent.' But it wasn't no use. They said some other man had patent.

"In 1915, while I was still tryin' to furnace, I read a article in a mining which described my furnace to a 'T.' article said as how all the big copper panies had taken to using the furnace, it didn't say 'George Carson is the inv I realized then that someone had stole patent. Here I was without much travelin' around tryin' to get justice, them usin' my furnace an' givin' me fer it."

That was George Carson's story. It to have made an impression on the

GASTON B. MEANS, MASTER SALESMAN, AND THE GOODS THAT HE HAS SOLD

Trafficked in This and That, But Always the Leading Line of Slick North Carolinian Has Been Himself

"Southern Gentleman" Capitalized His Business Cunning, Bartered His Charming Personality to a Rich Widow, Talked Himself Out of a Conviction When Charged With Murdering Her, "Cleaned Up" as a Spy for Germany and England, Sold His Honor to the Corrupt Coterie That Disgraced the Harding Administration — Pending Deals Relate to Small Matters of Prohibition Violation and Attempt to Bribe.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

CONCORD, N. C., March 7.

GASTON B. MEANS, the Master Salesman, is back in his old home town for what he expects will be an extended visit. Indeed, there are just two more big deals to put through before he can settle down here permanently. Knowing his transcendent ability as a salesman the home folks believe Gaston will sell his propositions.

The first proposition is to convince a Federal court of appeals that he should not be sent to Atlanta penitentiary for two years on conviction of having violated the prohibition law. This idea didn't get over to a jury when the case was tried in New York last July, but then the great salesman had to depend on his lawyers. Now he has taken the case in hand himself.

The second proposition is to pursuade a federal jury that he is not guilty of an attempt to bribe former Attorney-General Harry Daugherty and other Government officials. This should prove easy to Means who once from the witness stand in the courthouse here talked himself out of a first degree murder charge.

Aside from his appeal and the pending indictments there is nothing to prevent Gaston B. Means from retiring to the quiet life of a North Carolina gentleman with his wife and small son. If he does retire it will be after one of the best sales records ever achieved by any salesman. Gaston Means not only sold things, he sold himself. Gaston B. Means was his principal commodity; he sold Gaston B. Means over and over again, until like Alexander who had no more worlds to conquer he had nothing more to sell.

He sold his business cunning to a manufacturer of turkish towels. He bartered his charm and personality to a rich widow. He negotiated his genius for sly intrigue with the German Government. He traded his capacity for double-dealing to the English Government. And last of all, he sold his honor to that coterie of corrupt men who disgraced the administration of Warren G. Harding.

A High-Priced Man

His price in each deal was large. It cost Mrs. Maude A. King of Chicago at least $500,000 to know him. Capt. Boy-ed, the Kaiser's spy, paid him $85,000 at one time and $92,000 at another for his services. England "paid him well" for certain labors. While working in the Bureau of Investigation of the American Department of Justice he handled by his own admission at least $400,000 in bribe money. His final sale was to Pittsburg people who paid him and his secretary $15,000 for protecting them in the matter of whisky withdrawals from a bonded warehouse.

Scandal has followed him, but he laughed at that; indictments have been voted against him, but he used to boast, "They never got a single conviction." He was accused of murdering Mrs. King after her estate under his management had melted from $1,000,000 to $90,000. The motive was there and the circumstantial evidence was there, but he came through a sensational trial acquitted. He was accused of being a German spy. He laughingly admitted it. When the Brookhart committee started its investigation of wholesale corruption in the Department of Justice, Gaston B. Means took the witness stand. Urbanely, he talked of splitting bribes with the Attorney-General of the United States, of doing the administration's "dirty work," of questionable associations with Jess Smith and Jake Hamon, political "fixers."

Yes, he is a master salesman. He admits it. Back in the old days when he sold towels for the Cannon Mills of Concord he liked to boast of the orders he obtained. He reveled in the limelight of the King murder trial. He enjoyed telling how the Imperial German Government trusted him with $1,000,000 at a time and how he would place the money under a tombstone in Trinity churchyard for Capt. Boy-ed. While the country was gasping at the revelation of graft at Washington his only reaction was a chuckle. All this has tickled his vanity.

The Southern Gentleman

He started out in North Carolina as a school teacher. Airing his knowledge before families and strutting on a foot high plat- did not satisfy him long. He wanted press men and strut on higher stages. Concord folk nodded when Gaston B. Means wrote out his resignation.

"You can't keep a smart man teaching school all his life," they said. Even then, Gaston B. Means had "sold" himself.

His second sale of himself was to the salesmanager of the Concord Mills. One can fancy how he did it.

Swallow tail coats and a Southern planter's hat he early adopted as his costume. He appropriated some imaginary plantation down in Georgia as his background. You always felt, meeting him, "Here is a Southern gentleman of the old school." He made you feel, too, that he was independently wealthy and engaged in gainful pursuits only for the sake of a pastime. That tall, bulky figure. That deep, hearty voice. That ruddy complexion; that well-fed air. Had he been born two generations earlier he would have been good to his slaves, you believed. The twinkle in his eyes said, "I'm generous to a fault," the expansive grin said, "I'm a man's man," the pompous attitude said, "I am GASTON B. MEANS of No'th C'alina, suh!"

Mrs. Maude A. King, of whose murder Means was acquitted.

Gaston B. Means, master salesman, in one of his persuasive poses.

The salesmanager decided that Means would make a good salesman. He was given a salary of $4200 a year and commissions, and sent out to Chicago with the entire Middle West for a territory. His assignment seemed entirely in keeping. Who would think of restricting Gaston B. Means to one city or one State? Besides, the Concord Mills were not as large as they are now, in fact, they were just getting a start nationally.

Means was well known in St. Louis those days. Twice or three times a year he would make the rounds of the wholesale dry goods houses on Washington avenue. Buyers who dealt with him remember his impressive manner. On a sales floor he towered. His booming voice warmed the heart. His enthusiasm bubbled between puffs of cigarette smoke, and he was always smoking.

His Sales Methods

He was liked by the buyers, and as he carried a good line they gave him orders. He had a way with him. For instance, he seemed always willing to shave a price.

"Our list is $1.35 a dozen, suh," he would say, "but when I deal with my friends I go as far as I can. It will be $1.15 to you."

"What an unusual salesman," thought the buyer.

The wholesale men did not know that the real list price was $1.15 and that Means had set it higher so he could reduce it for effect. They did not know when he offered to put what he called a special border on a towel just for friendship's sake that the border was a stock design. They thought Gaston B. Means a remarkable man who not only could sell but design goods.

The salesmanager of the Cannon Mills, however, began to see through Means' little tricks. He learned that his Chicago agent was pushing the established lines of the company, but was not working hard to introduce new lines in white goods where he had to buck competition. Relations between Means and the company became strained and finally, he was discharged.

"I am taking up other work," Means told his merchant friends.

"Too bad," they said to each other. "Means may be a good bit of a bluffer, but he is a cracker-jack salesman."

The other work was a job of salesmanship. Means had decided that his talents were best suited not to selling towels or any other dry goods, but to selling Means. His first customer was Mrs. Maude A. King, widow of a multimillionaire Chicago lumberman and divorced wife of a dentist. They met through his sister who lived in Chicago and became close friends about 1915.

She had been an old man's darling, and James C. King, the old man, had not treated her as she thought she should have been treated. He had left her with a paltry $100,000, the bulk of his estate going to a home for old men in Chicago. By threatening suit to break the will her lawyers had obtained $600,000 cash and life interest in $400,000 more for her from the chief beneficiary as a settlement. This, with what she had received from King before his death gave her about $1,000,000.

He Sells Himself Again

To her came Gaston B. Means, a Southern gentleman. He sympathized. He offered his broad shoulders for the burden of managing her property. "Now, honey," he said in soft North Carolina accents, "don't yo-all go frettin' yoself about this heah business. Yo just leave it to Gaston B. Means. Crooks ah just waitin' for a po' little woman like you, but I'll look aftah them."

In September, 1917, when Mrs. King's bank account had been reduced from $1,000,000 to $90,000, although she did not know it, she accepted Means' invitation to visit his home town, Concord. One evening while on this visit Means organized a target-shooting match. He and Mrs. King accompanied by Mrs. Maizie Melvin, her sister, and Afton Means, his brother and Capt. W. S. Bingham drove out from town in an automobile. When they reached Blackwelder Spring Means and Mrs. King left the others and walked down a hill, ostensibly to set up a target at which Mrs. King was to shoot with an automatic pistol. Means carried the pistol.

There was a shot, presently.

Means called:

"Mrs. King has shot herself!"

The local authorities would not believe it and indicted Means for murder. At the trial in December Gaston B. Means "sold" himself to the jury. Sitting on the witness stand he told this story:

"I placed the pistol in the fork of a tree as I walked down to the spring to get a drink of water. I looked back and saw she had the pistol in her hand. I said 'Maude, that pistol is loaded. Put it up. I would not fool with it.' She put it up. I dished a cup of water and before I put it to my mouth I heard a shot. I looked and saw her falling about two and a half feet from the tree."

The jury believed him, despite testimony of doctors that Mrs. King could not have shot herself behind the ear without leaving powder burns.

Above—Harry M. Daugherty, Harding's Attorney-General, member of Washington coterie with which Means affiliated.

Capt. Boy-ed, master spy, to whom Means sold his secret services.

"A Good Salesman"

Those who knew Gaston B. Means said, "well, anyway, he is a good salesman."

It developed that Mrs. Melvin had been named beneficiary of Mrs. King's estate and also how the estate had dwindled under Means' management. The tragedy and the disclosure did not daunt Means, the master salesman. He immediately tried to sell the idea to the probate court in Chicago that King had left a second will, which Means produced, bequeathing his $5,000,000 fortune to his wife and not to the old men's home. This will, if upheld, would have brought the fortune into Mrs. Melvin's hands as sole heir. But when the court learned that Means had a contract with Mrs. Melvin under which she was to pay him $1,000,000 commission if he "sold" the idea of a second will, the first document was upheld. Judge Baldwin in his decision sternly reprimanded Means for dominating Mrs. King and Mrs. Melvin by "his strong personality and inflexible will."

The King estate market was therefore closed to Gaston B. Means. As a commodity he was left begging there. But it is the essence of a good salesman that, finding a market closed, he should already have developed another market. With this precept in mind Means as early as 1914 had "sold" himself to the Imperial German Government.

One can guess how the master salesmen approached Capt. Boy-ed—or was it Count von Bernstorff himself?

"I am an enemy of England's, suh!" he doubtless said. "Down in No'th Ca'lina we remember Tarleton and his damned redcoats. I did not like the Venezuela affaih; the Britishers behaved like boundahs, suh, like boundahs."

Here was just the sort of a man the Germans were looking for. A bold, able man, whose word was his bond. He hated England, but they could depend on his discretion. He was hired for $1000 a week and for two years was in the Kaiser's pay. He claims now that he uncovered a plot to restore Huerta as dictator in Mexico and bring on a war between the United States and that country. He claims he discovered that American firms were building and launching small sub-chasers for England. He claims that he kept track of blockade runners and made a survey of American industry for his German paymaster, Boy-ed. He left the Kaiser's service in 1915 when it became apparent that Germany was drifting toward war with the United States.

"Did you also act as a spy for England?" he was asked at a hearing of the Brookhart committee later.

"Yes, but not at the same time," he replied. "That wouldn't be cricket."

By 1921 Gaston B. Means had reached the world of big things for which he had longed, and toward which he had made his salesmanlike way. He was ready now to sell himself for real money. He had developed himself. He was shrewd and he was cautious; he knew the technique of devious ways. And he was big—big—big. He had left the realm of towels for the realm of politics.

He "sold" himself to William J. Burns, head of the Bureau of Investigation of the Department of Justice.

The full story of his activities as a Government investigator did not come out until he was called to the witness stand last March to testify before the Brookhart committee.

These were his revelations:

That he had received $100,000 from a Japanese representing Mitsui & Co., airplane builders, to stop Government prosecution of the concern's American branch for fraud.

That he had turned this money over to Jesse W. Smith, personal friend and go-between of Attorney-General Daugherty.

That he received $50,000 from producers of Dempsey-Carpentier fight pictures under agreement that their exhibition would not be interfered with, and that he gave this money to Smith.

Some More Sales

That a secret purse was made up with the knowledge and consent of high Republican officials to carry on a sub rosa investigation of prohibition enforcement with the object of discrediting the Treasury Department's administration of this work. About $100,000 was contributed, the idea being that the prohibition work would be turned over to the Department of Justice if sufficient "dope" against the Treasury Department was obtained.

That the Department of Justice through him and others investigated Senator Caraway of Arkansas, Senator La Follette of Wisconsin and Senator Wheeler of Montana with an idea of ruining their political and personal reputations.

That he had made "undercover" investigations at the personal behest of President Harding.

That he was suspended from the Department of Justice because a "certain cabinet officer" thought he had been too active in investigating maneuvers in the Mexican oil fields.

That two houses, one on "H" street and one on "K" street in Washington, said to be owned by Edward B. McLean, Washington publisher and close friend of the Hardings, were used by Smith and Daugherty as meeting places. He called McLean "Ned" and seemed on familiar terms with most of the Republican officials.

That after Jess Smith's suicide he was the money carrier for the corrupt men in Washington.

He made his confessions with gusto. He liked the limelight. He was even a bit pompous about it. Like a good salesman who knows he has the goods, he drove his points home. "I am showing no quarter and expect none," he said.

The general impression throughout the country was that Gaston B. Means had not been acting honestly as a member of the Department of Justice.

"But he was a good salesman," said those who knew him, thinking over the bribes he had mentioned.

The Washington flare-up passed. After a preliminary "tch-tch" of sadness over the corruption of its officials the American public forgave the Republican party and marching to the polls elected Calvin Coolidge.

Gaston B. Means was still a salesman. He and his secretary, Elmer Jarnecke, accepted $15,097.60 from Frank D. Saupp and John W. Hubbard, Pittsburg millionaires, for permits to move whisky owned by Saupp from a warehouse at Brownsville, Pa.

The plot was discovered and Gaston Means stood trial. For some reason his usual good luck with juries failed. Every salesman has an off day now and then. The jury sentenced him to two years at Atlanta.

"But he is a good salesman," insist the home folks of Concord. "That guy could sell rubbers to an Arab, and he'll talk that appellate court into granting his appeal."

Maybe he will. Anyway, they are right. Gaston B. Means is a good salesman.

AUTOS MUST STOP AT PEDESTRIAN'S SIGNAL

New Los Angeles Ordinance Gives Those Afoot Right of Way at Crossings.

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, March 7.—The new traffic ordinance recently made effective here gives pedestrians the right of way over motorists outside of the central traffic zone. One afoot desiring to cross a street at any intersection not under police control is supposed to signal his desire by holding up his hand to approaching motorists, whom the law obliges to stop until the crosswalk is clear.

The pedestrians, however, are held rigorously to rules, in that they are prohibited from crossing streets anywhere except at corners. "Jaywalkers" are liable to arrest. In the downtown congested districts the foot traffic is required to follow the police signal and move with vehicles.

Violators of the ordinance, including "jaywalkers," are subject to a fine of $50 and a jail sentence for the first offense; a $100 fine and 10 days' confinement for a second violation, and for the third transgression a fine of $500 and a six months' jail sentence.

A dozen pedestrians were arrested the first few weeks of the new law. Police officials look for more complete co-operation when it is realized that the regulation saves time and protects life.

The original draft of the ordinance proposed that horse-drawn vehicles be banished from the congested districts, but that section was revised to exclude horses from the downtown streets between the hours of 4:30 and 6 p. m.

The ordinance in general has embraced the recommendations of the recent national conference on street and highway safety held in Washington at the request of Secretary Hoover.

Women Elected Church Officials.

BERLIN, March 7.—Recent elections in the Evangelical church throughout Prussia, the largest Protestant area in Germany, resulted in the choice of 33 1-3 per cent of women as church officials in many parishes, and workmen assumed a much more important part in church affairs than in the days of the monarchy. About 75 per cent of the church membership voted in most parishes, which is regarded as a manifestation of unusual interest in church affairs.

Japanese Maneuvers to Be Brief.

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

TOKIO, Feb. 6.—Tentative plans for the maneuvers of the Japanese navy next autumn contemplate operations decidedly limited in extent and scale as compared with those recently concluded. It is understood the problem will be strategical rather than tactical. As roughly agreed upon, the plan is to defend the Kure naval port from an attack by an "enemy" fleet..

Mr. and Mrs. George D. Markham of 4961 Pershing avenue will depart tomorrow for Hot Springs, Va., to join the pre-Easter colony there. Mrs. J. Sidney Walker of the Oxford apartments, will go to the same resort about March 15. Later she will go to New York.

MRS. WILLIAM BAGNELL, who has lent her home, 12 Westmoreland place, for a series of Lenten lectures under the auspices of the Churchwoman's Club, March 9, 16 and 23 —Ashen-Brenner

Mrs. Henry Clarkson Scott of 31 Westmoreland place, with her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Scott, left for New York Thursday and the Hugh Scotts sailed yesterday with their children to remain in Europe six months. Mrs. Scott will go to Hot Springs, Va., for March, returning the last of the month.

A group of prominent St. Louisans in Winter Park, Fla., are planning their return trips. Mrs. Peyton T. Carr of 62 Vandeventer place and her daughter, Miss Jessie, have already returned and Mrs. Joseph Dickson Sr. and her daughter, Mrs. Stanley Stoner, are expected this week. Mrs. Carr's sister, Mrs. George F. Tower Jr., of 27 Vandeventer place, will remain until the last of April.

Mrs. Arthur B. Shepley of 50 Westmoreland place and her daughters, Misses Emily and Mary Shepley, have gone to Biloxi, Miss., for three weeks. Miss Emily Shepley will go to New York early in April to visit her fiance, Lawrence Edward Keyes III and his family, who will give a ball for her the night of April 17. Mrs. Shepley will join her daughter there.

MRS. EDWARD H TAUSSIG of Houston, Tex., who is visiting her father-in-law, Mr James E. Taussig. —Kandeler

Society in Washington Pauses After Whirlwind Of Inaugural Activities

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, March 7.

WASHINGTON society, official, diplomatic and resident is drawing a long breath after a whirlwind of functions, balls, receptions and teas in connection with the inaugural of President Coolidge. The inauguration was a simple affair, insofar as the Coolidges were concerned, perhaps, but the lack of ostentatious ceremony about the inaugural itself placed more importance upon the social events incident thereto.

President and Mrs. Coolidge contented themselves with a small house party consisting of Col. John Coolidge, father of the President, John Coolidge, his son, Mrs. A. I. Goodhue, mother of Mrs. Coolidge, President R. B. Olds of Amherst College; Mrs. Laura Skinner of New York; Mrs. R. R. Hills of Northampton, Mass., and Mr. and Mrs. Frank W. Stearns of Boston. In the afternoon, after the parade, President and Mrs. Coolidge were at home informally to the visiting Governors and their wives and were assisted in receiving them by Vice President and Mrs. Dawes. John Coolidge has returned to Amherst and Mrs. Goodhue, Mrs. Coolige's mother will remain for several weeks.

Now the inauguration is over and Lent is

Treasure Hunt Society's Latest Fad at Palm Beach

Women's Annual Tennis Tournament Also Holds Interest of Visitors — Activities of St. Louisans at the Resort.

PALM BEACH, Fla., March 7.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

THE women's annual tennis tournament on the Royal Poinciana courts started Monday. The men's annual tournament next week will bring prominent stars here, including William T. Tilden II, Vincent Richards and the highest ranking Japanese player now in this country. Many social events are planned during tennis week, and the annual tennis ball, a fancy dress affair, will be given at the Club de Montmartre.

Many Lenten visitors will arrive in Palm Beach where the fad of the moment is the treasure hunt. Following a hunt given at Via Mizner by Mrs. John Magee of Mt. Kisco, N. Y., and Mrs. J. J. O'Brien of New York, another was held at the same place, starting with a country supper, and ending wih a dance and breakfast at the Palm Beach Country Club. Mrs. Frederick T. Frelinghuysen of New York, Miss Sheila Byrne, Rodman Wanamaker and Herbert Pulitzer staged the affair and invited the Joshua S. Cosdens of Port Washington L. I., and their house guests.

Mr. Pulitzer entertained members of the same group at the home of Harold S. Vanderbilt, the Villa Solana, on the South Ocean boulevard, which he kindly offered for the occasion. One of the leading social events of the week was Summer Ballard's dinner in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Edward T. Stotesbury, at Invierno on the Jungle Road, which he has occupied for the season. Madame Frances Alda came from New York to sing and Palm Beach's smartest society was asked to the affair.

Baron Ernst Luettwitz of Germany, who is spending the season in Palm Beach at the Breakers Hotel, is planning to visit St. Louis the early part of April where he will be the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Adalbert von Gontard of the Forest Park Hotel. The Baron also will visit Mrs. August A. Busch, who during her stay in Palm Beach entertained frequently, the Baron being noted in many of her parties.

Dr. and Mrs. H. L. Nietert of St. Louis, who are spending the season in Palm Beach at the Royal Poinciana Hotel, entertained with a delightful dinner party in the Grill Room of the Poinciana Hotel Tuesday evening.

Mrs. George W. Simmons and her daughter, Miss Virginia Wright Simmons, of New York, formerly of St. Louis, were among those to arrive in Palm Beach last week. They are guests of the Breakers Hotel. Mrs. Simmons and her daughter will remain here for several weeks' stay.

Dr. and Mrs. W. A. Shoemaker of the Chase Hotel are at the Royal Poinciana Hotel where they will remain for several weeks before going to Miami Beach to be guests at the Flamingo Hotel for a short stay. They will go from there to Ormond Beach, then to Asheville, N. C., where they will visit friends.

Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Luecking of St. Louis were among those to arrive in Palm Beach the earlier part of the week for a short stay. Mr. and Mrs. Luecking came to Palm Beach from Orlando, Fla., where they spent the early part of the season. They will remain in Palm Beach for a short stay before going to St. Petersburg, Fla.

Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Strauch of Hawthorne boulevard, with their daughter, Alice, are expected to arrive in Palm Beach this week from Havana, where they have been spending several weeks.

Dr. and Mrs. George S. Drake, 3800 Lindell boulevard, with Miss Graham of Westminster place and Dr. V. V. Wood are recent arrivals. After remaining for several days, Dr. and Mrs. Drake with Miss Graham departed for Miami, where they will also remain for a short stay.

Mr. and Mrs. Mark C. Steinberg, 7108 Delmar boulevard, who spent the earlier part of the season in Palm Beach, have returned from Miami where they spent several weeks taking in the racing season and are guests of the new Royal Danell Hotel, where they will remain a week before returning to St Louis.

Miss Mary Denman Clark, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles McClure Clark of Hortense place, who is spending the late season in Palm Beach as the house guest of Miss Marceline Reyburn is being entertained extensively by her many friends in Palm Beach. Miss Catherine Nelson of Chicago entertained her with a luncheon on Monday at Whitehall, formerly the home of the late Henry M. Flagler. Miss Clark, with Miss Reyburn, entered the women's golf tournament which is being played this week over the exclusive Everglades Club links.

Miss Rose Muckerman, daughter of Mr. and

SOCIETY IN WASHINGTON PAUSES AFTER INAUGURAL ACTIVITIES

here. Mrs. Coolidge has planned some quiet days at the White House without even informal entertaining.

Social interest is keen over Mrs. Dawes, Mrs. Kellogg and the other new members of official society. Mrs. Dawes probably will be given many entertainments after the Vice President's family is permanently established in Washington, which will not be until next fall, unless the Senate remains in session indefinitely, in which case they will establish a Washington home at once.

At the inaugural charity ball, although her husband was escorted to the platform with a blare of trumpets and a panoply of flags, Mrs. Dawes insisted on entering the box quietly, and awaited her husband there. Few knew she was there until the Vice President drew her forward to bow to the throng.

Mrs. Dawes received 50 newspaper writers quite informally in her suite at the New Willard the day before inauguration. She wore a charming gown of silver gray crepe, trimmed with long fringe. She displayed her "inaugural ball gown with great delight," and held it up to her so the women writers could see the effect. It was of white georgette crepe trimmed with crystals. The new shade of peacock blue, "Dawes" blue, as it has already been called, she wore at the inauguration ceremonies was very becoming.

Among the Democratic visitors viewing the inauguration from the special stand at the Capitol were former Assistant Secretary of State and Mrs. Breckinridge Long, who are spending the winter here. Mrs. Woodrow Wilson was offered a special place there, but declined. The charity inaugural ball with 4000 guests was most brilliant. All society was there, the Vice President and Mrs. Dawes and the visiting Governors.

Society welcomed back the Perry Belmonts of New York at the ball after absence from the city for a number of years. The Belmonts really came back to open their magnificent home which has been used for the residence of visiting dignitaries from other nations, several months ago, but they are just emerging from a period of mourning and the inaugural ball was really their first appearance. In their box were Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt and her daughter, Miss Grace Vanderbilt, and the Speaker of the House of Representatives Nicholas Longworth who strolled about the corridors with the Vanderbilts or Mrs. Truxton Beal, who also was in the box.

The air attache of the Italian Embassy and Mme. Calderera entertained at dinner Thursday night in honor of the Chief of the Bureau of Naval Aeronautics and Mrs. William A. Moffett.

Mrs. Grace Semple Burlinghame, Republican Committeewoman from Missouri, was one of the national committeewomen receiving with the vice chairman of the Republican National Committee at the reception given at her apartment inauguration day, after the parade.

A touching ceremony took place in the corridor of the Capitol leading from the House of Representatives to Statuary Hall, when two flag-draped busts were unveiled, one of Champ Clark of Missouri, the other of former Majority Leader James R. Mann of Illinois. Mrs. Mann, the widow, was present, but none of the immediate Clark family was able to attend. The bust was unveiled by Miss Sarah Major, the debutante daughter of Representative Samuel H. Major of Missouri, who was a member of the Missouri State Legislature with Champ Clark. Mrs. James Carson Breckinridge, sister-in-law of Genevieve Champ Clark Thomson, represented her at the unveiling.

The Missouri colony here is anticipating the visit of the Glee Club of Missouri University. Representative Cleveland A. Newton, president of the Missouri Society, and John Spencer Hornback, president of the Washington Chapter of Missouri University Alumni, will act as hosts. Among the events scheduled for the club are an automobile tour of the city and a reception by President and Mrs. Coolidge at the White House. In the evening the club will give a musical at the Wilson normal school and a number of dinners and teas will be given for the individual members of the club.

Mrs. John C. Muckerman of West Pine boulevard, who is spending the late season in Palm Beach as the guest of Mrs. Connery Rose of Chicago, at the Royal Poinciana Hotel, has been taking active part in the social events given by the younger set of Palm Beach. Miss Muckerman, with a party of friends which included Mrs. Connery Rose, John Connery, John Connery Jr. and Joseph E. Bidwill Jr. of Chicago, left for Cuba Friday, where they will remain for several days before returning to Palm Beach.

Mrs. R. L. Kahle of Rott road, who is spending the season in Palm Beach at the Royal Poinciana Hotel, entertained with a delightful tea party in the famous Cocoanut Grove, Friday.

Tuesday Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wiegand were hosts to a large luncheon at the Beach Club, having 14 guests. Thursday they entertained with a dinner party at the Beach Club. Mrs. Wiegand was hostess to a delightful tea in the Orange Gardens of the Everglades Club Saturday afternoon.

Miss Elinor Maxwell departed for St. Louis Monday evening, while Mrs. Helen Bolland McLaughlin remained until Saturday before leaving.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis A. Valier, 3650 Castleman avenue, who have been in Palm Beach since the middle of December at their attractive winter home on Sea Spray avenue, returned to St. Louis Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. B. G. Brinkman, who are spending the season in Palm Beach at the Royal Poinciana Hotel, gave a dinner party at the Beach Club Wednesday night.

Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Siegel of 5565 Lindell drive, who are spending the season here at the Royal Poinciana Hotel, were hosts to a delightful luncheon Wednesday at the Beach Club. Their guests included Mr. and Mrs. Eberhard Anheuser of St. Louis, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Young of New York, Mrs. C. Werner of New York, Earl Sinclair of New York, Mr. and Mrs. Ben G. Brinkman of St. Louis, Mr. and Mrs. Fenrich of Evansville, Ind., and Col. and Mrs. George Kavanaugh of New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Allen T. West of 48 Westmoreland place returned Tuesday from a winter in Chandler, Ariz.

Mr. and Mrs. Wallace D. Simmons of 46 Westmoreland place will depart March 28 for Hot Springs, Va., for the Easter season. They will be accompanied by their daughter, Miss Eleanor, and Miss Lucy Terry, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert T. Terry of Westminster place.

Mrs. R. O. Kennard of 11 Thornby place and Mrs. Kennard's mother, Mrs. Jurden, have gone to Cuba for a month.

Mrs. Luther Ely Smith of 5321 Waterman avenue is convalescing at St. Luke's Hospital after an operation for appendicitis.

Mrs. Donaldson Lambert of 26 Washington terrace and her small son have returned from a visit with Mrs. Lambert's father, Elliot K. Ludington, in New York.

Miss Kitty Swick of San Francisco, Cal., will be the guest this week of Mr. and Mrs. J. O. King of 51 Vandeventer place.

Judge and Mrs. John A. Blevins, who have spent the past several months in California, have returned to St. Louis and are at the Fairmont Hotel.

Miss Irene Flournoy of Webster Groves will return home today, after a visit with Mr. and Mrs. Everett Ellis, in Norfolk, Va. She stopped in Washington, D. C., for the inauguration of President Coolidge.

Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Klinge and their daughter, Mrs. Roland H Smith of 5823 Pershing avenue, have returned from a trip to Cuba and Honduras.

Dr. and Mrs. M. J. Hopkins and daughter, Mrs. T. C. Byrne of 3756 Lindell boulevard, are motoring to Florida. They will return in May.

Mme. Margaret Chitesch of 4200 West Pine boulevard has gone to New York for a fortnight.

Mrs. M. L. Wood of 4529 Lewis place returned home Thursday from a two weeks' visit to friends in New Orleans, where she attended the Mardi Gras festivities.

Mrs. John H. Watson of Webster Park and her son, John, have gone to San Antonio, Tex., for the late winter.

MADAME will understand the popularity of the ensemble vogue in the beauty of these Suits. Carefully tailored twills fashion coats of severe simplicity. Frocks of crepe de chine designed on lines of similar restraint achieve smartness in the flare at hem—often developed in a pleated ruffle, or in bias bands of the heavier coat material. Buttons jauntily placed, embroidery on front of frock—these are the only trimming.

The practicability of these Suits is fully appreciated when one considers that they combine three apparel needs—a coat, a frock, a suit. How modest their price for costume so adaptable!

Emphasizing This Institution's Significant Position in the Fashion World with A WEEK of DRESS EVENTS

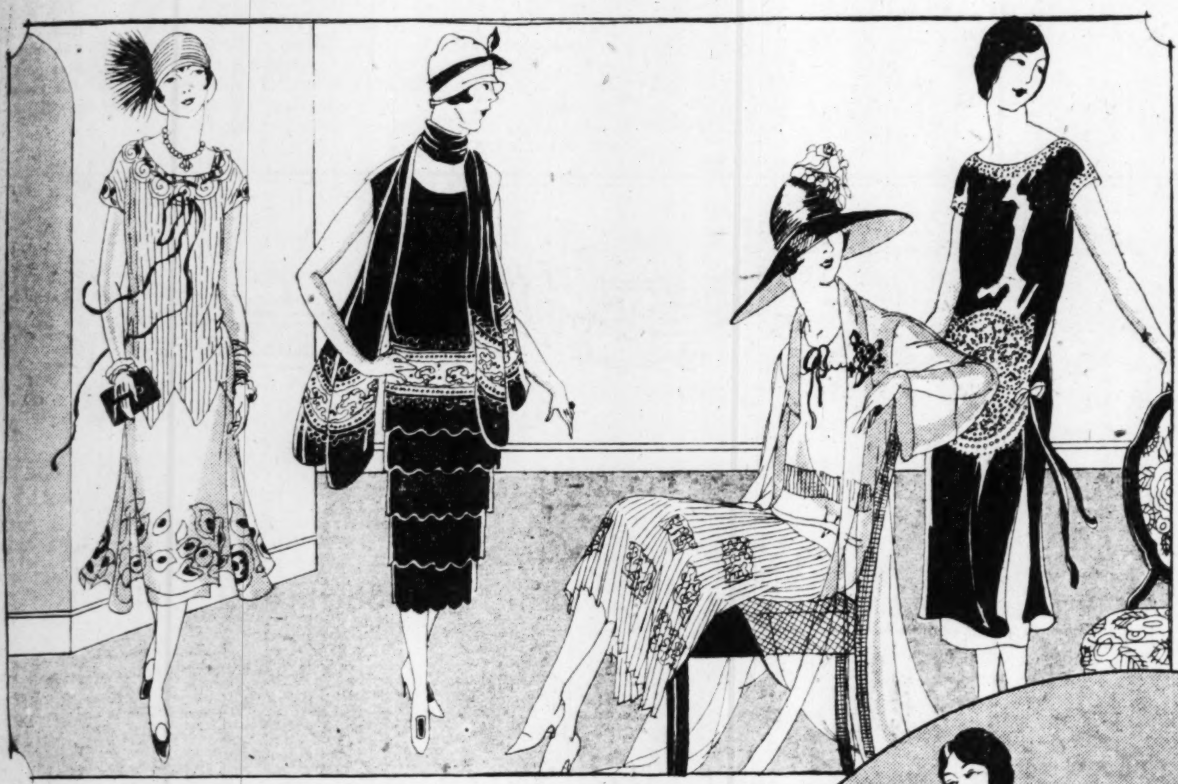
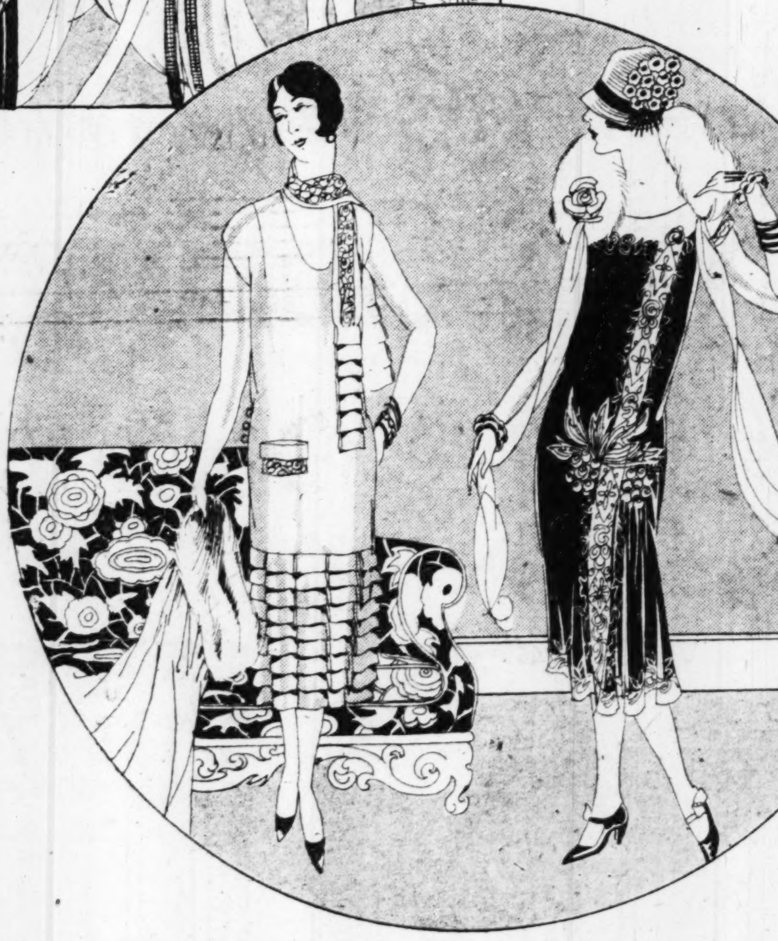
As Told by Shirley Deane

SPRING! A momentous season! Color, gaiety, lightness of heart, fascinating feminine fashions! Most momentous to St. Louis women is the Spring of 1925—the first Spring since the opening of Sonnenfeld's enlarged store.

What does this enlarged Store signify? It signifies a forging ahead in the Fashion race; in the merchandising race; it signifies a capacity to fulfill feminine needs and to serve in greater measure. And in celebration of this new leadership Sonnenfeld's welcomes Spring with a pageantry of Fashions, showing thousands of new Spring Dresses, many specially purchased for this great Week of Dress Events.





An Entire Floor of Dress Fashions

Sonnenfeld's divides its Fourth Floor into The Costume Salon—where exclusive modes are displayed—and the Inexpensive Dress Shop—which specializes in smartness and quality at moderate prices.

This week's Dress Events will emphasize the moderate pricings made possible by the enormity of our collections, at the same time stressing style, and revealing our adherence to the dictates of Paris.

Costume Salon Dresses, $45 to $195

Inexpensive Dresses, $16.75 to $39.75

(Fourth Floor.)

Irene Castle Dresses for Spring

New Springtime modes, fashioned of the exquisite Corticelli silk fabrics, are presented in Irene Castle Fashions, shown exclusively by Sonnenfeld's in St. Louis. These new frocks have the distinction and grace of "America's Best-Dressed Woman," and a charm and smartness bespeaking their origin.

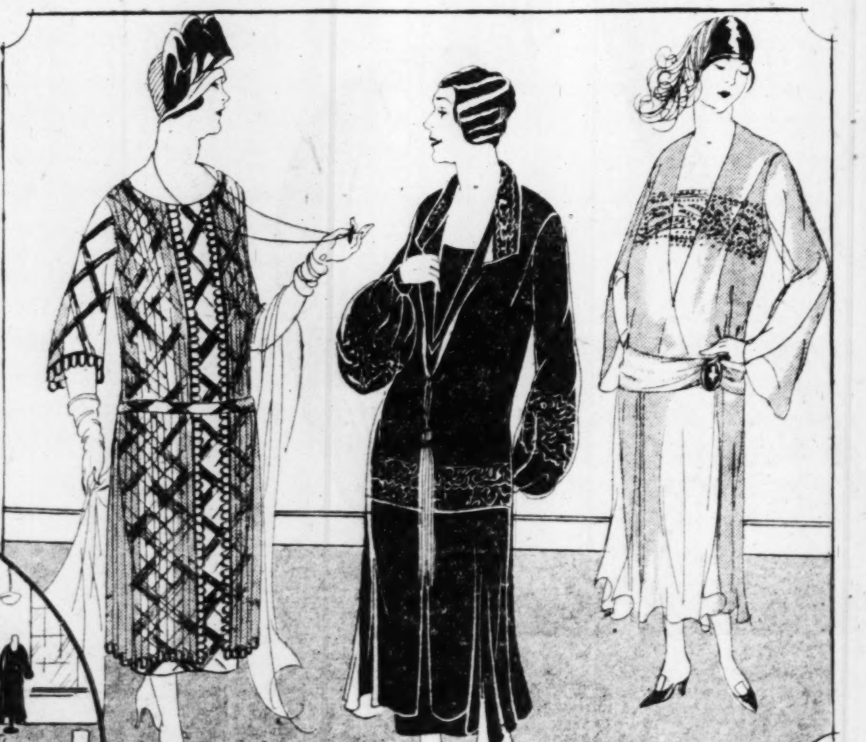
Prices $49.50 to $79.50

(Costume Salon—Fourth Floor.)

The Extra-Size Dress Shop

—where madame can choose from ultra-fashionable modes that embody the latest style features. The collection is sufficiently large and varied to assure satisfaction to all.

(Fourth Floor.)



Three Extra-Size Dresses Are Sketched

Right: Graceful lines are achieved through softly draped Georgette of midnight blue. Silk and bead embroidered, $59.50.
Center: Long-waisted slenderizing Frock of black flat crepe, with the popular skirt flare introduced by circular front apron. $35.
Left: Black and white printed crepe veiled with pleated panels of black Georgette, which lend a supple line. $25.

Pertinent Facts Regarding Our Dress Shops

With a frontage of over 100 feet, and extending from Washington to St. Charles—Sonnenfeld's Fourth Floor, devoted entirely to Dresses, provides a spaciousness unrivaled.

With a Dress stock of nearly 5000 Dresses, which is daily being replenished by arrivals from New York, the selection is unlimited.

Beautifully equipped French rooms in the Costume Salon, and 25 fitting rooms in the Inexpensive Dress Shop, permit an unexcelled service.

A resident buying staff in New York insures our instant reception of the newest modes adopted by Paris or Fifth Avenue.

Dandruffy Heads Become Hairless

If you want plenty of thick, beautiful, glossy, silky hair, do by all means get rid of dandruff, for it will starve your hair and ruin it if you don't.

It doesn't do much good to try to brush or wash it out. The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and two or three more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop, and your hair will look and feel a hundred times better. You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. Four ounces is all you will need, no matter how much dandruff you have. This simple remedy never fails.

How to Remove an Unsightly Complexion

Cosmetics can never really help a poor complexion; often they are positively harmful. The sensible thing is to actually remove the thin veil of stifling, half-dead scarf skin and give the fresh, vigorous, beautiful young skin underneath a chance to show itself and to breathe.

This is best done by merely applying mercolized wax at night, like cold cream, washing it off in the morning. The wax can be obtained from any druggist in original one-ounce package. It absorbs the disfiguring cuticle gradually, harmlessly, leaving a pure, young, natural complexion. Of course this also takes with it all such blemishes as oiliness, red blotches, moth patches, liver spots, pimples, freckles, etc. As a complexion beautifier this old-fashioned remedy is unequaled.

SECRET WAY TO SLENDERNESS REVEALED

SAN-GRI-NA, a new French discovery for the reduction of excess fat, is now creating a sensation in New York and Paris—it seems that at last something real has been found to relieve fat people. It is a combination of anti-fat ingredients which help nature in dissolving more rapidly waste tissues, the accumulation of which accounts for excess fat, according to the theory of a famous French scientist. SAN-GRI-NA has not been advertised nor offered to the general public, but has been used in private practice in Europe, where large amounts have been paid for it. Since it has been introduced in America, the demand has been so tremendous that every good drug store is supplied with it at a price within the reach of all. It is the easiest, safest and quickest way to reduce. SAN-GRI-NA is put up in small tasteless tablets, and all you need to do is to take two before meals. GUARANTEED ABSOLUTELY HARMLESS. Not only will it remove excess fat, but it acts as a general tonic on the entire system and relieves that dull, tired feeling so well known to fat people. It has been found a great help in cases of high blood pressure and general disorders due to obesity. On sale at any of Speckart Bros.', Draper's Enderle's, Otto's, Judge & Dolph's Drug Stores, Wolff-Wilson's, Kranson Bros.' Drug Store or any Department stores.

BUILDING A TOOTH

Good teeth are built out of vital foods. Building a tooth is not the simple process it seems. Nature regards it so important that she takes a long time to perfect one.

Scott's Emulsion supplies elements needful to aid normal growth and construct sound bones and strong teeth.

A food-tonic of rare value, Scott's Emulsion gives the best results when taken regularly after meals. Try it.

Simple Remedy For Bad Stomach Gives Quick Relief

No Need of Strong Medicines or Diet—Famous but Simple Old English Recipe Keeps Stomach in Fine Condition, Banishes After-Eating Distress.

If you are a victim of Stomach Troubles—Gas, Sourness, Pain or Bloating—you may have quick and certain relief by following this simple advice.

Don't take strong medicines, artificial digestants or pull down your system by following unnecessary starvation diets.

Never hurry your meal or overeat of anything, but within reason most folks may eat what they like—if they will keep their stomach sweet, clean and active and free from the souring acids that hinder or paralyze the work of digestion.

And the best and easiest way to do this is to follow every meal with a small amount of pure Bisurated Magnesia—a pleasant, harmless and inexpensive form of Magnesia, that promptly neutralizes acidity and keeps your stomach sweet and clean.

A week's trial of Bisurated Magnesia, which may be obtained from any druggist for only a few cents, will easily convince you of the great value of this old English recipe.

Be sure and get BISURATED Magnesia—not a laxative.

WEEK'S ENGAGEMENT ANNOUNCEMENTS

Miss Inez Marguerite Hellman, daughter of Mrs. Beulah B. Hellman of 4930 Washington boulevard, and the late Martiz Hellman, will become the bride March 12 of Frederick W. Feibelman of Terre Haute, Ind. A prewedding dinner will be given at the home of the bride March 11, and a breakfast will follow the ceremony which will be performed at 10:30 o'clock in the morning by Rabbi Leon Harrison. The couple will take a noon train for their wedding trip East, and on their return will reside in Terre Haute.

Announcement was made yesterday of the engagement of Miss Hildegarde Raab, niece of Miss Rose Helmerichs of 2934 Milton avenue, and Albert H. Cox, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Cox of 4014 Sullivan avenue. The news was told at a bridge luncheon at the home of Miss Helmerichs. Miss Raab attended Washington University, and was pledged to Pi Beta Phi. Mr. Cox is an alumnus of the University of Illinois and is a member of Kappa Sigma. The wedding will take place in June.

The marriage of Miss Mary Gutenberg, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Gutenberg of 1902 Carr street, and Maurice B. Young, son of Mrs. Diana Young, will take place Tuesday at 7 o'clock in the B'nai Amoona Temple, Rabbi Halpern officiating. Mr. Young will take his bride to Huntingburg, Ind., to make their home.

The Holy Rosary Church was the scene of the wedding Monday morning, Feb. 23, of Miss Irene Andrew, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Andrew, and Robert A. Walsh, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Walsh of Tennessee avenue, the Rev. Father Daniel Lavery officiating. Immediately after the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served to 50 guests at the Gatesworth Hotel. The couple departed for a honeymoon in the East.

Mr. and Mrs. M. Forbstein of 4223 Grace avenue announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Janet Forbstein, and David Lieberman, son of Mrs. Ida Lieberman of St. Louis. No date has been set for the wedding.

HOME PARTIES AND OTHER FUNCTIONS

Herget, C. Mohrman, W. M. Klenk, N. B. Dozier, W. Jaeger and H. C. Kirkpatrick.

A surprise masquerade party was given at the Home Comers' Club in honor of Otto Schmutz, 7416 Gravois avenue, Feb. 28. A musical program was given by Mrs. A. Traube's orchestra, with solos by E. MILLIONS OF PEOPLE
HELPS MAKE RICH, RED BLOOD
Use organic Nuxated Iron to build up red blood, strength and endurance.

There are thousands who are ageing and breaking down at a time of life when they should be enjoying that perfect health which carries defiance to disease simply because they are not awake to the condition of their blood. Without organic iron your blood carries no oxygen, and without oxygen there is nothing to unite with the carbon in your food so what you eat does you no good. It is like putting coal into a stove without fire. You can now obtain organic iron like the iron in your blood and like the iron in spinach, lentils, and apples from any druggist under the name of Nuxated Iron. Nuxated Iron also contains the principal chemical constituent of active, living nerve force: it is, therefore, a true blood and nerve food. It helps create and rebuild new and stronger red blood cells. It feeds the body the substances which nerve force must have to give it that vital, electro-magnetic power which is stored in the nerve and brain cells of man. Nuxated Iron often increases the strength and endurance of week, nervous, rundown men and women in two weeks time. The manufacturers guarantee successful results to every purchaser or they will refund your money.

NUXATED IRON ENRICHES THE BLOOD-GIVES YOU NEW STRENGTH AND ENERGY

WOMAN FATALLY BURNED FIGHTING KITCHEN BLAZE

Mrs. Julia Symon, 46, Dies as Result of Attempt to Extinguish Early Morning Fire.

Mrs. Julia Symon, 46 years old, of 820 South Broadway, died in the city hospital at noon yesterday of burns suffered seven hours earlier, in her attempt to extinguish a fire in the kitchen of her home, which is a rooming house.

She and her husband, George Symon, 39, were awakened by smoke, and found the kitchen in flames. Mrs. Symon seized a water pitcher and started for a hydrant, but stumbled on the kitchen threshold, and her nightgown caught fire. Symon's hands and feet were burned in his attempt to rescue her, and he was sent to the hospital. He is local representative of the Colonial Steamship Agency.

Symon said he believed the fire was caused by rats gnawing matches. Firemen extinguished it with slight loss.

Massenchor Concert Wednesday, Not Tuesday.

It is erroneously stated in the Drama Section of the Post-Dispatch today that the concert of the St. Louis Massenchor will take place Tuesday night at the Coliseum. The correct date is Wednesday night.

AUTO DRIVER EXONERATED

Death of Dr. Paul C. Scholz Termed Accident.

A Coroner's verdict of accidental death was returned yesterday in the case of Dr. Paul C. Scholz, 64 years old, of 846 North Kingshighway, who was struck and killed by an automobile at Kingshighway and Hodiamont right-of-way Friday night. Almont R. McLaran, druggist, 3610A North Taylor avenue, who drove the automobile, was exonerated.

Dr. Scholz had been a practicing physician and surgeon for 30 years. His funeral will be held at 2:30 p. m. today from a chapel at 5240 Delmar boulevard, to Bellefontaine Cemetery. He is survived by his widow, Helen, and children, Mrs. Milton Lauenstein, G. Groh and Phil Scholz.

AUTO SHOW CLOSES; BEST EVER HELD HERE

Total Attendance for the Week Was More Than 100,000.

With the largest last day attendance on record, the eighteenth annual show of the St. Louis Automobile Dealers' Association closed officially at 11 o'clock last night with a total attendance for the week of more than 100,000.

From every viewpoint—buyer, casual visitor, city and country dealers and the factories—this was the best, the most comprehensive and most successful automobile show ever held in St. Louis. The attendance of persons obviously able to buy cars was far larger proportionately than in past years. Every dealer who exhibited obtained a list of prospects for future sales that exceeded his hopes. He had the further encouragement in seeing visitors pay closer attention to body lines and mechanical features of cars than ever before.

"It has been by far the greatest automobile show held here since I came to St. Louis," said Frank C. McDonald, president of the dealers' association. "The attendance was fully 20 per cent larger than at previous shows, and there were more dealers attending. As regards number of models shown, and comprehensiveness of exhibits, the show held its own with the New York and Chicago shows. The two large floors gave us an opportunity to display cars that was fully taken advantage of. It was a splendid success."

Robert E. Lee, show manager and secretary of the dealers' association, also laid stress on the comprehensiveness of the show, which included busses, tractors, airplanes, motor boats and accessories as well as about 500 passenger cars.

"This show," said Lee, "proves what every other show held this year has indicated, and that is that this is a buying year. Many persons have been waiting for business to become thoroughly settled. Others have just now found the old cars beginning to wear out. They streamed into the show to look at cars in sober earnest, and so dealers have hundreds—yes, thousands—of names on their lists of prospects that they never heard of.

"All makes and classes of cars have sold at this show. The costlier ones have sold well. There has been heavy demand for the cheaper ones, and the medium-priced models have gone equally well."

Many dealers are backing the prophecy of John N. Willys, head of Willys-Overland, Inc., that there will be a shortage of cars this spring. But they all are hoping that the factories adhere to the expressed determination to build cars only to satisfy the actual proved demand. The dealers are relieved, because no longer are they pressed against the wall by a never-ceasing stream of cars from factories that have overbuilt. Nor are they unhappy over the opportunity to handle trade-ins on a sellers' market for a change.

The success of this annual show is regarded by officers of the dealers' association as lending weight to the argument that it may be wiser hereafter to concentrate efforts on holding only one automobile exposition a year and that in the spring.

EDUCATOR, BEATEN BY MEN GIVEN "LIFT" IN AUTO, DIES

Georgia School Official Found Unconscious in Ditch; Three Men Held in Atlanta.

By the Associated Press.

EATONTON, Ga., March 7.—W. C. Wright, Putnam County School Superintendent, died at 9.30 o'clock this morning from injuries suffered Wednesday when he was assaulted by two young men to whom he had given a "lift" in his automobile near Eatonton.

While never fully regaining consciousness, Wright in semi-lucid moments describes the men who Eatonton officers will go to Atlanta to continue the investigation attacked him.
in connection with three men held in jail after being arrested following the discovery of Wright's automovile near Athens. S. J. Scarborough of Tampa, Fla.; F. W. McClellan of Brockton, N. Y., and Ted Coggeshall of Clayton, Adams County, Ill., are the names given by the youths in jail in Atlanta.

Wright was found unconscious in a ditch Wednesday. He had been beaten about the head, apparently with an iron implement, his pockets had been rifled and his automobile stolen.

Wright was 59 years old and had been connected with Georgia's educational system since his youth. He had been County Superintendent 25 years.

18 KINDS OF DUCKS IN ILLINOIS

Mallards Most Numerous, With Pintails Next.

By the Associated Press.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., March 7.—Eighteen varieties of wild ducks and geese are still fairly common on the Illinois River marshes, according to a study made by the biological survey of the United State Department of Agriculture.

The article, prepared by Frederick C. Lincoln, describes observations made at the mouth of the Sangamon River. These marshes are among the most important, as far as ducks are concerned, in the United States, Lincoln says. The varieties noted follow: Merganser, a few specimens seen; hooded merganser, several flocks; mallard, outnumbered all other varieties 100 to 1; black duck, very common; baldpate, few specimens; green-winged teal, very numerous in the fall; blue-winged teal, a great many, but only as birds of pasage; shoveler of spoonbill, noted in small numbers during the fall; pintail, ranked next to mallard in numbers; wood duck, very numerous, with the hooded merganser the most gaudy of all species; redhead, not seen on survey, but frequently reported; canvasback once very numerous, now rarely seen; lesser scaup, common; ring-nicked duck, plentiful in spring; golden-eye, in small numbers; buffle-head, one flock of 10 all that were seen; Canada goose, in fairly large numbers; snow goose, very rare but seen now and then in the fall.

South Dakota Cuts Gas 1 Cent.

By the Associated Press.

MITCHELL, S. D., March 7.—The State filling station here announced a cut of 1 cent in its retail price of gasoline today, making the price 21 cents a gallon, or 3 cents under that of the Standard Oil Co. and independents. The cut followed a reduction in the wholesale market.

DE MOLAY COUNCIL TO MEET

3-Day Conference to Start March 16 at Scottish Rite Cathedral.

The Grand Council, Order of De Molay, will hold a three-day conference in St. Louis beginning March 16 in the Scottish Rite Cathedral, Lindell boulevard, near Grand. The 60 members of the council will gather from every State in the Union.

Next Sunday afternoon a joint service of the three local chapters of De Molay will be held at Scottish Rite Cathedral, which the delegates will attend. Dr. J. J. Kessler, Master Councillor of De Molay in St. Louis, will welcome the visitors at the first meeting Monday.

MANY CANDIDATES FOR TWO NEW JUDGESHIPS

E. Mont Reily in Washington to Urge Appointment of Spencer..

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
20 Wyatt Building.

WASHINGTON, March 7.—Passage by Congress of the Dyer bill, creating two additional Federal circuit judgeships in the Eighth Judicial Circuit, of which Missouri is a part, started a contest that will have a large field of candidates.

One of the first to come to Washington in an effort to influence the President's choice was E. Mont Reily of Kansas City, former Governor of Porto Rico, who for the past several days has been urging the appointment of Senator Selden P. Spencer to the Federal bench. Reily is working on the assumption that District Judge C. B. Faris of St. Louis, a Democrat, who has the support of Representative L. C. Dyer, will be promoted to the circuit bench. To the vacancy thus created Reily would have the President appoint Senator Spencer.

Spencer Not Committed.

Asked today if he would take the district judgeship if offered, Spencer replied that "the whole thing is too remote for discussion." He said he had conferred with Reily.

Under the law which forbids a member of Congress to take a position he helped to create Spencer is not eligible to one of the new circuit judgeships.

Spencer's term as Senator will expire in March, 1927, and he is now preparing for the 1926 senatorial campaign.

According to Spencer, Judge Faris' chances of promotion are lessened by the fact that Missouri already has one Judge on the circuit bench—Kimbrough Stone of Kansas City.

Many Candidates.

There are 13 states in the Eighth Circuit and virtually every District Judge is a receptive candidate for promotion. Spencer pointed out that the states not now represented on the circuit bench would make every effort to get their candidates promoted.

President Coolidge has three possibilities in point of time for the appointments. He can choose the Judges immediately and send their names for confirmation to the present special session of the Senate; he can make recess appointments, or he can wait until the next Congress. As yet no indication has been given regarding his intentions, except that he will wait till after the confirmation of Charles B. Warren as Attorney-General, in order to have the benefit of the latter's judgment on the various aspirants.

DISTRESSING SYMPTOMS OF INDIGESTION RELIEVED

"I was sick with a terrible hurting in my stomach," says Mr. W. A. Orr, a resident of Great Falls, S. C., describing the disorders with which he was troubled some time ago.

"When I would eat, my stomach would ache, and such a terrible burning inside! I got thin. My skin was sallow. I was so weak I could not do my work. I had a breaking-out, and I simply was getting worse and worse.

"Some one asked me why I didn't use Black-Draught. I thought I could at least give it a trial. After the first dose or two I was so weak I rested for a few days, then began taking it regularly.

"I felt like I wanted to eat. I had suffered so much I was almost afraid to, but I began. I noticed first that the burning quit, then the pain. After a few weeks I wasn't afraid to eat, and my skin got clearer. I felt much better. I grew stronger, have been better ever since, was able to go back to work and have worked ever since."

"My daughter," says Mr. Orr, "would hurry home to meals and hurry eating, until she began having indigestion. She got so thin and weak until I was afraid she was going to get down in bed. She was away from work half the time. Her skin was yellow and we were uneasy about her.

"We decided she should try Black-Draught, too. She took it for a few weeks, regularly, and it acted on the liver, her skin cleared up, she began to eat, she gained until she looked fine. Her skin is clear now, and she weighs more than she ever has.

"My wife has used Black-Draught for headache, colds and indigestion for a long time. We keep it on the shelf and think there is nothing like it."

French Beauty

I've learned how they get it

By Edna Wallace Hopper

Nearly all French girls are pretty. And French women keep their youth. They have demanded youth and beauty, and French scientists met their demand.

I have made many trips to France to learn the latest and best that she offers. I gained my beauty as a girl in that way. I have kept my beauty to my grand old age.

Now I offer those helps to all—the best that France gave me. My experts have combined 52 ingredients in these four preparations. All toilet counters supply them. And I will gladly send you one to try if you will mail the coupon.

My Youth Cream

Is a remarkable creation, combining many factors. It contains products of both lemon and strawberry. Also the best helps science gave me to foster and protect the skin.

It comes in two types—cold cream and vanishing. I use it as a night cream, also daytime as a powder base. Never is my skin without it. My velvet complexion shows what that cream can do. The cost is 60c per jar. Also in 35c tubes.

My Facial Youth.

Is a liquid cleanser I owe to France. Great beauty experts the world over now advise this formula, but their price is too high for most women.

It contains no animal, no vegetable fat. The skin cannot absorb it. So it cleans to the depths, then departs. My facial Youth will bring you new conceptions of what a clean skin means. The cost is 75c.

White Youth Clay

A new-type clay, white, refined and dainty. Vastly different from the crude and muddy clays so many have employed.

It purges the skin of all that clogs and mars it. Removes the causes of blackheads and blemishes. Brings a rosy afterglow which amazes and delights. Combats lines and wrinkles; reduces enlarged pores.

No girl or woman can afford to omit it. It multiplies beauty. White Youth Clay costs 50c and $1.

My Hair Youth

The cause of my luxuriant hair, thick and silky, finer far than 40 years ago. I have never had falling hair, dandruff or a touch of gray.

A concentrated product combining many ingredients. I apply it with an eyedropper directly to the scalp to tone and stimulate. No man or woman will omit it when they see what Hair Youth does. The cost is 50c and $1 with eyedropper.

My Face Powders

They are supreme creations. No face powders you have used can compare. Mine are exquisite. They come in two types. One a heavy, clinging cold cream powder, in square box, $1. I like that best. The other is light and fluffy, in round box, 50c.

All toilet counters supply my beauty helps. If you send the coupon I will mail you a sample of any one you choose. Also my Beauty Book. Clip coupon now.

"That Half Sick Half Well Feeling"

THERE is scarcely a person who doesn't sometime experience it. Not ill enough to be in bed—and yet not well enough to be one's normal self.

The trouble frequently is constipation. Even though the bowels seem to move normally, some collection of poisonous waste matter may adhere for days or weeks somewhere in the intestinal tract. And the result is that glum, irritable, out of sorts feeling that you can't explain.

Old-fashioned, over-night cathartics are not the thing for such a condition. What you need is a quick, thorough cleansing with safe, beneficial, non-griping Pluto Water. In 30 minutes to two hours, Pluto starts its work—and you soon become your normal self again.

Get a bottle of Pluto Water today. Physicians prescribe it, druggists sell it and it is bottled at French Lick Springs, Indiana.

WOMAN PLEADS GUILTY OF PERJURY

She Admits Falsification to Conceal From Creditors Assets in Bankruptcy Case.

A plea of guilty to a charge of perjury in order to conceal from creditors assets in a bankruptcy action against her husband, resulted yesterday in a 60-day sentence in jail in Federal Court for Mrs. Marie L. Cooney, 49 years old, former proprietor of the Cooney Shoe Shoppe, 563 Skinker road. Mrs. Cooney had been in jail more than 60 days awaiting trial, for this reason was released from custody.

Matthew G. Cooney, 72 years old, the husband, formerly operated the shoe store that went into bankruptcy following a fire that he claimed destroyed all the stock. He made a claim under a fire insurance policy and was paid part of the claim.

Mrs. Cooney later opened the store under her own name and with the stock she said she had purchased from a Mrs. McGraw of Chicago.

Then followed a hearing in the bankruptcy action against her husband and it was established by witnesses that the stock of shoes with which Mrs. Cooney had opened the store after the fire had been removed before the fire to a warehouse and stored at her direction, under the name of "Mrs. McGraw," she using that name.

This was brought out after Mrs. Cooney had testified at length before Referee Coles that she had actually purchased the stock of shoes from the alleged Chicago woman after the fire for $2000, but when asked to produce "Mrs. McGraw," she testified the latter was dead.

Upon entering the plea of guilty, Mrs. Cooney placed all the blame for the removal and concealment of the shoes on her husband, against whom an indictment alleging concealment of bankruptcy assets now is pending.

FUNERAL FOR DR. BRIDGE HELD

Business and Scientific Men Attend Chicago Services.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, March 7.—Funeral services for Dr. Norman Bridge, 80 years old, philanthropist and physician who died in Los Angeles, Jan. 10, were held today at St. Paul's Universalist Church. Dr. Ernest De Witt Burton, president of the University of Chicago, and Dr. James B. Herrick, spoke words of tribute. Many nationally known men in the scientific and business world attended the services which were conducted by the Rev. L. Ward Birgham, assisted by the Rev. L. B. Fisher.

Dr. Bridge after sending many tubercular patients to the West, contracted the disease himself and removed from Chicago to California in 1892 and recovered his health. When nearing the age of 60 he began making business investments which yielded him a large fortune, several millions of which he left by will to the furtherance of the care of the sick and for medical training at the University of Chicago and other great educational and philanthropic enterprises.

OFF WILL ELIMINATE STEEP GRADE IN ROADBED

ge in Burlington Route Near der, Ill., Will Cost Railroad $2,371,000.

e Associated Press.
EARDSTOWN, Ill., March 7.—
rnately cutting through steep
h hills, and bridging deep val-
, railroad engineers here are pleting one of the most diffi-pieces of railway engineering
r attempted in Illinois. When completed the new cutoff will save the Chicago, Burlington and Qunicy road three miles in distance and will eliminate a steep grade that has long impaired the efficiency of the road's freight service.

The cutoff was built at an estimated cost of $143,000 per mile, or a total of $2,370,760. The work involved excavation operations running as high as 300,000 cubic yards to the mile, and many long fills and embankments were necessary. Some of the grades which were cut through rose 60 feet in 180 yards and elevations of 120 feet in 500 horizontal feet occurred frequently.

The old line of the railroad followed the valley for some distance and then turned abruptly up the valley of a stream, climbing to the top of a ridge and following it in a circuitous route to Vermont. The grade in the four miles between Browning, Ill., and Bader, Ill., where the road climbed from the stream valley to the ridge was so steep that two extra 263-ton mallet locomotives were necessary to move each train of coal out of the valley. As the road was not double tracked, congestion often occurred at this point and service on the whole line was held back.

The new road will follow the valley of a stream most of the way between Beardstown and Vermont, the grade being reduced by cuts and fills to 0.3 per cent. The new cutoff gives the Burlington route a ruling grade of 0.3 per cent between the Southern Illinois coal fields and St. Paul and enables the road to use the same type of freight locomotive over a distance of more than 600 miles.

In the progress of the work it was necessary to cut through 8 hills, or smaller elevations and to bridge, fill or trestle 84 depressions. The rough character of the country traversed made possible the elimination of eight grade crossings with highways, six of them being run under the tracks and two above. The grading was to have been completed last summer, but a late spring and wet summer made this impossible and contractors are putting the finishing touches on the work now.

SECRET AUCTION OF SEIZED AUTO DENIED

Judge Faris Dismisses Motion Filed by Attorney, Calls It Unfortunate Condition.

A charge that a Government auction of a confiscated automobile last Monday was conducted "secretly, quietly and evasively," contained in a motion filed by P. G. McElwee, an attorney, was dismissed yesterday by Federal Judge Faris, after a hearing in court.

McElwee testified he went to a garage at Twelfth boulevard and Chestnut street to bid on a Buick automobile, confiscated in a liquor raid. Deputy United States Marshal Thomas Elton mounted a soapbox and auctioned off two other automobile, after which, McElwee said, he and others inquired about the Buick and were fold by Chief Deputy Duncan J. Jennings that the Buick had already been sold for $650.

No Public Announcement.

McElwee declared no public announcement, bid or award was made. Had the auction been conducted openly, he said, he would have bid $700 for the car.

Jennings testified that he and Elton were in a hurry, as they had other business, so Elton sold two cars while he, Jennings, auctioned off the Buick in an adjoining aisle of the garage. Only five or six persons attended his sale and after it was over McElwee inquired when it would be held.

Informed it was over, McElwee left the garage, although Jennings says he offered to reopen the auction and did later. McElwee denied Jennings made any such offer.

"Unfortunate Condition."

The man who bid $650 for the Buick did not have cash, as required, Jennings testified, and the car was sold, finally, to a used-car dealer for $575. Jennings denied that he or Elton knew any of the bidders personally.

In approving the sale, Judge Faris said there appeared to have been no collusion between the auctioneer and buyer. He termed the matter an "unfortunate condition."

SPECIAL U. S. CHAPEL IN ROME

American Pilgrims Have Own Mass Before Day's Journey.

Copyright, 1925, by the Press and Pulitzer Publishing Cos., the New York World and the Post-Dispatch.

ROME, March 7.—For the first time in the history of the Roman Catholic Church American pilgrims have their own chapel wherein mass is held for them before starting the day's journeys to the various churches. The Church of Santa Lusanne, whcih was designated by the late Pope Benedict for Americans in Rome, is proving a boon to pilgrims. Cardinal O'Connell, who is here now with 500 pilgrims, never fails to say mass there when visiting Rome.

One group of American pilgrims will proceed to the Holy Land, others will visit various cities in Italy and still others plan to tour Europe.

Alleged Murderer Arrested.

By the Associated Press.

SOMERSET, Ky., March 7.—After an all-day search, officers arrested Dewitt Spears, 23, last night in Lincoln County, on a charge of murder and returned him early today to the Pulaski County jail. Spears is alleged to have slain Edward Merritt, 60, formerly of Michigan and set fire to the house in which the victim's torso was found, pierced by a charge from a shotgun. Spears admitted the shotgun had belonged to him, but declared that it had been sold to Merritt. He denied any connection with the tragedy.

Koplar to Build Three Apartments for $3,000,000

Two Union Boulevard Corners Purchased for Structures, Two to Be Twin, 12-Story Buildings.

By Berry Moore.

Sam Koplar yesterday announced plans for three fireproof apartment buildings, one for the southeast corner of Washington and Union boulevards and the other two for the southwest corner of Union boulevard and Pershing avenue, to cost approximately $3,000,000.

An eight-story structure with elevators is to be erected at Washington and Union boulevards at a cost in excess of $1,000,000. The site, 150 by 155 feet, has been purchased by Koplar from the Huff estate, for a consideration of $70,000, he stated.

This building will comprise 80 units of three and six rooms, the latter with two baths. These apartments will be paneled throughout rather than papered, which will be a novelty in St. Louis so far as apartments go. Refrigeration, running ice water and all other ultra modern conveniences are included in the specifications.

The basement will contain a garage for 50 cars, with the elevator service of the building.

Excavation for this improvement is to be begun Monday, it was announced. Thomas Meeker, manager of the Branscomb, owned by Koplar, will also be manager of the new Washington boulevard building. Plans for the building were made by Preston J. Bradshaw, architect.

To Be Done in Fall.

Plans are being made for two twin 12-story apartment buildings for the southwest corner of Union boulevard and Pershing avenue, each to cost $1,000,000. One of these buildings will comprise suites of six rooms and three baths, and the other, three and five rooms, with one and two baths.

There will be no wallpaper in either of these buildings, which will be paneled throughout, and both of which will be finished on a surpassing scale. These buildings also will be replete with modern conveniences, including refrigeration and running ice water.

Construction in this instance is to be launched as soon as the architect's plans are available, with a view to having the buildings completed by fall.

The site, 255 by 150 feet, one of the most imposing in this part of the city, was purchased by Koplar several years ago for the proposed apartments, but construction was deferred, owing to the height regulations of the defunct zoning ordinance.

Koplar stated that an offer of [illegible] a front foot accompanied by earnest money, submitted by an oil company for a part of this plot desired for a filling station, was recently declined.

Notable Developments.

The effect of the announcement of this prospect at the opening of the spring season cannot be overestimated, realtors declare, especially in view of the fact that Koplar is one of the foremost and most successful operators in the apartment building field. He built the Westmoreland and other high-class structures.

The real estate market continues to function on a large scale with the business sections constituting the most prolific fields.

The most notable developments of the week concerned the northwest corner of Grand and Delmar boulevards, which was taken under an option as a site for the proposed 10-story Pythian Building, and the southeast corner of Thirteenth and St. Charles streets, which it is understood, is to be acquired for a new theater for the Schubert theatrical interests.

The site chosen for the new Pythian building, 150 feet square, is owned by W. H. Thompson.

The building, according to present plans is to be a 10-story office structure, and is expected to be completed within two years. The top story will be devoted to lodge rooms, the basement to a gymnasium and swimming pool, and the rest of the building to offices and stores.

The new Shubert Theater is to be built in connection with the new addition to Hotel Jefferson, for which plans have been made by the T. P. Barnett Co.

The Thirteenth and St. Charles streets corner is a part of the site of Butler Bros.' eight-story warehouse building, acquired by the Hotel Jefferson Co. from the Mutual Realty Co., when the latter sold the corner at Thirteenth and Locust streets to the Roxana Petroleum Co. for a 12-story building. Both transactions were handled by the Mercantile Trust Co.

$30,000 IN SALES REPORTED BY SINGER-KLEIN REALTY CO.

The Singer-Klein Realty Co. reports sales totaling $30,000 as follows:

933-35 Easton avenue, a three-story business building, occupied by a Drape company, sold for the account of Hazel G. Green to Isaac [illegible] and wife.

507 South Grand boulevard, a single flat, sold for the account of a client of the Preisler-Groschan Real Estate Co. to A. Shipper, a client of the Singer-Klein Realty Co.

Three lots at Virginia avenue and [illegible] street sold to a client of M. Robbins of the Singer-Klein Realty Co. This property will be improved with a gasoline filling station.

DUDLEY BUILDING SOLD TO NANCY INVESTMENT CO.

The Nancy Investment Co. has bought through the Cornet & Zeibig Trust the Dudley building at [illegible]41 Olive street. It contains [illegible] stores on Olive street and two on Culver Way, with five apartments on the second floor.

The lot has a frontage on Olive of 150 feet and a depth of 150. Approximately 80 feet of the lot is unimproved. The former owner was Fanny G. Dudley.

FIFTY-ACRE TRACT ON WATSON ROAD OFFERED AS HOME SITES

Deeds were filed yesterday conveying a tract of land on Watson road, between Marquette avenue and Pernod avenue, containing about 50 acres, from George M. Block, F. Churchill Whittemore and H. L. Block, trustees for the Robert E. Carr estate, to a client of the A. R. Schollmeyer Real Estate Co.

The company has had the tract surveyed and are now selling lots. The subdivision is known as Southwest Park. It is the intention of the Schollmeyer company to improve this tract and convert it into a residential park.

This subdivision lies directly opposite the 34-acre tract to be acquired by the city for the Lindenwood Park.

The Schollmeyer company attributes the tremendous development of this section to the bus line service of the Peoples Motor Bus Co., which now runs within a few blocks of the property and which, it is anticipated, will extend its line to Marquette avenue when this street is paved for a distance of one block westwardly to Ivanhoe avenue.

ONE-THIRD OF LOTS SOLD IN SHAW'S GARDEN ADDITION

The spring sale of lots in Shaw's Garden addition, west of Shaw's Garden, has begun, with George T. Kollas and the Leisner Realty Co. in charge.

Approximately one-third of the addition has been disposed of. Almost the entire frontage on Alfred avenue, the west boundary of Shaw's Garden, between Shaw avenue and Flora place, has been built up with flats.

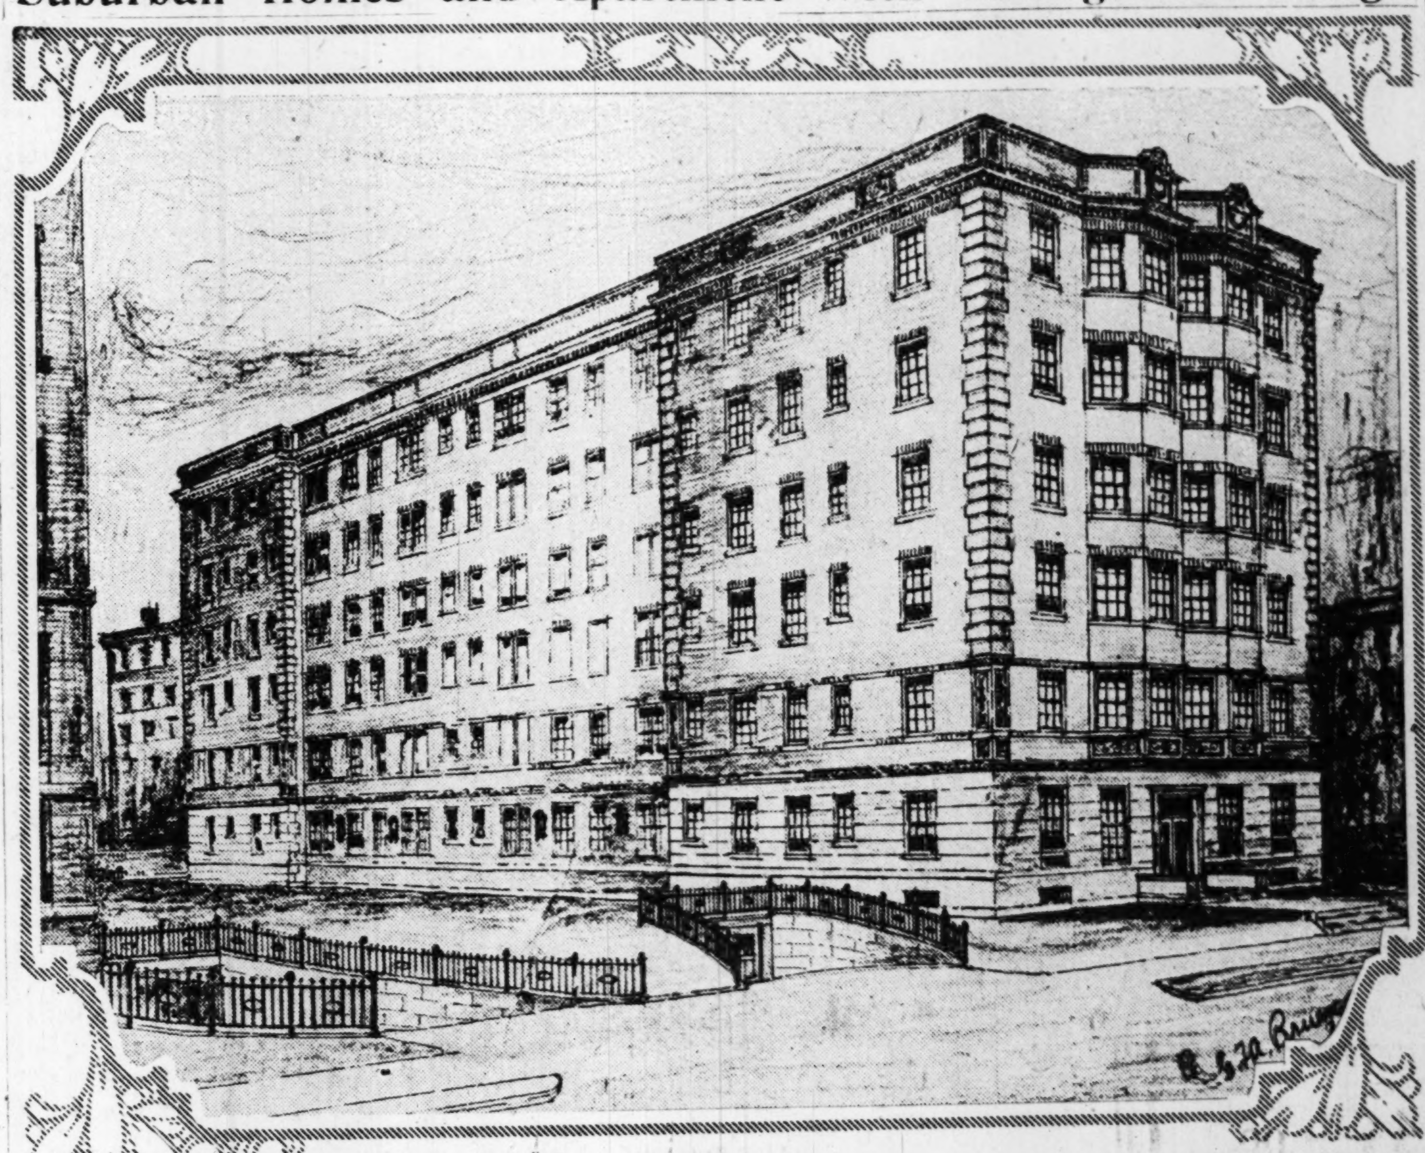
Stores are being constructed on Vandeventer avenue, which has been set aside for business purposes.

LEASES ON TWO BUILDINGS ON LOCUST BOULEVARD

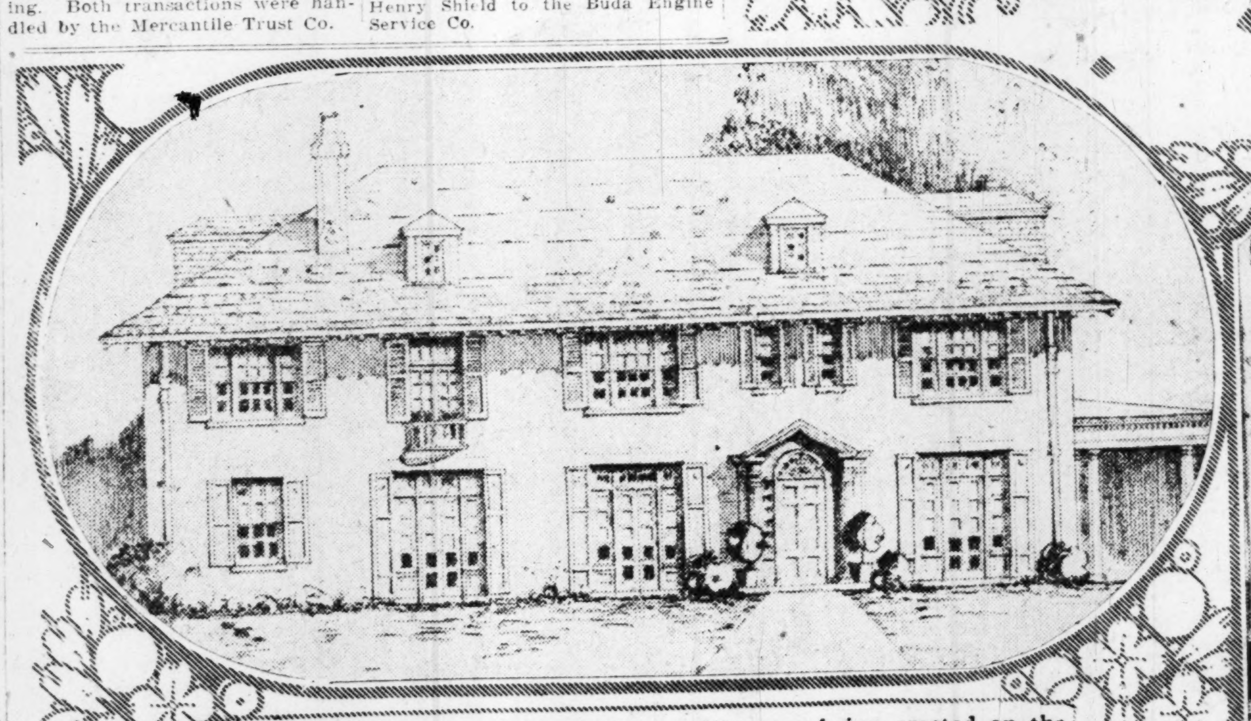
LeGrand Jones, Inc., report having leased the two-story building at 3116-18 Locust boulevard to the Orthwein Motor Corporation for J. A. Hutcheson.

The firm reports also having leased 3042 Locust boulevard for Henry Shield to the Buda Engine Service Co.

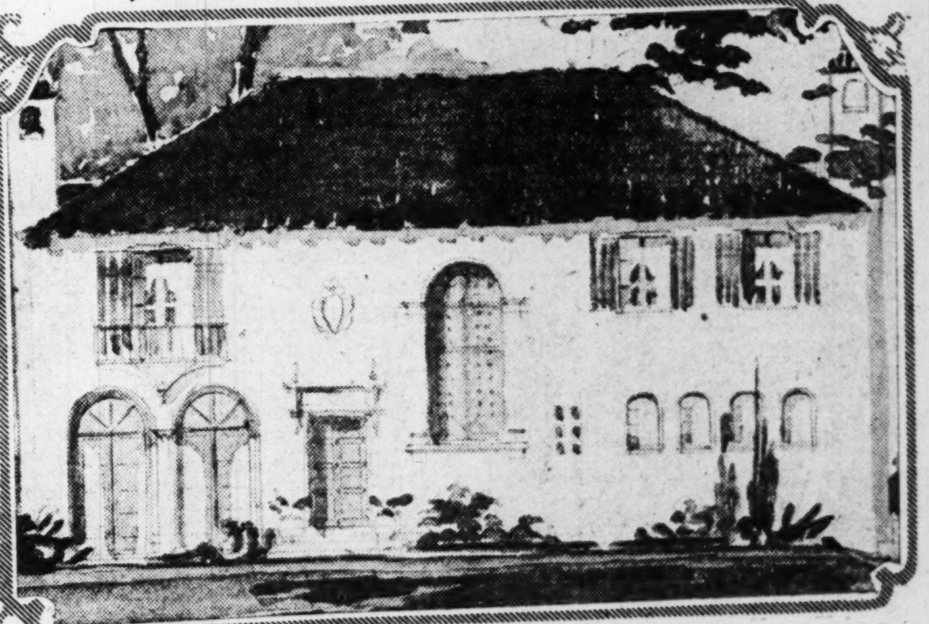
Suburban Homes and Apartment With Underground Garage



New Kingshighway apartments to be erected in the Kingshighway and Buckingham Court section with underground garage by the Kingshighway Apartment Co., of which Erastus Wells is president. G. F. A. Bruggeman, architect.



Residence in the Georgian style of architecture being erected on the west side of Berry road opposite the Algonquin golf links for Dr. Robert E. Wilson. L. Baylor Pendleton, architect.



New residence of Mrs. J. S. Klein at 15 Wydown Terrace. Maritz & Young, architects.

NEW APARTMENT FOR THE WEST END

Structure at Kingshighway and Buckingham Court to Be Opened in September.

The new apartment building at Kingshighway and Buckingham Court will be six stories high and will contain 72 apartments, ranging from the efficiency unit to apartments with one and two additional bedrooms, and apartments of five rooms and two baths. It will have the same ownership and be under the same management as the A-B-C Buildings and will be known as the "E" Building of this group.

There will be a garage for the use of the tenants, occupying part of the basement and extending underground beyond the building with a lawn over the extended part.

The dining alcoves will permit use of the usual dining-room table, and the kitchenette will be equipped with cooking and storage fixtures, refrigerator system for ice boxes, ventilation, and special storage for cooking utensils in a cabinet built into the gas range. The china cabinet will contain space for keeping linens.

The main lobby will have an attendant in charge.

The building is being erected by the Kingshighway Apartment Co., Erastus Wells, president.

G. F. A. Bruggeman is the architect. It is being built by the James H. Bright Contracting & Building Co. The apartments will be ready for occupancy in September.

The project was financed by the Liberty Central Trust Co.

COOK CO. COMPLETES LEASE OF FOUR MARKET STREET STORES

William Hahn & Sons, manufacturers and sales agents for billiard and bowling supplies, 311 Olive street, have leased the building at 2008 Locust street for a display room and factory. They will move to their new quarters about April 1.

The two-story building at 2118 Locust street represented by Franciscus Realty Co. was leased to S. C. Johnson & Son, manufacturers of floor waxes and varnishes, now located at 19 South Third street. Extensive alterations, including installation of a freight elevator, will be made before the company moves to the new location May 1.

The Seidel Manufacturing Co., manufacturers and sales agents for sash pulleys and builders' hardware, has leased the building at 2006 Locust street for an office and warehouse. Their office is at present located in the Boatmen's Bank building.

The Ofeldt Gas Boiler Sales Corporation has taken the building at 2010 Locust street owned by Wallace C. Culver for a long term of years for a display room and sales office. The Boiler company will move to their new location from 1904 Olive street on April 1.

GEORGE F. BERGFELD CO. REPORTS SALE OF HOMES

The George F. Bergfeld Realty Co. reports the sale of:

6921 Waterman avenue, 10-room house, for Thomas P. Moody to George C. Nall, who was represented by the Bush-Burns Realty Co.

6926 Kingsbury avenue, a nine-room house, for Mrs. Joseph C. Reed to Thomas P. Moody.

A lot in Northmoor, having a frontage of 80 feet on the south side of Forsythe boulevard, west of Pennsylvania avenue, to a client who has started to erect a modern four-family apartment; the lot was sold for George L. Pleitsch.

Two lots in Southmoor to clients for whom the Bergfeld company will immediately erect homes.

Building loans during the week totaled $100,000.

STATIONERY CONCERN BUYS NORTH THIRD STREET BUILDING

The Charles M. Monroe Stationery Co. has purchased through the Fletcher R. Harris Realty Co. a four-story and basement building at 409-11 North Third street, owned by Beverly S. Wardan, with a frontage of 43 feet.

The price reported by the real estate company was $25,000. The building will be occupied by the new owner in the conduct of its business and several thousand dollars will be expended in remodeling the building. Louis S. Brooks represented the purchaser.

NEW BEVO MILL ANNEX IN COMPLETED CONDITION

The Bevo Mill annex, just completed, on Morganford road and Gravois avenue, opposite the Bevo Mill, is a notable addition to this part of the city.

The annex will be run by Henry Dietz in connection with Bevo Mill.

Both the exterior and interior of the new building conforms with the old Holland style of architecture which distinguishes the Bevo Mill.

The building was erected by the Mayer Realty Co. from plans by Herrman Mayer, architect.

HENRY HIEMENZ REALTY CO. REPORTS SALES ON SOUTH SIDE

The Henry Heimenz Realty Co. reports the following:

Sold for account of a client to David W. Sloss, 44-foot lot north side of Allen avenue near Longfellow.

For account of Julia A. Wall to F. E. Powers and wife, 2726 Rutger street.

3001-03 St. Vincent avenue, four flats, sold for John and Theresa Schimmer to E. Free.

2919 Salena street, residence, sold for John Heger to Henry Wuensch.

4221 Humphrey street, single flat, sold for a client of the A. C. Blanke Real Estate Co. to Mrs. Lucy Free.

Vacant lot, north side of Keokuk street, near Grand avenue, sold for Mary B. Sexton to Ed Conley.

WYDOWN TERRACE RESIDENTS REMINISCENT OF SPAIN

The residence of Mrs. J. S. Klein, recently completed in Wydown Terrace, is reminiscent of small villas found in southern Spain. The building has rough stucco walls, rough tile roof and has a loggia to the north, overlooking the sunken garden.

The interior of the house has timbered ceilings, stone fireplaces and marble floors on the first floor. The house contains a garage for two cars incorporated within the building.

The house was designed and erected under the supervision of Maritz & Young, Inc., architects.

NEW BUILDING COMPLETED AT 408 WASHINGTON AVENUE

A three-story and basement building has just been completed by the Anthony estate at 408 Washington avenue on the site formerly occupied by Koerner's Cafe. It has a frontage of 27 feet on Washington avenue by a depth of 75 feet. The building has a white glazed terra cotta front with new, modern and up-to-date show windows.

The structure was designed by Otto J. Krieg, architect, and was built by A. H. Stiehl, contractor. This site is just east of the Nugent Brothers Department Store and west of the Kennard Carpet Co.

The Martin & Breitt Real Estate Co. has been appointed agents for the structure.

CINDER BLOCK CO. TO BUILD 2 FACTORIES IN ST. LOUIS AREA

The Atlas Cinder Block Corporation has acquired a site in East St. Louis at Twenty-ninth street and Missouri avenue for a factory building of the material which it manufactures. The purchase was made through R. Vernon Clark.

The company manufactures cinder blocks, designed to supplant hollow building tile and brick.

Cinders for the manufacture of the new product will be obtained from local industrial plants, principally from that of the Aluminum Ore Co.

Simultaneous with construction here, the company will build another plant at the Olive Street road and Terminal Belt. Work upon both plants will be started the first of the week, and it is expected to have them in operation by the fifteenth of May.

MISSOURI PORTLAND BUYS WIGGINS TRACT

The Wiggins tract of approximately 75 acres lying partly in the city and partly in the county, fronting on Riverview drive and extending west of the right of way of the St. Louis, Keokuk & Northwestern Railroad, has been purchased by the Hilholm Investment Co., through the Cornet & Zeibig Trust. The grantor in the transaction was Eugene Ridgely.

The purchaser is a subsidiary of the Missouri Portland Cement Co., whose property the purchase adjoins and which has been in urgent need of additional ground.

LEASE AND SALE OF TENEMENT BY MERCANTILE TRUST CO.

The Mercantile Trust Co. announces a lease to the Del-Home Light Co. of the two-story building at the intersection of Lindell boulevard and Olive street. The building is owned by the Pickel Realty Co. Both parties were represented by the Mercantile company.

The Mercantile company also reports the sale of the northeast corner of Third and Poplar streets, 72 by 111 feet, for the Bocker Realty and Investment Co. The lot is improved with tenement buildings. The purchaser, Thomas J. Crinnion, bought for investment. He plans to remodel the building. The Dubinsky Realty Co. assisted in the sale.

J. I. Epstein Back from Florida.

J. I. Epstein of J. I. Epstein & Son yesterday returned from a short sojourn in Florida.

DR. R. E. WILSON IS BUILDING $60,000 HOME ON BERRY ROAD

Dr. Robert E. Wilson is erecting a residence of the Georgian Court style on a 20-acre plot on the west side of Berry road opposite the Algonquin golf links from plans by L. Baylor Pendleton, architect. Cost is estimated at $60,000.

The house, built of matt brick, whitewashed, will have green shutters and a variegated weather roof of heavy old-fashioned split shingles.

Dr. Wilson plans to landscape the entire 20 acres. Orchards and vineyards have been planted and the rehabilitation of an old fish pond on the site is in progress.

Dr. Wilson has sold his home on Lindell boulevard preparatory to moving to his new home early next summer.

107 LOTS IN HOLLY HILLS SECOND SUBDIVISION SOLD

The Federer Realty Co. reports that it has sold the major portion of the lots in Holly Hills No. 2, the addition to the original Holly Hills subdivision, at Grand boulevard and Carondelet Park, in less than two weeks, the total of sales approaching $200,000. This subdivision was formally opened for sale last Sunday.

The subdivision consists of 142 lots of which 107 have already been sold, after being on the market a little more than a week.

Improvements will be carried out as in the original subdivision and will consist of concrete and asphalt streets, curbs, sidewalks, water, sewers, gas and electric service. The lots are from 150 to 155 feet deep, and sell as low as [illegible] foot. Grading of the property is well under way and it is expected that improvements will be completed by Aug. 1.

SUBURB'N PROP'Y FOR SALE

Webster Groves

THERE ARE A NUMBER OF REASONS WHY YOU SHOULD LIVE IN

Webster Groves

The principal one being that there is NO OTHER PLACE that is JUST AS GOOD. Look at all the others and then see WEBSTER GROVES. You will like this beautiful residential community, with its trees, gently sloping hills and winding parklike streets, it is the ideal in suburban living.

Added to a natural beauty are the city improvements, sewers, water, gas and improved roads. Here are clubs, public and private schools of high character, markets and acres of play grounds.

Amid these surroundings you can buy homes of varying architectural types, honestly built and modern in every detail. For YOU the Spring of 1925 offers wonderful opportunities. Let us show you about WEBSTER GROVES, and why it is today the most popular of all St. Louis' Suburbs.

Your investment, due to the high character of the community and the careful restrictions, is assured. Tell us the kind of property you want, we can obtain it for you. Send for our sales list, map and special booklet D.

MAJESTIC HOMES

Los Angeles
(ST. LOUIS)

The home you have wished for, planned for and hoped some day to live in, has been built for you, in Los Angeles (St. Louis). It is a delightful home, in just the location you would have selected to build it. It is a beautiful California bungalow, with all the refinements that you would have put into it, such as elegant hardwood floors and doors, solid bronze and crystal hardware, bath, with one-piece built-in tub, spacious rooms and deep well-lighted basement. The exterior is tapestry matt brick tile roof and copper gutters. The lot is large, and you have all the city advantages.

You want a real home, in a wonderful community, located in a 200-acre residential park.

You want value in materials and workmanship, public improvements already completed.

You want convenience, schools, churches, stores, public garage, street cars and busses all at hand.

You want to associate with over 200 families who have approved our values and terms by buying Majestic Homes.

You want all of these things at a price, and on terms that suit you.

See Los Angeles (St. Louis).

It is a Majestic Homes Community, 7200 west, on Natural Bridge rd. and Florissant rd. At the big red water tower a beautiful display home completely furnished by Stix, Baer & Fuller, and comfortably heated, awaits you.

Your, your architect's or builder's and careful scrutiny of these new 4-5 room and sun bedroom or breakfast room; hot water and vacuum steam heated; matt brick (all around) flats; with brick porches and steps; copper gutters and downspouts, etc., etc., at 4867-71 Penrose st., in
JUDGMENT
GANSS' CREST HILL
(on the peak of a hill from which a panoramic view of the city can be had).
(4200 north and 4900 west.)
Will convince the shrewdest buyers that these new flats are the happy medium and the SOLUTION of their long-felt wants and the disquisition of the probability of disintegration of the building situation, or a decline in the real estate market.

MAJESTIC HOMES

Gannondale
Gannondale, a community of fine homes, in the heart of University City, is the most desirable, the most beautiful location in the West End. The striking individuality of the residences has won for it the title "A STYLE SHOW OF ARCHITECTURE."

The very location of Gannondale leads to the expectation of a residential community of fine homes. But the homes themselves even exceed expectations. Homes built to this double ideal of architectural beauty and structural worth appeal to those whose standards of home and environment are of the highest.

See the MODEL HOME, beautifully furnished by Stix-Baer & Fuller. Learn the new way to home ownership, through the Majestic plan of buying. Gannondale is at Hanley rd., 7500 west, just off Delmar bl.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

The Post-Dispatch reserves the right to reject any query. Personal and telephone calls, or answers by mail, cannot be given attention, except letters on medical questions of undoubted sincerity when accompanied by stamped addressed envelope.

A READER.—Joliet is not a Federal prison. The Federal prisons are located at Atlanta, Ga., Leavenworth, Kan., and McNeills Island, Wash.

SUNDAY READER.—The Lafayette Players are directed by Andrew Bishop. Address him, 3621 State street, Chicago, Ill., in care of the Theater Owners' Booking Association.

E. G.—James J. Corbett was knocked out by Bob Fitzsimmons in 14 rounds, March 17, 1897. Jim Jeffries knocked out Fitzsimmons in 11 rounds, June 9, 1899, and again in eight rounds, July 25, 1902.

READER.—Wedding presents are all sent to the bride, and are, according to law, her personal property. Articles are marked with her present, not her future initials. It is proper for the bride to embroider her initials on the linen, but occasionally brides who dislike the confusing initials, especially ask that presents be marked with her marriage name, and she also has her linen marked accordingly.

ANXIOUS.—Reports the facts to the prohibition enforcement agent in the Federal Building, Eighth and Locust streets.

A DAILY READER.—Inquire of the Automobile Club of Missouri regarding the best automobile route from St. Louis to Cornwell, Ok. We do not locate the town in the atlas.

HACK.—Following is the treatment of newly-laid linoleum: The proper way to cleanse a linoleum flooring is first to sweep off the dust and then wipe up with a damp cloth. Several times a year the surface should be well rubbed with floor wax. Care must be had that the mass is well pulverized and free from grit. Granite linoleum and figured coverings are cleansed without application of water. A floor covering which has been treated from the beginning with floor wax need only be wiped off daily with a dry cloth, either woolen or felt, and afterwards rubbed well with a cloth filled with the mass. It will improve its appearance, too, if it be washed several times a year with warm water and a neutral soap.

LEGAL INFORMATION.

(By a Member of the St. Louis Bar Association.)

READER.—Your Federal income tax on $1500 would be $7.50.

INQUIRER.—You can move the Government gravestone in the way you state.

S. L. P. M.—A mother is not responsible for the bills of a son who is past 21.

YOURS ANXIOUS.—Report the facts to the Board of Police Commissioners' office at Police Headquarters.

M. C.—There is no legal objection to your cashing the check under the circumstances as stated.

E. E. E.—Suit must be filed within five years after the accident occurred.

L. A. F.—The dividends in question are subject to the Missouri income tax.

WIDOW.—If she moved before the lease was up, the landlord could sue her and after getting judgment could levy on any property she owns above the $400 exemption.

L. R.—Her husband may sue you for damages for alienating her affections, or he may do something more drastic, so it is not entirely safe for you to continue going with her. Of course, we do not know all the circumstances.

C. W.—You can pay the Federal income tax at the Collector's office in the Custom House, Eighth and Olive streets, from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m. daily except Saturday, when the hours are 9 a. m. to 1:30 p. m.

READER.—(1) Employers still furnish the State and Federal Governments with a list of employes and salaries subject to income tax. (2) You will not have to make any Federal income tax return this year, but you will have to make a State income tax return. You can get a blank for State return at the Assessor's office at the City Hall.

A P.-D. READER.—(1) A guardian would have to be of legal age, that is, 21 years old. A bond would be required. (2) A guardian or curator of property is entitled to a reasonable amount for his services. This is fixed and allowed by the Probate Court. Usually it is 5 per cent of the disbursemnets.

MEDICAL QUESTIONS.

Health and sanitation questions of public interest only will be considered. Diagnosis or treatment of individual cases will not be given.

MARISSA.—The intelligent procedure is to have a complete physical examination made.

FOOL.—There is no reason why an operation for the correction of the condition cannot be safely done.

JOE L. F.—You can have such an examination, free of charge, at Room 35, Municipal Courts building. Almost any of the private laboratories are dependable.

TOPSY.—There is no remedy which you can apply for your condition. You might consult the Institute for the Deaf, 818 South Kingshighway.

THANKFUL.—Between the age of 2½ and 6 years a child should have 20 teeth. The second teeth begin to appear at 6 years and dentition is not completed until between 17 and 25 years.

AN ANXIOUS READER.—Ordinary ringworm on the skin surface, as a rule, yields readily to the application of tincture of iodine painted over the surface at intervals of two or three days. Avoid reinfection from scratching.

ANXIOUS MOTHER.—Coal oil will kill head lice every time but often the treatment must be repeated to kill the lice later hatching and also prevent reinfection from hats, clothing etc. Soak the hair in coal oil and wrap in a towel, leaving it on over night. Be very careful of exposure to fire. In the morning wash thoroughly with soap and warm water and rinse thoroughly. When nearly dry soak the hair in vinegar to loosen the attachment of the eggs to the hairs. Comb carefully and thoroughly with a fine-tooth comb. Your trouble is likely reinfection from some source.

E. ST. L. READER:—Petit mal is a mild form of epileptic attack. We have never heard of a scar on the brain. From the general tenor of your letter we suggest that you might change physicians to advantage.

EDUCATED AMBITIOUS WOMEN WANTED

For Better Paying Positions

We have several positions available to women of refinement and ambition, with at least a high school education, that will pay not less than $2400 a year. Your previous training is not important, as we prefer to take our own material and develop it for our own work. The matters we stress are pleasing, sensible personality, freedom for extensive travel and, above all, the capacity to learn and the ambition to earn. If you are in the rut of teaching, office or store work at a nominal salary, this work, which is part of the nationally known Compton Service, of which we are publishers, may not only bring you far greater earnings than you ever dreamed were possible, if you are selected, but with its extensive travel an dits pleasant associates of your own kind, may become an event of new and tremendous interest in your life. Positions carry guaranteed salary to start and an intensive training that insures success. For further information call on our general organizer, Mrs. L. M. Dexter, Room 327 Frisco Bldg. (1)

PROTECT yourself against surprise blowouts and pumping up tires on the road; you can get away from this trouble by using Huerta tube retainer and tire meter. Yes, sir; Huerta tire retainer and tire meter will tell you many, many miles before she blows. Of course, you might never have used Huerta tube retainer and tire meter before. It is the latest auto accessory at your service. We tell you the advantage against your other meters, so your motometer to tell you when your motor goes hot; all he will say is hot, hot, hot, but not cool it for you. When your tire breaks Huerta tire retainer takes the road; you can keep on running; you know the speedometer will take you no place, but Huerta tube retainer and tire meter takes you there and back. It is of good service to the user. Union made. Huerta & Hermanos Mfg. Co., sales agents, 2922 Washington bl.

California

CALIFORNIA FARMERS make more money on small farms in San Joaquin Valley, California, where you can work outdoors all the year. Splendid opportunities for men of moderate means; 20 and 40 acre farms produce alfalfa abundantly; dairying, hogs and poultry make good returns; staple varieties of fruits yield dependable profits; combination of these means a well-balanced farm with good income throughout the year; winterless California offers much to the man looking for a country where he can get the most out of life. Climate delightful; long growing seasons; wonderful roads; excellent schools; co-operative marketing associations afford profitable outlets for all produce. A small one-family farm, cutting out high labor costs, insures success. No winter handicaps. San Joaquin Valley illustrated folder mailed free on request. C. L. Seagraves, General Colonization Agent, Santa Fe Ry., 946 Railway Exchange, Chicago, Ill. (cx99)

Canada

OWN A FERTILE FARM
LOW PRICED LAND—BIG YIELDS
35 Years to Pay.

You can prosper in Western Canada on rich lands averaging $20 per acre with average prices for farm products because crops are big. The Canadian Pacific is offering their rich, fertile lands on terms so easy that success is assured, 35 years to pay. Settlers pay down only 7 per cent of purchase price. Then one year's free use of land. Balance in 34 equal annual payments. Small payments leave ample for improvements. Irrigated lands are also available on same terms. Prize crops of the world raised here. Climate unexcelled. Unfailing water supply. Rich grazing lands at low prices for stock raising. Markets near by. Good schools and churches. Write today for full details. M. E. Thornton, Supt. of Colonization, Dept. 619 Canadian Pacific Railway Depot, Winnipeg, Man. (cx99)

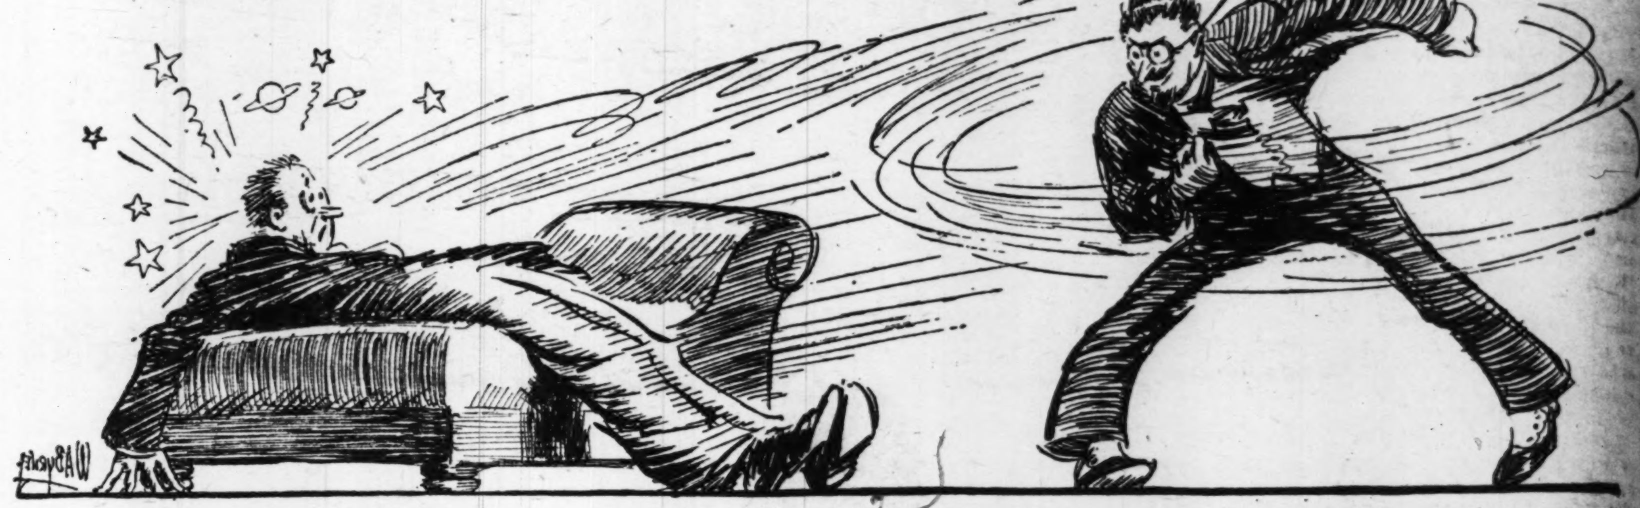
Leacock Teaches You, In One Lesson, How to be a Doctor



Then the doctor turns suddenly and lets him have a left hook under the heart. "Can you feel that?" he says, viciously.

By STEPHEN LEACOCK.

CERTAINLY the progress of science is a wonderful thing. One can't help feeling proud of it. I must admit that I do. Whenever I get talking to anyone—that is, to anyone who knows even less about it than I do—about the marvelous development of electricity, for instance, I feel as if I had been personally responsible for it. As for the linotype and the airplane and the vacuum house cleaners, well, I am not sure that I didn't invent them myself. I believe that all generous-hearted men feel just the same way about it.

However, this is not the point I am intending to discuss. What I want to speak about is the progress of medicine. There, if you like, is something wonderful. Any lover of humanity (or of either sex of it) who looks back on the achievements of medical science must feel his heart glow and his right ventricle expand with the pericardiac stimulus of a permissible pride.

Consider the advance of the science on its practical side. A hundred years ago it used to be supposed that fever could be cured by the letting of blood; now we know positively that it cannot. Even 70 years ago it was thought that fever was curable by the administration of sedative drugs; now we know that it isn't.

For the matter of that, as recently as 30 years ago doctors thought that they could heal a fever by means of low diet and the application of ice; now they are absolutely certain that they cannot. This instance shows the steady progress made in the treatment of fever.

But there has been the same cheering advance all along the line. Take rheumatism. A few generations ago people with rheumatism used to have to carry round potatoes in their pockets as a means of cure. Now the doctors allow them to carry absolutely anything they like. They may go round with their pockets full of watermelons if they wish to. It makes no difference.

In only one respect has there been a decided lack of progress in the domain of medicine: that is in the time it takes to become a qualified practitioner. In the good old days a man was turned out thoroughly equipped after putting in two winter sessions at a college and spending his summers in running logs for a sawmill. Some of the students were turned out even sooner.

Nowadays it takes anywhere from five to eight years to become a doctor. Of course, one is willing to grant that our young men are growing stupider and lazier every year. This fact will be corroborated at once by any man over 50 years of age. But even when this is said it seems odd that a man should study eight years now to learn what he used to acquire in eight months.

However, let that go. The point I want to develop is that the modern doctor's business is an extremely simple one, which could be acquired in about two weeks. This is the way it is done.

The patient enters the consulting room. "Doctor," he says, "I have a bad pain." "Where is it?" "Here." "Stand up," says the doctor, "and put your arms above your head." Then the doctor goes behind the patient and strikes him a powerful blow in the back. "Do you feel that," he says. "I do," says the patient.

Then the doctor turns suddenly and lets him have a left hook under the heart. "Can you feel that?" he says, viciously, as the patient falls over on the sofa in a heap. "Get up," says the doctor, and counts 10. The patient rises. The doctor looks him over very carefully without speaking, and then suddenly fetches him a blow in the stomach that doubles him up speechless.

The doctor walks over to the window and reads the morning paper for a while. Presently he turns and begins to mutter more to himself than the patient. "Hum!" says the doctor, "there's a slight anesthesia of the tympanum." "Is that so?" says the patient, in an agony of fear. "What can I do about it, doctor?" "Well," says the doctor, "I want you to keep very quiet; you'll have to go to bed and stay there and keep quiet."

In reality, of course, the doctor hasn't the least idea what is wrong with the man; but he does know that if he will go to bed and keep quiet, awfully quiet, he'll either get quietly well again or else die a quiet death. Meantime, if the doctor calls every morning and thumps and beats him, he can keep the patient submissive and perhaps force him to confess what is wrong with him.

"What about diet, doctor?" says the patient, completely cowed.

The answer to this question varies very much. It depends on how the doctor is feeling and whether it is long since he had a meal himself. If it is late in the morning and the doctor is ravenously hungry, he says: "Oh, eat plenty; don't be afraid of it; eat meat, vegetables, starch, glue, cement, anything you like."

But if the doctor has just had lunch and if his breathing is short-circuited with huckleberry pie, he says very firmly "No, I don't want you to eat anything at all; absolutely not a bite; it won't hurt you. A little self-denial in the matter of eating is the best thing in the world."

"And what about drinking?" Again the doctor's answer varies. He may say, "Oh, yes, you might drink a glass of lager now and then, if you can get it, or, if you prefer it, a gin and soda or a whisky and Apollinaris, if you have any, and I think before going to bed I'd take a hot Scotch with a couple of lumps of white sugar and a bit of lemon peel in it and a good grating of nutmeg on the top."

The doctor says this with real feeling, and his eye glistens with the pure love of his profession. But if, on the other hand, the doctor has spent the night before at a little gathering of medical friends, he is very apt to forbid the patient to touch alcohol in any shape, and to dismiss the subject with great severity.

Of course, this treatment in and of itself would appear too transparent, and would fail to inspire the patient with a proper confidence. But nowadays this element is supplied by the work of the analytical laboratory. Whatever is wrong with the patient, the doctor insists on snipping off parts and pieces and extracts of him and sending them mysteriously away to be analyzed. He cuts off a lock of the patient's hair, marks it, "Mr. Smith's Hair, February, 1925."

Then he clips off the lower part of the ear, and wraps it in paper, and labels, "Part of Mr. Smith's Ear, February, 1925." Then he looks the patient up and down, with the scissors in his hand, and if he is attracted by the appearance of a finger or a thumb, he clips it off and wraps it up. Now, this, oddly enough, is the very thing that fills the patient up with that sense of personal importance which is worth paying for.

"Yes," says the bandaged patient, later in the day, to a group of friends much impressed, "the doctor thinks there may be a slight anesthesia of the prognosis, but he's sent my ear to New York and my appendix to Baltimore and a lock of my hair to the editors of all the medical journals, and meantime I am to keep very quiet and not exert myself beyond drinking a hot Scotch with lemon and nutmeg every half-hour." With that he sinks back faintly on his cushions, luxuriously happy.

And yet, isn't it funny?

So you and I and the rest of us—as soon as we have a pain within us, rush for the doctor as fast as a taxi can take us. Yes, personally, I even prefer an ambulance with a bell on it. It's more soothing.

Week: "The Theory of Evolution."

The Suwanee River Flows Through Your Heart

SCIENCE, sentiment and a bit of fiction are engaged in wordy battle royal " 'way down upon de Suwanee Ribber, far, far away." Aggressive science threw down the gauntlet when members of the United States Geological Survey officially reported on that river, which rises in a swamp in Southern Georgia and flows through Northern Florida to empty into Suwanee Bay in the Gulf of Mexico.

These youthful observers reported that the Suwanee River was little more than a lazy, evil-smelling creek, where chills and fever hatched; a miasmatic, sluggish stream where mosquitoes bred and alligators dreamed beneath long beards of Spanish moss pendant from live-oak trees. They knew much of geometry and triangulation and calculus and logarithmic tables, but they hadn't a penetrating understanding of the human heart. Therefore, they had reckoned without "Roxey."

"Roxey" is Samuel Rothafel, announcer for the Capitol Theater, New York, which does its broadcasting through Station WEAF, operating by remote control. Before he became known to radio fans he was heralded by thousands upon thousands of motion-picture devotees for his "stage presentations" in that theater.

"Roxey" read and, it is to be assumed, he trembled in his wrath. But that trembling was as nothing to that which should have come upon the bold explorers of the Suwanee River had they known what was in store.

Out into the ether "Roxey" launched, in his boldest, freest style, a "presentation" of the Suwanee River.

"The Suwanee River," he said, "rises in the highest mountains of the human soul and is fed by the deepest springs of the human heart. It does not flow through the swampy regions of Florida, but through the pleasant, sunny lands of memory. It does not empty into a material sea, but into the glorious ocean of unfulfilled dreams.

"It laves the shores of childhood. Its current ripples with the low, sweet melody of recollections, softened and made misty by distance. There is such mystical power in its waters that whoever finds himself wearied and worn by the struggle of living has only to quaff and gain nepenthe.

"It is far, far away, but the heart is ever turning to it, because there's where the old folks stay. On its banks may be only a hut among the bushes, but the bees are still humming around it day by day and the banjo is still tumming there in the starlight. And so they will continue to do while memories of home and simple hopes and affections are the most prized possessions of mankind."

Rose curtains and a purple gelatine lamp could not give a softer glow to the picture than did "Roxey." Perhaps between the two reports lies the golden mean of truth.

The river that Stephen Collins Foster immortalized in his famous song wasn't the Suwanee River of Florida and Georgia at all. He just got that name from an almanac. Foster was the great national genius of American song. From materials of simple humanity he wove melodies which now, 61 years after his death, sweep concert audiences with applause when a Schumann-Heink or a Galli-Curci opens her throat to the first caressing notes.

Chief of them all was "The Suwanee River." But there were "My Old Kentucky Home," "O Susanna," "Massa's in de Cold, Cold Ground," "We're Coming, Father Abraham, One Hundred Thousand Strong," "Old Uncle Ned," "Old Black Joe," and scores of others. No other American has written airs with such a hold upon the popular American imagination.

Most of the best of them were associated with negro characters. That was because another American art-form—the old-time negro minstrelsy, which Edwin Forrest and Joseph Jefferson and Edwin Booth did not disdain—had traded Foster bread and drinks and a little more for his outpouring of song.

A strange and ill-starred genius, loving, simple-hearted, sincere, he wrote and drank and starved, and left to America its chief heritage of folk-song. Hardly even Edgar Allan Poe was less efficient than Foster as a business man. Two of his first songs, "The Louisiana Belle" and "Uncle Ned," Foster gave to Peters, the Cincinnati publisher, just because the latter admired them. From these and "O Susanna" Peters made $10,000. The author and composer must content himself with name and fame.

"The Suwanee River" had almost a like fate. E. P. Christy, founder of the famous Christy Minstrels, wanted an unpublished song to sing. Foster offered him "The Suwanee River" gratis, but his brother Morrison intervened and Christy was glad to pay a bonus of $500 for the song. It was published first as being Christy's work, both words and music, "As sung in Christy's Minstrels."

Brother Morrison, too, had a part in naming the song. Originally Foster wrote its opening words as:

"Way down upon de Pedee Ribber, Far, far away."

Notwithstanding that there was a Pedee River, running through North and South Carolina, though known in the former State as the Yadkin, there was neither dignity, sentiment nor music in the sound. It was not poetic, therefore, to his artist's ear; it didn't fit. Morrison Foster, having guided his brother through the channels of finance, now aided him in composition. Together they took down an almanac. Listed somewhere in its pages they found the Suwanee River, and though Stephen Foster spelled the word "Swanee," he made the name immortal.

What Foster knew of the South is problematical. Agnes Foster Crosby, in a study of the composer, has said that "except for pleasure trips on steamboats owned by his brother Dunning, Foster saw little and knew little of the South." His biographer, Harold Vincent Miller, has asserted that there is "absolutely no evidence" that the composer of "My Old Kentucky Home" was ever in Kentucky. The dialect he wrote in his minstrel songs probably was never heard among the ante-bellum slaves. But it served, and its spirit serves today, and it probably will be remembered in the hearts of singing men when the scientific observations of the Geological Survey lie musty, dusty and forgotten in archives at Washington.

Foster was born July 4, 1826, in the then frontier town of Pittsburg, Pa., and was the youngest of a family of seven. His father was Col. William Barclay Foster, who built his home at what is the corner of Penn and Butler streets in that city. His sister Eliza had a guitar on which as a child he picked out tunes, and there is a tradition reported in The Bookman of February, 1914, that once in a shop where his mother was making purchases Stephen's eye fell on a flagelot, with which he struggled until the 7-year-old youngster finally tootled out a version of "Hail, Columbia." Though his musical instruction was rudimentary, he had a genuine gift of melody and at 19 was using it to entertain the boys and girls who collected at "White Cottage," his father's hospitable home. At 25 Stephen was in New York and famous.

Foster had married in 1850 Jane McDowell, daughter of a Pittsburg physician, who had little sympathy with the hopes and dreams of her song-writing husband. Their life together was unhappy. Milligan in his biography repels the view that Foster's intemperance was a cause, suggesting that it came later. They separated after a daughter was born and he drifted into the old New York Bowery, living in a 25-cent lodging house, in which, as at a

With the frontier tween France Spain closely gu Ibanez, in Fr chartered two planes to carry co of his revoluti pamphlet into S Sometimes the p landed, near impor cities. At other t the booklets w tossed out a planes flew abov towns.

CAESAR had his Brutus, Charles the First his Cromwell and George the Third did not profit by their example, despite that famous speech of warning which Patrick Henry delivered in the Virginia House of Burgesses, in 1765.

And now Alfonso XIII of Spain, it appears, has his Vicente Blasco Ibanez.

The scathing denunciations which Novelist Ibanez launches against King Alfonso have as yet altered the course of history very little, if at all. Alfonso continues to be the Sovereign of Spain, that nation remains under the rule of the military directorate.

But the author of "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse" and other stories known to readers of fictional "best sellers" keeps up his activities as leader in the movement for a revolution in Spain, to abolish the monarchy and set up a republic.

Well-known novelist in exile, avowedly seeking to drive a King from his throne, the monarch sufficiently moved by the writer's stinging accusations to take formal steps for his punishment and to make bitter allusions to Ibanez, without naming him, in a banquet speech—such is the singular situation out of which historic events may proceed.

In one period of 24 hours last November there were three skirmishes between Spanish police or soldiers and small rebellious groups. A body of men headed for the military barracks at Barcelona, with bombs, were routed by the authorities. One policeman and two revolutionists were killed and several wounded. A fight between gendarmes and insurgents occurred at Irun, just across the Basque border from France, in which three were killed and many wounded.

And at another point on the frontier, 22 Spaniards were captured as they attempted to come in from France, with arms. Each of the men carried several automatics and a quantity of ammunition. Several of the men involved in the affairs were executed, and the world wondered if a revolution had begun in Spain.

Ibanez, at Paris, said that all these puny efforts had been made without the knowledge of the group of revolutionists with which he is associated, and that the attempts had been doomed to the failure which they encountered.

"I do not know the names of the conspirators," he remarked, "but I pity them. They are victims of their good faith and enthusiasm. They will be avenged.

"I do not abandon the game, but a revolution must be national or not at all. When a revolution breaks, the entire country must be backed by the army. It must break in Madrid, the heart of Spain. We shall be there. I ask a place in the front ranks. Whether we shall succeed or fail, time will decide."

Readers of the Post-Dispatch will remember a series of 10 articles by Ibanez which this paper published last November. Writing as an advocate of revolution, Ibanez pictured an unhappy, oppressed, impoverished, misgoverned Spain. He denounced the military directorate as more corrupt than the civil government which it superseded. He discussed with burning indignation the war against the Rif tribesmen in Morocco as an unnecessary adventure, undertaken for the military glory of Alfonso, which has lasted for 14 years, cost vast sums of money and the lives of 20,000 Spanish soldiers—and been a failure.

With special vehemence did he excoriate Alfonso, as incompetent, extravagant, crafty, treacherous and vain—a ruler who had associated on familiar terms with the proprietors of gambling casinos, who had been named in some ill-advised financial schemes, who, officially neutral during the World War, really was pro-German and permitted the Germans to maintain submarine bases along his coast, and to operate wireless stations.

Furthermore, Ibanez charged that two of the direst disasters to the Spanish forces in Morocco were due to the interference of Alfonso, the would-be great soldier, and that the military dictatorship was established with Alfonso's consent and even at his desire. Quite as roughly did the pamphleteer handle Gen. Primo de Rivera, head of the dictatorship, who was called "Alfonso's accomplice."

All these accusations, along with others, the gibes and sarcasms, the harsh adjectives and epithets of the 10 serial articles, have now been published in book form, under the title of "Alfonso XIII Unmasked—The Military Terror in Spain" (E. P. Dutton & Co.).

As before, the ringing climax is, "The King Must Go!"

In the comment evoked by the articles and fiery interviews of Ibanez, published in America and various European countries, dissenting voices were heard. Thus, James W. Gerard, former United States Ambassador to Germany, told New York newspaper men about an audience which he had with Alfonso, after this country had entered the war and Gerard had received his passports. Gerard quoted Alfonso as saying:

"Don't forget that I am an Austrian Grand Duke, and the son of an Austrian Grand Duke and Duchess. But I suppose you are curious to know where my sympathies are in the war. My sympathies are with France."

A vigorous defense of King Alfonso, published in La Nacion of Buenos Aires, has been written by M. Raymond Poincare, who was President of the French Republic during the World War and who twice has served as French Premier. M. Poincare says that the charges as to King Alfonso's having been pro-German in the war are utterly false. From the beginning of the war and throughout its duration, declares M. Poincare, France received uninterrupted proofs of King Alfonso's friendship.

The ruler of Spain said before the war, and the Spanish Ambassador repeated it at the time of the declaration of war, that France could leave her southern and southwestern frontiers without a single soldier to guard them, so that she might send every available man to the north and northeast, according to the article in La Nacion. Then M. Poincare adds that France, at any rate, is convinced that King Alfonso did for the allies all that lay in his power, considering the state of mind to which Spain had been brought at the time by means of the incessant pro-German propaganda.

The dramatic and the comic have been mingled in this crusade of a novelist against a King, this duel between pen and sword, with the wielder of the pen on the offensive—and very offensive indeed, at times, be it said.

For drama, consider the means whereby Ibanez conveyed copies of his incendiary book to readers in Spain. From his safe retreat in France the novelist had announced that a special edition of 2,000,000 copies would be distributed in his native land. What was described in cablegrams as "an army of volunteer smugglers" thereupon engaged in trying to carry the pamphlets across the Spanish frontier, which was closely guarded.

Two days after the effort began, Ibanez admitted that he was uncertain whether a single copy had yet crossed the Pyrenees. At the end of a week, however, he announced that "little by little," the books were getting into Spain, and that an immense number of Spa would be reach them.

This was late i vember of last and Ibanez seen to a more though costlier od of building circulation in Airplanes, with cargoes of pamphlets, took San Sebastian, Pampelune, Burgos, Vera, and other places, unloaded and returned to France. Sometimes the planes descended near a city, sometimes they flew over it and dropped the pamphlets. In huge letters on the wings, visible from the ground, one plane was labeled "Republic of Spain," and the other plane, "Liberty."

On Dec. 12 orders were issued at Madrid to shoot down any airplane crossing the Pyrenees, while Spanish destroyers patrolled the coast to prevent the books from brought into Spain by water.

In an interview at Nice, on Dec. 27, Ibanez

"I intend abandoning literature as long as Spanish situation remains intolerable. I am no tician but a patriotic kind of Don Quixote, save my country. I have spent 300,000 francs worth about $15,000) since the beginning of my paign against the King and the directorate weeks ago, and am prepared to spend my centime.

About this time Ibanez was invited to a d Senor Benigno Varella, editor of a royalist at Madrid—La Monarquia. The letter of cha was printed in the weekly, in Spanish, E French and Italian. Although he never has killed anyone, except in his vels, Ibanez is an experienced duelist. Varella's allenge was followed by others, with the prospect f still more, from royalist sympathizers. So Ibanez ecided he must draw a line as to such encounters.

In a special cable to the Post-Dispatch and New ork World, the novelist said:

"In my youth and when I was a journalist and litician in Spain I often fought duels as a result of y attacks on corruption. Twice I was seriously ounded and escaped death only by a hair's breadth. I do not need now to prove my courage by ac- pting a challenge from every swashbuckler in ain.

"If Victor Hugo could end 18 years in Guernsey, never ceasing his at- ck on Napoleon III, I can spend a few of my ars attacking Alfonso of Spain without listen- g to the howl of every cur at my heels."

Replying to accusations that he was a soviet gent, Ibanez said that he despised the soviet tyran- y "as much as Alfonso's." He declared himself to be a republican, "hoping to help Spain get rid of tyrants, develop schools, modernize the economic system and give the Spanish people a chance to develop and take due rank among the other peoples of Europe."

A comic incident in December was the order issued at Madrid which summoned Ibanez "to appear within 15 days from the publication of the edict" before a military Judge in Madrid, to give testimony regarding the pamphlets which he had caused to be distributed in Spain. This Spanish edition of the book was entitled, "A Nation Seized—The Militaristic Terror in Spain."

When informed at Paris of the edict, Ibanez laughed heartily and remarked:

"It is unnecessary to say that I shall not respond to the invitation. I would just as soon take refuge on a cannibal island or throw myself into waters inhabited by hungry crocodiles or famished sharks as to confide myself to the Government of bandits now ruling Spain."

Another incident with its amusing side occurred at Madrid, according to the correspondent of Le Matin, which is published at Paris. Admiral De Magaz, acting Spanish Premier during the absence of Primo de Rivera on a trip to Morocco, summoned the editors of the leading Spanish newspapers before him and appealed to them on the ground of patriotism to defend King Alfonso. The acting Premier stated that revolutionists were plotting abroad and were counting upon the support of the French Government.

"I do not ask you to attack France," Admiral De Magaz was quoted as saying. "I have called you together to ask you to defend the King, who represents the country. Attack us, if you like, for the censorship will henceforth be less severe, but defend the King."

The editors were taken aback by this announcement, according to Le Matin's account, and said nothing in reply except to bid the acting Premier a formal "good day."

And Madrid, or part of it, celebrated New Year's Eve by burning publicly as many books by Ibanez as could be gathered together for the purpose. Previously several pamphlets against Ibanez had appeared, one entitled "Enemies of the King" and another, "The Writer Who Sold His Country." The posters calling for the bonfire read:

"On New Year's Eve there will be an Auto de Fe with the books of the miserable scribbler, Ibanez. We are ransacking the bookshops for all unsold copies and invite everybody having a copy to bring his novels and throw them on the fire on the Castellana promenade at the foot of the statue of that beacon of Spanish thought, Emilio Castelar."

The Ibanez book attacking King Alfonso was the subject of a letter to the military directorate from the Permanent Committee and Council of the Grandees of Spain. The letter concluded as follows:

"The committee complies with its duty in setting forth its feelings and thoughts about this pamphlet. The committee cannot explain this unfortunate temporary insanity of a Spaniard who does not merit his citizenship. From acts such as his, decent people always turn with repugnance."

On Jan. 10 came the news that Ibanez would be prosecuted in France, where he makes his home in a villa at Mentone, on the Riviera. The Minister of Justice instructed the Public Prosecutor to begin proceedings against the Spanish author on the charge of an offense against a foreign sovereign. The publisher of the book also was to be prosecuted. These proceedings were instituted at the request of the Spanish embassy, submitted to the French Government. Soon it became evident that the French officials were in an embarrassing position. The Herriot Government needed the support of the Socialists to remain in power, and all the 105 Socialist members of Parliament pledged themselves to vote for a bill introduced which would repeal the law under which the prosecution of Ibanez was begun.

Just 10 days after proceedings were started, Premier Herriot announced in the Chamber of Deputies that the charges of lese majeste against Ibanez had been dropped.

"The King of Spain has decided not to ask France to bring Ibanez to trial," the Premier stated, "and I thank him for proof of his liberalism."

The real causes of King Alfonso's decision, said rumor, were the indignation aroused in France over the prosecution and the announced intention of Ibanez to employ the witness stand as a platform from which he could renew his charges.

King Alfonso made his retorts, and bitter ones they were, at a banquet which was given in his honor by the municipality of Cordova. Alluding to the campaign against him "in certain quarters," Alfonso said:

"I have always done my duty, and that is a deep satisfaction for my conscience. I count on my people, and assure you that the King will die at his post, and that mud will not soil him.

"When in Morocco men are fighting and dying under the flag, the man who defames them is a traitor to his country. A man must go out there and face death before defaming those who are fighting, those who are suffering.

"My officers have been calumniated when the cemeteries of Morocco are full of those who gloriously shed their blood and gave their lives. Such calumnies cannot remain unpunished. He who so speaks outside Spain, and who has on no occasion risked his life for her, is an enemy to his flag.

"May God be pleased to enlighten this bad patriot and pardon him the wrong done to Spain."

Ibanez made a tart reply, in which he referred to Alfonso as "this crowned liar," and, as to the fact that Ibanez never has shed his blood for Spain, inquired when he could have done so.

"When has Spain been invaded and when have the Spanish people been obliged to take up arms to defend the integrity of their territory?"

Probably it would be beneath royal dignity to bandy epithets with a disloyal subject, although the Cordova speech proves that King Alfonso does not lack strong language. And reports from Mentone state that the crusading novelist is guarded day and night by detectives, in fear of a plot by revengeful adherents of the Spanish monarchy.

How the Girl Detective Trapped "The

Like a romantic figure of fiction Polly Carr, the "Swan-Neck Beauty," queen of Europe's underworld, has flitted across the paths of the world's shrewdest detectives, baffling them, laughing at them, and proceeding from one amazing criminal coup to another—At last a girl detective, who had served as a housemaid in the home of a master criminal, accidentally spilled a bottle of ink, and the Swan bent her beautiful throat to the inevitable—A true detective story taken from international police files :-:

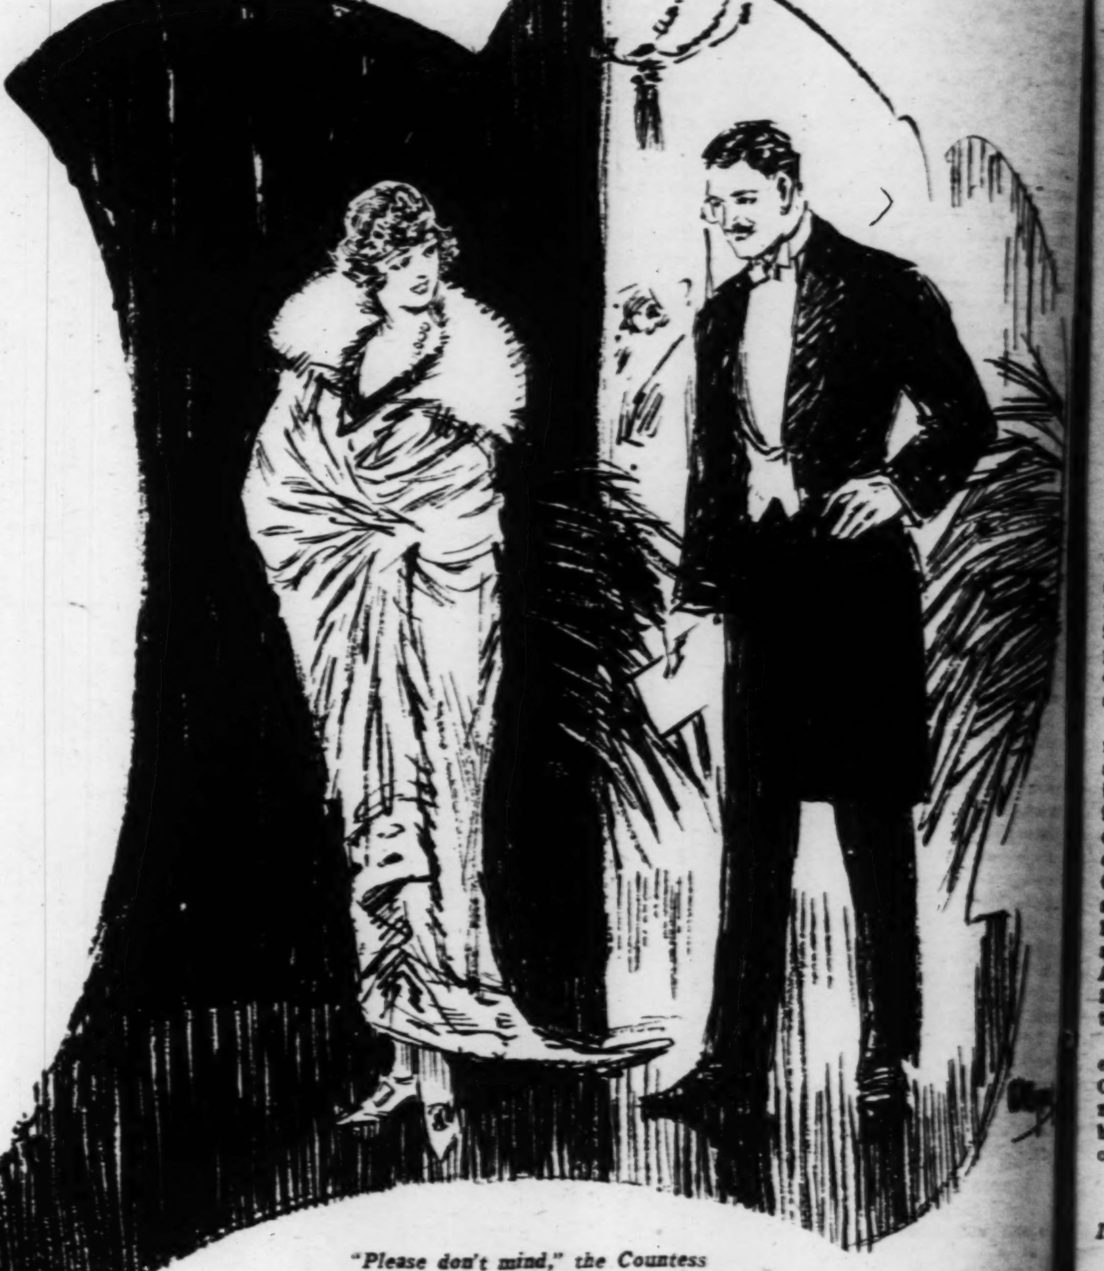
By ELEANORE BROWNE.

THIS is precisely what happened on the night of the costume ball at the Paris home of Henri Roupin in the Bois de Boulogne: At 10 o'clock the young and romantically interesting Baron Henri de Rothschild, scion of the banking family, arrived at the Roupin mansion and proceeded at once to pay his respects to his equally young and interesting hostess, an English girl newly married to the rich Monsieur Roupin.

The arrival of the Baron at a social affair is something of an event. He has a knack of saying things that bring a flush into the cheeks of his hostess of the evening. When he found the young Madame Roupin, whose fresh British beauty was a by-word in Paris, he kissed her fingers with elaborate enthusiasm.

"Madame is clever," the Baron said, his gaze caressing the loveliness of the slender bride. "Others ornament their beauty with jewels that blind the eyes to imperfections. Madame alone is bold enough to give us the lily without a gilding!"

"Whatever you mean," Madame replied, "it must be one of your delicious gallantries. But I've given you no lilies and I wouldn't gild the lily if I did."



"Please don't mind," the Countess murmured. "Go at once. I am shocked. You will be clever enough to find them, I am sure."

"Your throat, Madame! It is the most beautiful lily that grows. And you alone, of all your guests, scorn to decorate it with a jewel."

The Baron responded to his openings with enchanting grace.

"Your throat, Madame! It is the most beautiful lily that grows. And you alone, of all your guests, scorn to decorate it with a jewel. The result: ah, Madame! It is you, and not your gems, who are ravishing!"

It was now 10 minutes past 10 o'clock. The Baron de Rothschild has a charming manner of paying his flatteries slowly, as if only after due deliberation.

Madame Roupin, laughing gayly, but puzzled, put an exquisite hand to the white throat of which the Baron spoke. It was an unconscious gesture that suddenly became frantic. Surprise, alarm, dismay paraded in Madame's eyes. Her pearls, a famous long rope that Monsieur Roupin had purchased from a Prince of the Bonaparte family and which were souvenirs of the Empress Josephine, were gone!

It was all very well for the Baron de Rothschild, the most accomplished gallant in Paris, to pay compliments to her undecorated throat. Madame was young and romantic, and even a bride may appreciate the thrill in an enthusiastic regard by experienced Monsieur le Baron. But, really, she had worn her pearls. Secretly, that was why she and her husband had arranged the lavish dinner dance at their mansion as one of the notable social functions of the Ste. Catherine festival season. It was the first time she had exhibited the gorgeous necklet in her own ballroom.

The Baron was alert, considerate. The Josephine pearls were valued at $300,000.

"At once!" he exclaimed. "To your boudoir. Be certain that you did not leave them on your dressing table. Summon the servants, also."

It had now become a quarter past 10. At that moment, according to records compiled afterwards by the police when the hunt for the Josephine pearls began to proceed across Europe and America, Deputy Inspector Labouche, detailed to inspect all arriving and departing guests at the Roupin mansion, to make sure that none with credentials which were not faultless should be admitted, was fumbling his words and his manners before a charming young person whose invitation card had identified her, when she arrived earlier in the evening, as the Countess de Clairmonte. The Countess, it seemed, was going along to another social function. Inspector Labouche had, himself, gone out into the Bois to summon the chauffeur for Madame la Comtesse. She was of the fragile, superlative sort for whom Inspectors of Police do almost anything.

"Thank you, so much!" the Countess said, with a delightful English accent. She smiled her reward. "Dreadfully sorry that I must be going; Madame Roupin has triumphed tonight. But I am promised also at the Ste. Catherine dance at the Ritz."

Inspector Labouche was not unaccustomed to the smiles of women. In his notebook there were half a hundred—blackmailers, shoplifters, badgers and thieves' consorts—who smiled fulsomely upon him whenever he had a notion to kick in their doors and look them over. But the gracious smile of the Countess de Clairmonte, a reminiscent breath from the fragrance of past royalty, laved him with a new and most agreeable warmth. Countesses, especially those who are slight, with alabaster skins and eyes that hide the mysteries of a thousand rendezvous, do not often smile upon mere Police Inspectors.

Labouche struggled with his social manners, and was interrupted by an excited butler, who touched him on the arm.

"Quick!" the flunky exclaimed. "Madame requires you without delay. Her pearls—the Josephine pearls—they are stolen!"

The Inspector apologized abrutly to the Countess de Clairmonte. In the presence of a startling robbery in the home he had been detailed to gu policeman had no time for politeness.

"Please don't mind," the Countess murmured at once. I am shocked. You will be clever to find them, I am sure. I shall telephone my dolence to Madame Roupin the moment I reach Ritz. Bon soir, M'sieur le Inspector!"

* * * * * *

Deputy Inspector Labouche had arrived at conclusions. The Josephine pearls had been from Madame's throat. At a quarter to 10 Monsieur Roupin, Madame's adoring husband, himself remarked them upon his wife's throat. that time she had happened to be standing tall, gilt, empire clock. He had almost ly noted the hour. Baron de Rothschild was that he had arrived at precisely 10.

For all such circumstances there is an police rule. Every guest, highest as well as lowest, is a police question mark. Inspector bouche ordered his assistants to close all exits the house. To Madame Roupin he made his gy for the necessities of the occasion.

"Your guests, Madame! They will None must leave for the present. They will gracefully to interrogations and—if need be ment in private with my assistants. I shall a woman to interview the ladies. Fortunately of Madame's guests has left the house. Except is, one whom we may, for the moment, above the requirement of an interrogation— la Comtesse de Clairmonte. She left but a minutes ago."

Madame Roupin wrinkled her brow.

"But the Comtesse Clairmonte, Inspector! not be. Madame la Comtesse is ill in her was not present this evening."

Inspector Labouche's brow was next to But he flung his words sharply. "Please scribe the Comtesse de Clairmonte. Was she rather tall, of an extreme prettiness, with a and neck that reminds of"——

Inspector Labouche stopped short, his unfinished. His eyes widened into a fascinated pregnant with sudden memory. Madame was ing her head. The Inspector almost shouted

"Is it that your Madame la Comtesse de monte possesses a neck like that of a swan?"

"Oh, no, Inspector!" Madame returned, a little, despite her consternation at the loss of pearls. "The Countess is not at all like what a swan. She is quite the opposite. But why, sieur le Inspector?"

"The Swan," Underworld's Queen

Labouche, a noted policeman, who seldom made mistakes, was as if suddenly overwhelmed by inner dejection. "Proceed with your ball," he said to Madame Roupin. "It will not be necessary to discommode your guests. I shall ask you to give me only their names. I know who has your pearls."

Half after 10 o'clock had come and gone, but according to the time stamp on the documents which record the next police event of the evening, it was barely half an hour later, a little past 11, when Deputy Inspector Labouche sat with Chief Inspector Pierre Maxim, then famous as the best official match in Europe for the brains of criminal adventurers, in the latter's cabinet.

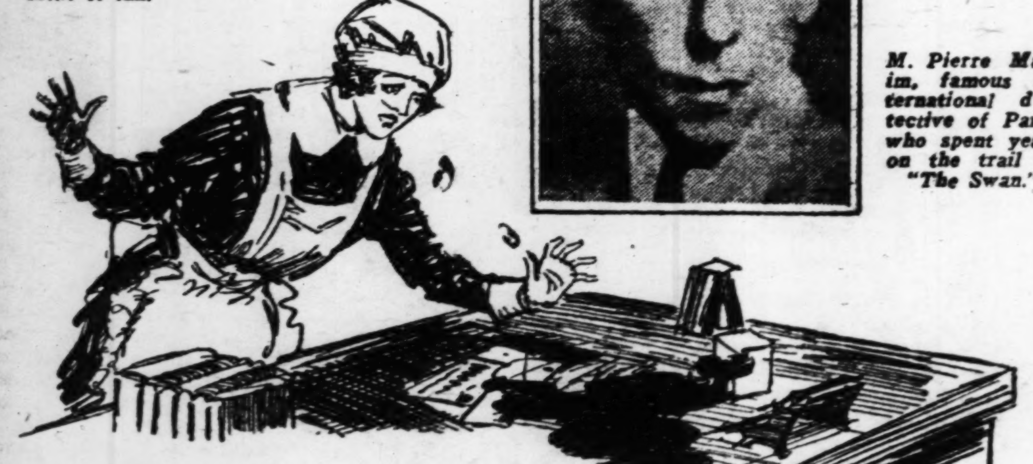
"There is no doubt at all," Labouche reported. "It was 'The Swan.' She has pulled our noses. Pulled mine, at any rate. Mon Dieu! I actually called her car!" It is not written in the records, but there is little doubt that Inspector Maxim smiled slyly. Polly Carr, who was once a flower girl, but became the acknowledged queen of Europe's thieves once upon a time had pulled his nose, also.

Fiction presents many heroines of crime shaped after Polly Carr, whose fragile fingers and nimble brains have ruled the underworld of Europe during the years since the World War. Her's has been a shadowy, elusive figure flitting across the police perspective as romantically as the imaginative heroines patterned after her have flitted through the pages of novelists. Her adventures have been one of the most carefully guarded of international police secrets.

It was Augustus John, the great artist, who first noticed the extraordinary beauty of the flower girl at London's railway station. He persuaded her to become his model, and by him she was immortalized in many masterpieces. From London's studios she disappeared suddenly. Not long afterwards rumors came out of the underworld of France, England and Germany of the beautiful young girl who directed amazing jewelry coups; who had gather around her the most sinister thieves of the Continent; who appeared one night to administer discipline in an Apache den in Paris, and the next as a guest at a ball in London's Picadilly, and who was always referred to as "The Swan-neck Beauty."

It was said that no one with an artistic eye who ever studied the graceful, symmetrical lines of Polly Carr's throat, could forget their suggestion of the majestic grace of the swan. Deputy Inspector Labouche was an artist at heart. The charming throat of the "Countess de Clairmonte" had fascinated him. The loss of a rope of priceless pearls identified the owner of that throat at once.

In her temper she upset the master's bottle of ink.



That "The Swan" should stop for a chat with a Police Inspector while she was emerging from the Roupin mansion with the Josephine pearls doubtless wrapped about her garter, was not considered extraordinary. Labouche recalled that the supposed "Countess" had deliberately dropped her mask and opened her wrap. Her decolette display was intentional, with the fixed purpose of being recognized afterwards. That was like The Swan. She had done that before.

To The Swan's counterparts in fiction this daring gesture would be credited as sheer bravo—the bravo that enjoys pulling the official noses of the police. Both Inspectors Maxim and Labouche knew that Polly would not waste bravo. They saw a purpose carefully planned. She wanted Labouche to know, as soon as she had escaped, who had stolen the Josephine pearls. And by this purpose of The Swan's the police knew that unless they were on her trail within a few hours she would again slip through their fingers and, safe from arrest, lift her glass to them in some fashionable restaurant; perhaps invite them to have a cocktail and hear from her own lips how she had secured the credentials of the real Countess de Clairmonte, who was ill at her home.

Once before The Swan had shown her fancy for pearls by disappearing from a fashionable ballroom with a famous collection—taken from a cabinet in the home of a London hostess. That time, also, she permitted herself to be recognized. Consequently, the police knew The Swan had the jewels, and, too, how difficult it would be to find them. They could not object when, after a few days, the owner was given opportunity, through mysterious messengers, to recover them for a substantial sum of money. They were compelled to advise the hostess, who wanted her pearls more than she wanted justice settled upon the thief, that the police might catch The Swan, but that would not insure that the pearls, also, would be discovered. So Polly got the huge ransom, which satisfied her for an evening's work; the pearls were returned and there was no one to prosecute The Swan. Inspector Maxim believed this would be Polly's procedure with the Josephine pearls. Until she was ready to act she would be safe in some underworld harbor, guarded by thieves' outposts, unreachable.

Inspector Labouche, at that meeting with his superior, a half-hour after the disappearance of the Josephine pearls, was gloomy. "She will beat us again, Chief," he said to Inspector Maxim. And Inspector Maxim was of much the same mind. "Unless something happens that we can't expect," he returned, "Madame Roupin will have her ornaments within a week, Polly will have $50,000 or so, and the Madame will notify us that it was all a mistake; that she has found her pearls under the carpet or in a fireplace. But something will happen to The Swan."

"The Swan" (Polly Carr), beautiful queen of Europe's underworld, as she was when, as an artist's model, she first attracted the attention of Geo. Kemp, master criminal.

M. Pierre Maxim, famous international detective of Paris, who spent years on the trail of "The Swan."

And something did.

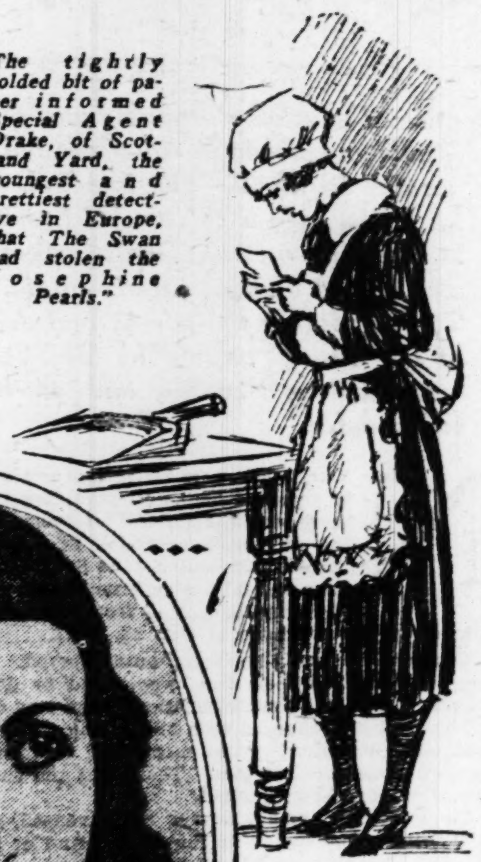
Inspector Maxim set in motion the customary police wheels. Meanwhile, The Swan, who had actually gone to the Hotel Ritz, the most fashionable hotel in Paris, from the Roupin mansion, was safe in her apartments there—the last place in Europe the police would look for her!

When the telegram from the Paris police announcing the theft, and the supposed identity of the thief, arrived at Scotland Yard, in London, it was immediately spread before the Commissioner himself. The Commissioner had taken a personal interest in reports of the activities of Polly Carr. He had confessed that he had some private theories which he was working out in secret.

Soon after daylight the next morning an Inspector attached to the Commissioner's confidential staff, hovered aimlessly across from a substantial residence in Upper Marelybone street, one of the quiet residence streets of London. A maid servant shortly appeared with her pail and brush to perform her morning duties to the white stone steps that led to the foyer of the house on the other side of the street from the Commissioner's confidential inspector.

The latter took a turn about and sauntered past the house. The busy maid did not notice him, nor did he give her more attention than early pedestrians give to the white-capped servants who make London's door steps spotless against the coming forth of the master after breakfast. The young maid, from under whose cap wisps of brown hair threatened to escape, finished her polishing of the steps, regarded them with satisfaction, picked up from the little square of lawn a few fallen leaves, some bits of paper that had blown in from the street, some other litter that didn't belong on the grass, and went into the house. The casual pedestrian continued his sauntering until he came to a subway going the opposite direction from Scotland Yard.

The tightly folded bit of paper informed Special Agent Drake, of Scotland Yard, the youngest and prettiest detective in Europe, that The Swan had stolen the Josephine Pearls."



Inside the house the maid properly disposed of her pail and brush and deposited her litter in the scullery can. Not even a close observer would have missed one of the bits of paper she had gathered up from the lawn that flanked the front steps—the tightly folded bit which she kept in her hand and which, later in the morning, when she had opportunity to unfold it, informed Special Agent Drake of Scotland Yard, the youngest and prettiest detective in Europe, that The Swan had stolen the Josephine pearls in Paris at 10 o'clock the night before. Special Agent Drake's brown eyes sparkled with the eagerness of a patient hunter come upon a new scent. The sparkle went out of them, however, and the dullness of a housemaid's outlook upon her work-a-day domain was in them when the master, Mr. Kemp, a retired business man of some sort, came down to his breakfast.

George Kemp, retired business man of some sort, was, it may be said, the undisputed master criminal of the world. Again, in him was personified the intriguing personality so often met with in the imaginings of fiction. It has been estimated that George Kemp controlled at one time a fortune of $25,000,000—the proceeds of gigantic robberies that mystified Europe and America. Yet no crook was ever seen in his presence, and the visitors to his imposing mansion in Upper Marelybone street were men of literature, artists and other retired business men. But it had been George Kemp who took pretty Polly Carr out of the studio of Augustus John and sent her forth, his chief representative, into the underworld. Of George Kemp there will be another story to tell, after a while.

For more than two years Special Agent Drake of Scotland Yard had capably performed her duties in the Kemp residence, during the first year as scullery maid; then, having earned her promotion by her knack of learning what to do and how to do it, as parlor maid; and, for the last few months, in the most coveted post in the British home, as upstairs maid. As upstairs maid "Bertha" was closer to the master; closer to his personal belongings, and to his moods and his letters and telegrams. Scotland Yard badly wanted those letters and telegrams watched. In them, hidden somehow, was the secret of Kemp's method of sending forth his commands to the "Apaches" and "escrooks" and "evening-clothes" thieves, who maneuvered for him stupendous jewel

The Charge of the St. Louis Light B de "Re

Demise of man who probably was the sole survivor of "Zagonyi's Ride to Death" recalls an episode in American military history, and in Missouri, which has no parallel for thrill—The late Col. Henry E. Dosch of Portland, Ore., formerly of St. Louis, rode with General Fremont's Bodyguard in the wild assault of 150 St. Louisans on 2200 Confederates at Springfield, and received two wounds—It was a mad charge, utterly unmilitary, and yet it was an amazing success, the Guards routing the enemy and driving them from their stronghold—"The Story of the Guard" as told by Mrs. Jessie Benton Fremont, daughter of Missouri's most famous Senator, and an account of the daredevil incident by the commander.

NAMES they were called that are not to be reported here. "Tin soldiers" may have been the mildest of them. Yet, 150 strong, these young St. Louisans charged and routed 2200 Southern soldiers and in that baptism of fire wrested Springfield, Mo., from Confederate control on the afternoon of Oct. 25, 1861.

Fourteen to one they were outnumbered. The lane, down which they rode, was raked by deadly cross-fire from the Southern rifles. They tore down a fence and they charged up a hill, crying, "For Fremont and the Union!" The enemy fled before them through Springfield streets. There was the sudden fire of snipers, soon quieted.

Then at the Courthouse they rendezvoused, since they were in possession of the town. And of their 150 but 70 men were left on horseback.

Scarcely a fortnight later they were back in St. Louis, their pay withheld, denied their rations, refused fodder for their horses.

That is the story of Fremont's bodyguard—an officers' reserve training corps created here in St. Louis 56 years before its time. Its story is at once one of the brightest and one of the darkest of America's war history.

At Grand Army department headquarters, 19 South Broadway, there is no record of the organization or its members. His bodyguard passed from Missouri history when Gen. John C. Fremont was superseded as commander of the Western Department of the Union Army, on Nov. 2, 1861.

But most of its members, although two-thirds of them were foreign-born, re-entered in some form the Union service. One of them, Col. Henry E. Dosch, died the other day in Portland, Ore. With his drooping military moustache, his white goatee and his straight, soldierly carriage, he was a picturesque and a prominent figure in the life of that city. There was little trace of a limp, though he had been wounded in the right leg and the right wrist when Zagonyi and the Fremont Bodyguard charged the Confederate force at Springfield.

Col. Dosch, born in Germany, had been a clerk in a malt house in St. Louis just prior to the Civil War, and cast his fortunes with the Union. After the bodyguard was disbanded he re-enlisted in the Fifth Missouri Cavalry, and, transferred by the fortunes of war and the force of his own valor, was discharged in 1863 as a Colonel. He made his way from St. Louis across the plains, rode for the pony express between the rich mining camp of Virginia City, Nev., and Lake Tahoe, a distance of 33 miles he must make in three hours' riding. There he grew to know Mark Twain, then a reporter for the Virginia City Enterprise, whose greeting was: "Any news on the run today?" Thence Col. Dosch went on to California and later into Oregon, where, at The Dalles, center of the mining industry of the Northwest, it was his task to weigh in the gold dust the miners brought. Thence he went on to the gold diggings at Canyon City, where his next-door neighbor was Joaquin Miller, "poet of the Sierras," then a County Judge unknown to fame. After four years Col. Dosch went to Portland, to become associated with the city's development and to be active in the circles of the Grand Army, of which he was department commander. In 1905 he served as director-general of the Lewis and Clark Exposition at Portland. His was a life of pioneering adventure, but in it no page shows with greater brilliance than that which records the afternoon of Oct. 25, 1861, when he participated in and was wounded in "Zagonyi's Ride to Death."

Junius Henri Browne, famous war correspondent of the New York Tribune, who visited Springfield immediately after Zagonyi's charge, gave it that name. Gen. Fremont, writing from his field headquarters, immediately after, called the ride of his bodyguard "really a Balaklava charge." But Missouri had no poet to write a galloping verse to the measure of "half a league onward."

The late Col. Henry E. Dosch of Portland, Ore., formerly of St. Louis, twice wounded in "Zagonyi's Ride to Death" and believed to have been the last survivor of the 150 daredevil young St. Louisans who took part in that thrilling charge.

Time has closed over misunderstandings, which were many, yet there can be no questioning that the Fremont bodyguard was most unpopular. It wasn't liked at home, partly because it was composed so largely of the foreign-born. It wasn't liked in Washington because it was Fremont's, and sie Benton Fremont had not quite forgiven her distinguished father for his refusal to vote for Fremont for the presidency. She, too, had a mind of her own.

Fremont took command in St. Louis July 25, 1861. He immediately began centralizing martial activities. The Brant Mansion on the south side of Chouteau avenue, between Eighth and Paul streets, was his headquarters. Nearby was the MacDowell Medical College, war hospital and prison. About them centered the local army life.

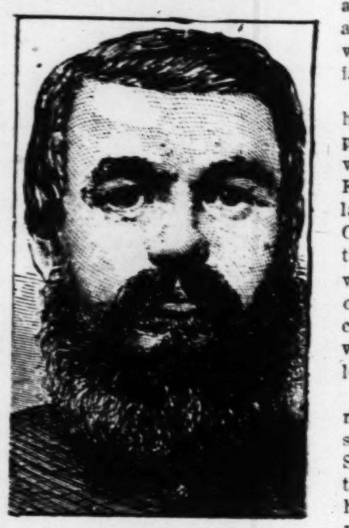
Into that life came the young men of Gen. Fremont's bodyguard, who were chosen, as Mrs. Fremont wrote in her memorial e, "The Story of the Guard," with the pur- f "forming a school for cavalry officers, from , as regiments were raised, instructed offi- were to be taken and which could at the time be the nucleus for a regiment itself." eir chief was Maj. Charles Zagonyi. He was fearless, devoted and generous. In the Hungarian revolt of 1848 he twice had risked his life to save Gen. Josef Bem, one of Louis Kossuth's chief officers, at the battle of Hermanstadt.

Mrs. Fremont has left a portrait of his spirit, rather than of the man, for she told his story of the guard as it was revealed by reports from the scene of battle, or as he, in naive and broken English, told the tale. His men were armed with sabers, Beale's revolvers and a Colt's revolving carbine, the stock attachment of the latter being discarded when they rode on their famous charge.

There are hints that the social life which centered about the old Brant Mansion was cause for criticism. Like a minor strain, these—echoed from newspapers and other comment of the time—run through "The Story of the Guard." Perhaps it is significant that she observes: "It had got to be one of our habits to have tea in Russian fashion." And from chatty, informal letters from their camp young members of the guard wrote contrasting soldier life with "Oriental" luxury of which they evidently had been accused.

Sept. 26 Fremont and his men left St. Louis, moving to Jefferson City. The commander planned to sweep Gen. Sterling Price out of Missouri into Arkansas, to carry on to Memphis and thence down the Mississippi to attack New Orleans. But already he had issued his "Emancipation Proclamation," which, although the forerunner of national policy later in the war, had been countermanded by Lincoln, and already he had aroused enmity in Washington by his failure to drive Price out of Missouri after the battle of Wilson Creek, in which Gen. Nathaniel Lyon had gallantly lost his life.

Mrs. Fremont saw the bodyguard at Jefferson City. "Nearest the staff," she wrote, "the guard stood drawn up in open square. They justified all Zagonyi had said of them. All of nearly the same age and height, with great similarity of habits and education, and all guided by the same enthusiasm. Their compact, unadorned uniform of dark blue gave depth of tone to the picture as they stood relieved against the setting sun and the nearer groundwork of autumnal foliage."



Maj. Charles Zagonyi, commander of Fremont Bodyguard.

Perhaps a mother's heart as well as a wifely pride speaks in the words of that picture. For her son "Charley," later Rear Admiral John Charles Fremont, although but 10 years old, was with the guard, not officially attached, of course, but messing with his father and learning to be a soldier.

In early October Fremont started his army southward toward Springfield to give battle to Price, who, with his Confederate forces, was on the Osage River. There are hints to his wife that Fremont felt ill-equipped for the adventure he had undertaken. There are continual appeals to her for supplies and regiments. Already he was feeling the pressure of enmity and distrust. To the charge that Fremont dallied he interposed that interference prevented him from getting what he needed. His armies moved to Camp Asboth, near Tipton, and then on Warsaw, where they built a bridge to cross the Osage River.

They were at Yost's Station on Oct. 24, when Zagonyi, from some scouts, learned that there were 300 or 400 Confederates at Springfield. Twice he begged permission of Gen. Fremont to let him go forward and attack. At last it was granted. But Zagonyi must take some of Maj. White's Prairie Scouts and leave one of his own officers behind. Lieut. Kennedy, when detailed to remain, pleaded with tears and at last Gen. Fremont let all go.

They rode all night in cold and rain. There wasn't an overcoat in the guard. Between 9 o'clock and 5 the next morning they had covered 25 miles. Dawn found them pushing on. An hour before noon they were eight miles from Springfield. There they were told the enemy was 1900 strong. Zagonyi dispatched men to Gen. Fremont and Gen. Franz Sigel asking reinforcements: "Should I be successful I need them to hold the place; should I be defeated, to have some troops to fall back with my worn-out command."

> "Theirs not to reason why, > Theirs but to do or die"— wrote Tennyson of the Light Brigade at Balaklava. But these unsung heroes had time to think it over. Zagonyi repelled the accusation that his charge was rash.

"How was it possible to say so?" he said to Mrs. Fremont. "From 11:30 until 4:30 we knew we were to meet 1900 men (but in reality 2200). That was time enough to reconsider and cool down every rashness. Blood cools in five hours. It is so."

They swung from the Bolivar road to the Osceola road and then across to the Mount Vernon. Maj. White of the Union force and his scouts, through a misunderstanding of orders, became separated from them. At 4 p. m. they reached what Zagonyi calls the highest point of the Ozarks. No enemy was in sight. Zagonyi now told his men that they were to face an enemy of nearly 2000. If any were sick or tired from their ride of 56 miles they might step out. Every man of the 150 stood by.

They started onward toward the enemy, down a woodsy slope, the bright autumnal sunshine fluttering the gold and red of maple leaf and oak like banners of death and glory.

"I made them known," said Zagyoni in his quaint speech, "that this day I want to fight the first and last hard battle, so that if they meet us again they shall know with whom they have to do and remember the bodyguard. And ordered quick march."

"I say, thank God, if I am to fight, it is 1900 and not 400!" the leader speaks again. "It is possible no man will come back. No man will go that thinks the enemy too many.

"The guard that follow me will take for battle cry, 'Fremont and the Union—and—CHARGE!' "

And with that cry the gallant band swept onward.

They had come to a lane down which they must charge. Suddenly from either side Confederate soldiers, about 500 in number, rising from behind trees and fences, raked their ranks with merciless crossfire.

In the 200 yards that they must travel under that galling fire 39 men fell—killed, wounded or their horses shot from under them.

They came to a creek. Zagonyi cried aloud: "If I could send somebody back I would give my life. We are lost here if they don't follow."

Majthenyi, his Adjutant, heard. Fearing he would be sent back he jumped from his horse and started to open up the rail fence that blocked their way to the hill above, where 1700 more Confederates were pouring lead down in amongst them. Others followed his example, and the way was opened. Again the battle cry: "For Fremont and the Union!" and the Fremont bodyguard pushed forward.

Capt. Nehall's company of 47 men attacked the Southern infantry, 500 or 600 strong. The others pressed on against the cavalry with a rush that was irresistible. Later the Confederates reported, as they believed, they had been driven forth from Springfield by 2500 Union men.

In three minutes up that hill the enemy ranks were broken. Infantry retreated to the thick wood. Cavalry scattered in every direction. These soldiers of the horse, as they halted to rally, were attacked again and again by squads of the bodyguard and put to flight.

"Our men," said Zagonyi, "were so much emboldened that 20 or 30 attacked 20 or 30 times their numbers."

There were Confederates not less brave. One, single-handed, in a narrow lane, sought to cut his way through 60 of Zagonyi's men, and finally reached the bodyguard's commander. But his shot missed, by the movement of his horse, though his

"Have you arrested—it, Bart?" Foxhall asked.
"Give her to me," said Marcia, peremptorily.

LIZ FRED and Liz Henry were finally to go to the poorhouse. For 15 years, since Fred and Henry Port had died, leaving their wives penniless, Katytown had watched the struggles of the two women to hold the tiny mortgaged white house in which all four had lived. Katytown had helped all that it could—had given work and sent in food and paid taxes and even made a benefit—but now the two aging women could bear the burden no longer, and the first of the new year the house was to be sold for debt.

"And, darling," said Foxhall Phelps, "it's exactly what we'll want—that little house. Knock out a partition or two, throw up a chimney outside, build in some bookcases and swing in a few casement windows—can't you see? With a period paper on the wall?" "Yes," said Marcia, "I can see it."

They went together to see the house the week before it was to be sold and two months before they were to be married. Four small rooms and a passage, a good doorway and two sloping chambers filled them with delight. But this was all the delight they had.

Liz Henry received them. In a village sufficiently sophisticated to have indignations and yet rarely to know ennui, Liz Henry was a bore. For 30 years she had bored Katytown to tears. She always told about her relatives and her maladies—they were all that she had, so this was natural, but it was tiring.

"Evenin', Marcia; evenin', Foxhall," Liz Henry said. "Pretty good, I guess. Only m' feet been troublin' me some. M' feet"—— She was off.

Liz Fred came in. She was younger—hardly more than 60. She was really younger because she was more detached—could hear herself speaking, could laugh at herself.

"Do shut up about your feet," she said, kindly, to her sister-in-law. "They'd rather hear about my back—I know they would." She had a gentle, twisted smile.

They told her that they had come to look at the house.

Instantly, over both women there settled something like a fine white ash, dimming expression, even features.

"I'll show you over," said Liz Fred.

Liz Henry began to talk. "We both come here brides," she said. "We each had and lost two little children here. Don't it seem funny—if those four little things had been spared, we might not be going—where we're going."

"Shucks. They might all have been in jail," said Liz Fred.

"Two of them were girls," Liz Henry reminded her with dignity, as if jails were for gentlemen.

"Well, they might have inherited your feet," said Liz Fred, "and my back," she added.

"I wouldn't be sacrilegious," said Liz Henry, sharply.

"I would," said Liz Fred, "that much."

"This room in blue and that one in yellow," Marcia said, softly.

"With Aunt Julia's old mahogany," Foxhall added, in deep content.

"And this adorable stairway, hung with Japanese prints"——

Ashamed, she turned to the women to admire a fuchsia.

"We'll give you that when we go," Liz Fred said, graciously.

There was a knocking as they reached the lower floor, and in the doorway bulked Luther Falk, the Katytown drayman.

"Come for the stuff," said he.

Liz Henry cried, "Oh—oh"—long and quavering, like an owl's cry. Liz Fred said sharply: "Tonight?"

"I thought—you wasn't to come for that till after New Year's," Liz Henry faltered.

"I'm goin' up-State for Noo Year's," said Luther Falk, stolidly, "so they said to take 'em now. I'm to cart 'em to a rummage sale in town. The stoves and beds I can get when I come back, after you're"—— He paused delicately.

Liz Henry continued to cry like an owl and clung to Marcia. "The farewell night was going to be bad enough," Liz Henry said. "Now it'll last the week."

From that room Luther Falk took the table, the three cane-seated chairs, the plush couch, the braided rugs and the rocker with the strata of shawls. "Anythin' more?" said he. "I'll take the dinin'-room duffel out the back door."

"Sure you can," said Liz Fred, and closed the door upon him. "Shut up, Liz," she observed. "I'm glad to see the old truck go."

"But what will you do?" Marcia demanded, "all the rest of this week?"

"Eat on the lamp shelf," said Liz Fred. "Bad on the feet and on the back—but grand for the digestion."

"We like it very much—the house," Marcia said, hurriedly. "We've talked with Ben Tilson—we'll let him know what we decide.

"And if we do take it," Marcia went on, "I hope you'll both come and spend Sunday with us sometimes"——

Her words dwindled before the tragedy in Liz Fred's eyes.

"I couldn't help remembering," she said. And abruptly she, too, began to cry—cruel, choking sobs. Without a word she opened the door for them, one workworn hand covering her eyes. But when Liz Henry heightened her owl-like wailing, Liz Fred's sobs were cut off as if they had been turned off.

"For mercy sake, shut up, Liz Henry!" they heard her say as she closed the door.

Out in the white street, silent save for a brush of icy branches in a sighing wind, Marcia had Foxhall's arm in both her own.

"I can't do it," she said; "I can't live in that house. Those two poor old ghosts would face us every day, Foxhall."

"Mighty tough," Foxhall muttered. "Mighty blamed tough! But I don't know whether we ought to give up the house—somebody's going to live in it," he argued.

"Dearest, I can't bear it," she said. "The waste—and the cruelty. Those two have worked hard all their lives. They've done the best they could with their equipment—and the handicap of the mortgage. They've had children and lost them. What kind of a country do we live in that can let its old people end their days like that?"

"I know," said Foxhall. "I always think it's a rotten deal. But we can't do anything, can we?"

"Can't we?" said Marcia, tensely. "Can't we? I've that two thousand from Aunt Julia I was going to put into furniture. Suppose I put it into the house and you pay the rest, and we let them live in it as long as they live."

"But what'll they live on!" cried Foxhall, aghast.

"I could give a few music lessons a month and never notice it, and turn the money over to them. Think, dear, it's their lives—all the rest of the life they've got."

"And what'll we do?" he demanded.

"Rent—for a little while. Or even—wait, for a little while."

"Oh, let's rent," said Foxhall.

He kissed her. "I'll do it," he said, "but it's yo[illegible] deal. I'll own up I'm doing it mostly for you."

"It's not nearly so reckless as buying a [illegible] would be—anybody would do that," said Marcia, thoughtfully. "Let's go and tell Tilson now, before we change our minds."

Ben Tilson had two little rooms over the calaboose—which was the Katytown term for police station. He lived there alone, with a cornet. They could hear his cornet all up and down Main street on summer evenings, and stragglers in the calaboose woke and cursed or were charmed by its wavering strains.

"Two thousand down, balance in payments at stated times," said he. "Have the papers for you tomorrow. Drop in my office. Goin' to live in it yourselves, are you?"

"No—not right away," Foxhall owned.

Heavy boots were on the stairs leading to his rooms. A voice was calling: "Ben Tilson! Ben Tilson!"

He flung open the door and Bart Robey, the Katytown Chief of Police, stood there. Bart was [illegible] and gentle—all but his boots and his voice.

"Say," he said, "have you got any skim' milk?"

In his arms was a baby.

"Say, no," Ben said, imperturbably, "but I got some coffee hot on the back of the stove. I'll get a cup."

"Peach of a father you'd be," said the Chief. "You might pass 'im the root beer. Evenin', Miss Marcia. Evenin', Mr. Phelps. Look at this exhibit, will you?"

It was a little baby, hardly six months old. She was quite silent save for groping breaths, but they were contented breaths. She stared fixedly at the light of Ben's tipsy central burner and with an air of intense abstraction chewed a blanket corner. She was quite clean and dainty and owned a fuzz of black hair.

"Have you arrested—it, Bart?" Foxhall asked.

"Run in its ma," said the Chief. "She come to town on the 'through'—got off the train drunk and mussed up. I happened to be up there and I escorted her down to headquarters. She's pretty sick—got the doctor with her now. Say, ain't it a cute little bundle?"

"Give her to me," said Marcia, peremptorily.

Ben's room had one rocker and there Marcia sat with the baby in her arms.

"Open the draft, Ben," she said. "It's cold here. Bart, pull down this shade, please, and give me that box for a footstool. Foxhall, you run over to the hotel and ask Madge to boil a little water and fill a clean bottle—a boiled bottle, Foxhall; you help her. What are you going to do with her?" she asked Bart.

"Leave it with its ma, I s'pose."

"But if she's sick?"

"Jacks, I dunno."

"Would you mind seeing what the doctor says about her?"

The Chief took his orders and retreated. Ben was building up a roaring fire.

Foxhall came back and the bottle was set to cool, with him to watch it. When the baby nestled and grunted, Marcia stooped to it, rocked it, crooned

"And you'll make it some hot coffee," said Bart from the stairs.

They parted in the quiet street, the Chief almost violent in his thanks. The same icy crackle was in the branches, the same protesting squeak was in the snow—but there was another area of sensation in the two who footed there. The house of Liz Fred and Liz Henry was forgotten, and so were their ineffectual tears.

When they reached Marcia's home, Foxhall insisted on coming in and watching.

"I can't be bothered with it," she affirmed, with decision. "In the morning, Marcia, we'll take it back."

"There isn't any back," Marcia explained, "and I'll take care of it, mama."

Foxhall hardly heard the plaints of Mrs. Banks which went on for some time. He merely sat and watched Marcia. And Marcia didn't forget him—she was too deeply in love ever to be unconscious of him for a moment—but she was excludingly absorbed in the baby. She had found some small night garments of the younger children and she overrode her mother with a lovely consciousness of being in the simple right. Mrs. Banks might have some good sense, but she had not always a deeper wisdom.

The news that Liz Fred and Liz Henry had been left in a bare house for their final week in Katytown made Katytown indignant.

Bart, the drayman, claimed to act on instructions from Ben Tilson, who was local Poor Commissioner.

The situation seized on the imagination of the Katytown women, and they hurriedly arranged matters. A chair was spared from here, a rug from there, a table from somewhere else. By noon of the day following Luther Falk's onslaught the sitting room and dining room of the old house were again habitable.

"It's only for the week," everybody said. "Let's make 'em as comfortable as we can for their last week. And let's carry them in all the food we can."

So not only the plain, nourishing food with which Katytown had been wont to sustain these two now found its way to their doors, but cakes and pastry and odorous casseroles. The little pantry overflowed and the deal table in the kitchen was laden. Those who dropped in to call were carried off to the kitchen to admire. Every dish was known to Liz Fred and Liz Henry by the name of the giver and was so told off in the display.

"It's almost like having wedding presents," Liz Fred said, with her twisted smile.

Under this unaccustomed sun Liz Fred and Liz Henry themselves took on a wintry bloom. Every morning, having now no work to do, and not knowing who might drop in to bring an offering, the two put on their decent best—merinos with white lace fronts.

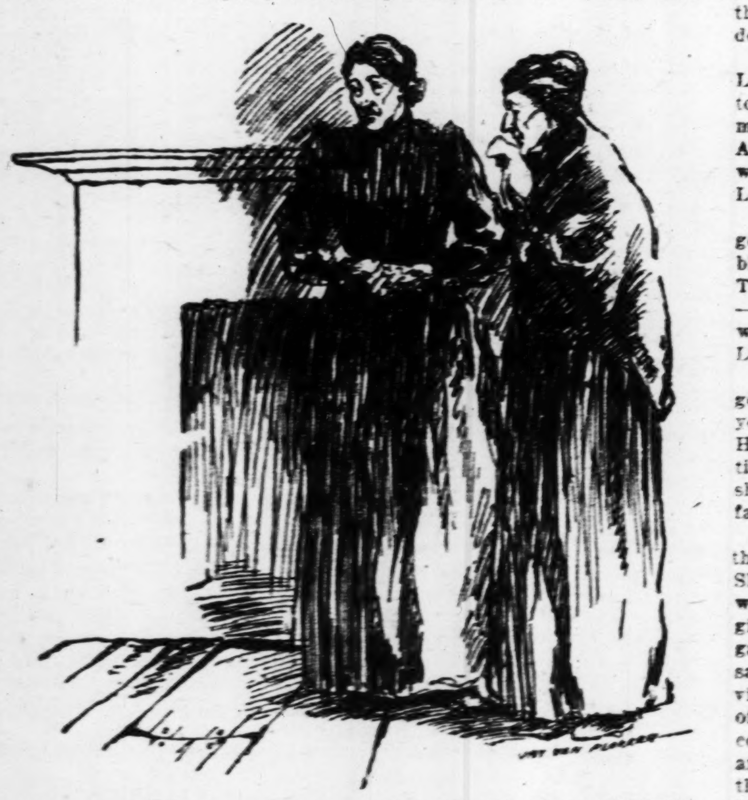
"Because we won't have no place to wear them when we get—where we're goin'," said Liz Fred, sagely, "so we might as well flam out in them now."

Sitting thus one evening, in their black merinos, upon all the borrowed furniture, it was Liz Henry who brought forth first a groan and then an idea.

"Four days left," she said. "I keep thinkin' of the things I meant to do for folks."

Liz Fred said nothing. She was moving her shoulders in a little rocking motion as if she was hurt all over.

"I s'pose," Liz Henry continued, "it's some like dying—you're never quite ready. I was thinkin' about the poppy-seed I promised Mis' Spate. Now I can't take it to her."



"To the poorhouse—are you goin'?" asked Liz Henry. "Didn't I see you was bent on it?" cried Liz Fred, harshly.

"There's Mis' Walker I promised to go in and set with and read to a while,' Liz Fred said. "I ain't done it."

"An' I never showed Mis' Plant that new lace stitch. Nor helped Lyddy with her sewing for the little girl she took in."

"What's the use now?" said Liz Fred, harshly. "No use raking up all that now."

Liz Henry began to cry. "I feel like I'd died and been buried," she said, "with all my sensations in me."

Suddenly Liz Fred said: "Say!"

Liz Henry looked up, startled and sniffling.

"We got our four days left. Why not get such things done anyway?" said her sister.

Liz Henry continued to cry, forlornly. "We couldnt," she said. "Not with the snow so deep and all."

"They ain't got our galoshes," said Liz Fred. "Not yet they ain't. Come along—let's do some of 'em anyway. Let's make a list and start out now."

Liz Henry was apathetic, but as the list began to grow under Liz Fred's fingers, she joined in:

"We promised Marcia Banks our fuchsia, but she could get that after we're gone."

"Why not have the fun of taking it to her ourselves?" said Liz Fred.

The snow was falling gently and beautifully when the two set out next day. They were passibly well dressed—a stranger seeing them would have taken them to be two motherly villagers, carrying a well-wrapped plant to a friend. When they opened the gate to Marcia's comfortable home they looked like any of her mother's visitors. Indeed, until a month ago, when the poorfarm had been decided on, that was what they were. It was as if that decision, at one blow, had robbed them of station and consideration. Now they seemed to have no identity aside from that day, four days hence.

When Liz Henry and Liz Fred arrived Marcia was sitting by the fire with the baby.

"Say, that's the baby, ain't it?" said Liz Henry. "We heard all about it."

Liz Fred said nothing, but with her thumb and fingers she touched the baby's arm. She looked at Marcia shyly: "Kitten,' she said, "ain't it?"

"We brought you our fuchsia,' said Liz Henry, and unwrapped it. "We had it five years—we raised it. Ain't it a handsome thing?" And when Marcia demurred at taking it now, Liz Fred cried: "Shucks! We wanted the fun of giving it away."

"We ain't never had much of that sort of fun," said Liz Henry, and, if she had any stray tendency to tears, they dried under the mandatory look of Liz Fred, who cried:

"Oh, Miss Marcia, we have been having the best afternoon! Yes, sir; and we're going to have three days more just like it."

They poured it all out, the story of the done and the undone.

"And tonight," said Liz Henry, "I'm going to teach Mis' Plant to make 'three-and-five.' And tomorrow all day we're going to help Lyddy sew."

"And next day I'm goin' to read to old blind Mis' Walker. There's some more, too—if the Commissioiners would let us stay over," Liz Fred laughed.

"We've got time to go to old Mis' Weber's yet tonight," said Liz Henry. "We been putting it off ever since she took sick in the fall.

Marcia had never seen them so human, so alive. She realized that she was on their list, to be given the fuchsia—it gave her a curious and salutary feeling to be visited, on a list, instead of visiting. Marcia was conscious of a dignity and a presence in both these women which she had never seen—perhaps she thought, because she had always unconsciously held them to be negligible, or at best merely to be ministered to.

She thought: "Oh, I'm going to tell them now. If Foxhall has the papers, he must come up and we'll tell them now."

She left the baby with them and ran to telephone him. Then she insisted on their staying for tea.

Foxhall came in and Marcia turned to him with a restful sense of sharing which was one of the happinesses of her love.

"Foxhall's voice is so deep and furry," she had once said, "you just have to love him."

The deep furry voice had never been gentler than when he told Liz Fred and Liz Henry what he and Marcia proposed doing—and spread the deed before their eyes.

Never afterward could Marcia and Foxhall think of that hour without a kind of shame that any human being should be so abjectly grateful for food and shelter—"For the rudiments of food and shelter," as Foxhall put it.

It was only now that there became evident the depth of desolation which the poor old beings had suffered.

"Raised from the dead—that's what it is," said Liz Henry. "I ain't much—and Liz Fred ain't much, either—but we thank you and God."

"We can't thank anybody so's it sounds like anything,' said Liz Fred. "You gotta know!" she cried, fiercely, as they were leaving.

She stopped again, laid her brown thumb and finger on the little sleeve and muttered, thickly: "Kitten!"

Half an hour later Bart Robey called Marcia over the telephone.

"It's an awful shame, Miss Banks," he said. "I'm sure they done the best they could—but the baby's ma—she died."

To Marcia's startled question he had no satisfactory reply. No, not a word. Never really right in her head since they took her in. Died without sensing anything save that her hands kept groping around for the baby. No, no idea what her name was; no papers, no cards, hardly any money in her purse—nothing.

She went back to the library and told Foxhall. She had left the baby in the depths of a great chair, but when she returned he had her in his arms.

"Well, then, darling," he said, when Marcia told him, "what are we going to do about the baby?"

"How exactly like you not to say 'What are you going to do?'" she told him.

"I'm in on this," he said. "Shall we keep her?"

"Oh, Foxhall! We can't keep Liz Fred and Liz Henry going, in that house, and take the baby, too."

"Oh, thunder!' said Foxhall. "So we couldn't."

The baby awoke and joined in the talk with aimless gestures and emphatic kicking. Mrs. Banks came in and, because it seemed to be her due, they told her everything. And Mrs. Banks was like the great adamant voice of certain "sane" public opinion: Nonsense. The child must be turned over to the society. Liz Fred and Liz Henry should have gone to the poorfarm—but that couldn't be helped now, since "you two have been so headlong. And a mercy, too, if it keeps you from saddling yourselves for life with a waif."

"Mother, dear!" Marcia said, helplessly.

"Oh, your mother knows best," said Mrs. Banks. "And this reminds me: I have a fresh coffee cake for Liz Henry and Liz Fred. I'll run over with it now."

"Oh, Foxhall,' said Marcia when she had gone, "isn't there a better idealism than common sense?"

"You bet there is," said Foxhall.

"Dearest,' said Marcia, solemnly, "can't you see why it is that I adore the ground you walk on?"

They spent an hour over the figures. They stretched and squeezed their little budget. But they dare not let it include the adoption of two old ladies and a baby at one stroke.

"It's no use," said Marcia at last. "I'll telephone Bart tomorrow."

"But we're doing the less useful thing—the less social thing," said Foxhall. "Liz Henry and Liz Fred aren't so important as this baby."

"We're keeping our word,' said Marcia. "That's social."

Liz Henry and Liz Fred were in the kitchen, before a savory slice of pot roast, freshly heated, and a dish of baked macaroni and cheese.

"Though I dunno, I'm sure, how we can expect to eat at all,' said Liz Henry. "Oh, ain't it heaven—ain't it heaven!"

"It's like having a hill rolled off your chest,' said Liz Fred. "Here we had an afternoon like other folks—and now this."

"We haven't much furniture, but it'd be paradise to live in the kitchen," said Liz Henry. "And I just thought of this;

INTRODUCTION.

You needn't be afraid of this puzzle. Once you get past the long words that lead off Vertical and Horizontal you will find it delightfully smooth going, albeit in interesting new country. For instance, you will find a nautical word to increase your vocabulary and the next time you see "a tower" you will know exactly what to call it. In the way of a hint. Vertical 25 is "buy" and Horizontal 25 is "Ben." The answer will be published in next week's Sunday Magazine.

A Winter's Tale

That farewell night we dreaded, there won't be none!"

Mrs. Banks knocked at the side door.

"Come in and have a taste of something," Liz Henry besought her. "Come in and help us celebrate."

"We're women folks to home again," said Liz Fred, "all owin' to your young folks. Oh, Mis' Banks"——

"Marcia told me," said Mrs. Banks, warming her hands at the cooking stove "And I must say, foolish as I think it was, I'm thankful, after all."

"Oh, now, that's good of you," Liz Fred cried.

"Yes," said Mrs. Banks, her thin lips tightening about her words, "if it hadn't been for you two and the house, we'd have had a baby saddled on to us."

Mrs. Banks told it, with the Katytown manner of savoring the news in her enjoyment of it. In her pleased preoccupation she did not observe that Liz Henry and Liz Fred said nothing; that when, being talked out, she went away, they still said nothing save to thank her for the coffee cake.

"Don't mention it," said Mrs. Banks. "I love doing things for folks."

When the door closed behind her, the two old women sat staring at each other. In that hour they seemed to have grown very old.

"What we goin' to do?" said Liz Henry at last.

Liz Fred threw up her head. "Do? Why should we do anything?"

"But the baby"——

"The baby'll find a home somewhere else.'

"But Miss Marcia—she'd like to keep it"——

"She'll have one of her own."

"But, Liz Fred"——

"Don't Liz Fred me! I got a home. I don't have to be on the county. I got a place to stay the rest of my days. Do you think I'm going to be fool enough to give it up?"

At this Liz Henry began to cry her terrible owl-like quavers.

"Nor me. Oh, I dunno what to do, either!" she wailed.

"Well, I do," said Liz Fred. "I'm going to stay right straight here." She hurried upstairs to her room.

Liz Henry rose and locked the door and blew out the lamp. Then she sat down by the cooking stove. In the room above she could hear her sister's chair rock on a board by the kitchen stovepipe which heated her room. The stovepipe holes showed no light—Liz Fred, too, was sitting in the dark.

Some time after midnight Liz Henry rose and lighted a lamp. She went upstairs to her own room, across the passage from her sister's closed door. For half an hour she worked, gathering up her few belongings and laying them in order. She could hear Liz Fred moving about and thought she was preparing for bed. But when at last she came out of her room, Liz Fred's door was wide open and she herself stood in a litter of the contents of bureau drawers.

"Are you—are you goin'?" asked Liz Henry, breathlessly.

"Yes,' said Liz Fred, listlessly, "I am."

"To the poorfarm—are you goin' to the poorfarm?"

"Didn't I see you was bent on it?" said Liz Fred, harshly.

Liz Henry crossed her threshold. They were both blinking, blinking and bent—still more aged since they had last met.

"It ain't no such thing," Liz Henry cried, shrilly. "If you're goin' you're goin' for you own reasons.'

"You don't know what I'm going for," Liz Fred blazed, furiously.

Liz Henry stood for a moment, rubbing at her forehead.

"Well," she said at last, "it's so late now let's lay down with our clothes on. That way there won't be no farewell night."

Early next morning, before the sun rose clear in a white east, the two went three times from the little house carrying light bundles: casseroles and tins were left here and there; and a store of food—roasts, macaroni, coffee cake—at old, lame Mis' Bardwell's and blind Mis' Walker's and sick Mis' Webber's door. To ward 8 o'clock the two climbed the stairway to Ben Tilson's rooms.

"We wanted to know if we could go—where we're goin'—now," said Liz Fred. "On the 8:45."

"Now?" said Ben. "This morning?"

Quick to sense that this was a moment which had better be taken advantage of, Ben said that he thought it could be arranged—and arranged it. He did not question them.

"Couldn't—couldn't our things be sent after us?" Liz Fred said, low.

"If they're ready, might as well stop for 'em now," said Ben, obliviously. So the two sat in the car before the white house while Ben and the driver brought out the shabby old valises. As he turned from the locking of the door,

A Champion Speller Tells How She Won First Honors

Miss Mary Gallup of Carrollton, Ill., who recently won the Illinois State championship as the best speller at a contest held in Springfield, is only 14 years old. In the article below, which she has written for the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine, she tells how she prepared for the contest and carried off the honors.

By MARY GALLUP.

ENTERED the Carrollton public school in September, 1916. I found spelling very easy in that grade, and it continued to be very easy to learn all through the grades.

In December, 1924, when I was a pupil in the seventh grade a contest was to be held in Carrollton to select the winner for Greene County. About a month before that time I applied myself very closely to my spelling work in school. I also studied some at home in the evening. When I entered the contest I succeeded in getting the third prize, a bronze medal, and $2.

FIRST
ILLINOIS STATE SPELLING CONTEST 1924

MISS MARY GALLUP.

When the 1925 contest for the county was announced I set to work, with the help of my teacher, and prepared again to enter. We did our practice work after school, during which time it wasn't anything unusual for me to write from 1000 to 1500 words in an evening. As I used the Palmer method of writing I never tired.

The words I misspelled were written down and I looked them over carefully for the next evening's work. At the county spelling contest I won first honor, and as a reward I received a $5 gold piece and a gold medal.

During the holidays I did more practice work, preparatory for my work in Springfield as champion of Greene County.

Dec. 29 I entered the State contest at Springfield. The contest formerly was held in the State Capitol, but it was held this time at one of the school buildings, for the benefit of the children, so that they would feel more at home and could spell better.

Forty-four counties were represented in this spelling bee. Nine lists of words were given. The first list contained 100 words and the following lists 50 each. Eighteen contestants spelled the first 100 words correctly, 12 the first 150 words, 10 the first 200 words, six the first 250 words, five the first 300 words, four the first 350 words, and four had all the first 400 words right.

On the eighth list each of the four contestants still in the contest missed two or more words. I missed only two and was declared the winner. Adella Shimonsky and George Anderson tied for second place. They spelled another list of 50 words and George, who missed none of this list, took second, while Adella, who missed two of these, took third.

The words I missed were "bluing" and "isinglass." George missed "forty-fourth," "gluing" and "isinglass," and Adella missed "bantam," "gluing" and "isinglass.'

We, the first three contestants were awarded, gold, silver and bronze medals in addition to banners for our schools at the evening meeting of the first day of the Illinois State Teachers' Association meeting.

In regard to my methods I followed in learning to spell I feel that it is somewhat of a natural talent because my mother stood up many a time to the last in many spelling bees held in the country schools. In connection with this natural talent, hard work, a close application and stick-to-itiveness will make anyone a winner if a fairly good speller.

Probably, in closing, it would not be out of order to add an extract from our home paper:

"Notice how rapidly the ranks of the best spellers from 44 counties thinned out on the first hundred words, and how firmly the few survivors stood toward the finish. But it is the one who sticks to the end in any contest in life that the world delights to honor. Sticking to the last isn't luck—don't forget that. It's in being prepared to stick, and being prepared means work, hard work."

A Winter's Tale

something in the aspect of the two still figures in the car smote him with unwonted urgency.

To his amazement they both looked round at him and smiled.

"We are going," said Liz Fred with dignity and distinctness, "entirely from choice."

"Our own free choice," echoed Liz Henry.

"Of course," mumbled Ben, not comprehending.

"And Mr. Tilson,' said Liz Henry, "on the way back from the depot we want the man should leave this note for Miss Marcia Banks. He won't forget, will he?"

"Let's leave it now,' said Ben. "Plenty time."

When the doorbell rang, Marcia was bathing the baby and crying quietly. Her mother brought her the note. It waited for her while she dried the baby and rolled her in her blanket. Then she read the ill-spelled lines:

"Dear Miss Marcia: We decided on the farm after all. We think it will be an eazey life and we're both getting lazey. Much obliged all the same and love. Love agen.

"LIZ HENRY AND LIZ FRED."

Why A Million American Women Are Now Using La-May Face Powder

Why did La-May (French, Poudre L'Ame) become famous so quickly? For two reasons: First, it is guaranteed absolutely pure. It does not contain rice powder, white lead or any injurious substance. Second, women say La-May looks better and stays on longer than any other powder.

Girls, if you honestly value the charm of a lovely complexion, do not deny yourselves this pure La-May. Every box bears a certificate guaranteeing it does not contain any injurious ingredient. A reward of five thousand dollars is offered any chemist who finds La-May contains harmful ingredients. This offer has been standing years, yet no one has been able to claim the reward, because La-May is pure.

When you ask for your package of La-May be wise enough to refuse substitutes. Substitutes are offered only by demonstrators or dealers trying to make a larger profit at your expense. La-May is sold at thirty-five cents, sixty cents and one dollar in White, Flesh, Brunette and Tan. Remember, no one can buy a better, a finer, a purer or safer powder than La-May at any price. Save this notice.

It's Safe to Use La-May—It's Pure!

THE NEW FASHION IN PARENTS

By CLIFFORD K. WRIGHT.

WE ARE witnessing at the present moment an extraordinary change in the relations which exist between parents and children.

The barriers which were once so sharply and definitely drawn between them no longer exist. They have been broken down in a way so subtle and gradual as almost to escape notice.

As a result, modern parents are getting into closer contact with their children's interests and enjoying a far better understanding of the children themselves.

To what can we ascribe this new relationship?

It is due, I think, primarily to a radical alteration in the parents themselves. We hear a great deal nowadays about the new child, but the new parent has excited little attention or comment.

The old-fashioned parents—intolerant, self-righteous and exacting—those foibles and prejudices have been so vividly and skillfully portrayed by Mr. Galsworthy in his "Forsyte Saga," appears to us now almost like some mythical creature of the past. It is hard to believe that there ever were such beings.

On the other hand, the present might be aptly called the Peter Pan age of parents. For the parent of today obdurately refuses to grow up. His gaiety and high spirits are infectious. He is ready to embark on any adventure—on games and "rags" and pranks.

Someone has said that genius is simply youth recovered at will. If the definition is a sound one, genius is certainly more prevalent today than it has ever been since the Golden Age.

Many things have conspired to keep the present generation of parents young in body as well as in mind. There are, for example, the ever-growing facilities for golf, tennis and other outdoor games in which young and middle-aged people can participate on equal terms. Then there is the modern craze for dancing, than which there is no more powerful rejuvenating influence, and an equal enthusiasm for which is evinced by the father of 45 and the daughter of 18.

Again, the cinema and the wireless set are not without influence in the matter. Each has helped to unify the once divergent interests of parents and children.

In most families there is almost inevitably a short, but critical, period during which the conflict of wills takes place between parents and children. Today that conflict has not disappeared, but its effects are generally not so serious as they used to be. Cases where it results in bitter quarrels and permanent estrangements are becoming rarer and rarer.

This also, I think, is due to the rejuvenation and the consequent greater elasticity of memory of the modern parent. He remembers his own rather turbulent feelings and experiences when he passed through the same phase of development as his son is going through now. Consequently, he can show greater sympathy and a more tolerant understanding instead of indulging in the explosive outbursts and the "Get-out-of-my - house - sir - while - you - hold - those-views" attitude which would probably have been adopted a quarter of a century ago.

There are, of course, those who deplore the "free and easy" deportment of modern youth towards their parents, and regret the disappearance of the deferential attitude which characterized former generations of youth.

But the truth is that this attitude, although in itself quite charming, was frequently insincere. When analyzed, it would be found to have its origin in fear rather than respect.

The modern attitude of young people towards their elders, if more casual and less decorous, does at least bear the hall-mark of sincerity. It is covered by no deceptive veneer of politeness. But in its very offhandedness it betokens a very genuine regard.

How Girl Detective Trapped "The Swan"

robberies. Scotland Yard was certain, even, that his first lieutenant, The Swan, communicated with him regularly, reported to him her coups and received his advice and instructions. But shadowing of his visitors and of him, and examination of his mail between the postoffice and his door had given no results.

The upstairs maid watched the Kemp mail closely during the next 24 hours. Letters came from Berlin, from Brussels and one with the Paris postmark. It had been posted at Place Vendome. It did not occur to Agent Drake at the moment, however, that Place Vendome fronts the Hotel Ritz.

As was his custom Kemp ran through his mail at the breakfast table and then gave it to his upstairs maid to put on his bedroom desk. Also, as was his custom, Kemp then went out for a morning stroll through the perfumed paths of Regents Park.

When she heard the front door close behind her master, Agent Drake dropped her broom and duster and read the letter from Paris. It was a hastily written note from some correspondent who signed her initials only, a friendly note that spoke of such intimate things as Grace's music lesson and her progress in French. A woman's intuition warned her that in her hand she held a letter from The Swan to her master. But she saw only a bit of gossip about the education of an unknown Grace. It is the privilege of even a girl detective to be petulant. Special Agent Drake exercised her right and flung the baffling letter onto the desk with a very ill-tempered flourish. Then she dabbed her fingers at it, to straighten it out beside the other letters. In her temper she upset the master's bottle of ink.

The ink flowed over the desk blotter and the taunting letter which still was spread open. In her panic, Agent Drake, no longer detective, but her master's upstairs maid, seized a sheet of blotting paper and mopped up the ink puddle. When she lifted her blotting paper from the surface of the letter itself, which was totally ruined, Special Agent Drake almost screamed—as is the way with women.

Through the splurge of spilled ink and from between the lines of the scribbled confidences about Grace, there was revealed the faint, wavering tracery of letters that shone white in the pale blue hastily blotted ink stain. The words of one perfectly legible line, almost burned into Agent Drake's brain: "I have the Josephine Pearls"—— And further down the page, between two other lines of the original writing, was the sentence: "I am at the Ritz as Mlle. Ducine."

Special Agent Drake lost no time in speculating upon her discovery—of the secret she had sought for three years, nor in indecision about her next move. The urge of "now or never" tugged at her. Kemp would be coming in within half an hour. She decided to "take a chance."

Without stopping to doff her maid's cap or her apron, Agent Drake slipped out of the servants' door, hailed a taxi and sped to the nearest telephone booth. When she had been put through to the Commissioner, she cried out, over the wire:

"Don't ask me to explain, but act quick. Surround Kemp's house and shadow him if he goes out before I get in. Wire Paris to hold a Mlle. Ducine, who is at the Ritz. She has the Roupin pearls. I'll be in within 20 minutes, but don't wait to move."

Before Agent Drake's taxi had threaded the traffic to the yard, a cordon of plain-clothes men were stretched around the Kemp house, and the Paris police had received their hint to call upon a Mlle. Ducine at the Hotel Ritz in the Place Vendome.

Late that afternoon the Commissioner of Scotland Yard gathered around him his chief inspectors. Close to his desk sat the brown-haired girl who had been Kemp's maid servant for three long years. Kemp himself was in the detention cells below, and, in Paris, The Swan was in custody. The Josephine pearls in the temporary keeping of Inspector Maxim.

"Kemp's manner of communication with his tools in the underworld, and with The Swan has been discovered," the Commissioner announced to his staff. "It is the simplest and most astounding method of secret writing we have ever known. Kemp and The Swan have employed it for years, no doubt, and have thus kept us off the track by having never to approach each other in the wake of any one of their big crimes. "We have applied Kemp's cor-

HEARING RESTORED OFTEN IN 24 HOURS

New Discovery, Formerly Known as Rattle Snake Oil, Produces Amazing Results.

Deafness and Head Noises need not be endured, according to Mr. D. Dey, a 67-year old citizen of Greeley, Nebraska, who says: "I have used K-17, formerly known as Rattle Snake Oil, only two weeks, and my hearing is restored perfectly. The relief was almost instantaneous, and now the awful head noises have almost disappeared. My catarrh, a case of many years' standing, is also improving wonderfully."

Mr. Dey's experience, amazing as it may seem, is only typical of thousands of others. In fact, we are so confident that K-17 will cure you, too, that we offer to send a large $2.00 bottle for only one dollar on ten days' free trial.

This is your opportunity to try K-17 without delay, or risking a cent. Write today—a card will do—to Greene Laboratories, 6076 Greene Building, Kansas City, Kansas, and the treatment will be mailed at once. If at the end of 10 days you do not hear better, feel better, head noises relieved, or for any reason are not satisfied with the treatment, your money will be promptly refunded. This offer is fully guaranteed, so write today.

r. Charles Dickens.

T IS generally agreed among the well-disposed that Charles Dickens was a man with considerable powers of observation, and it is interesting find this proposition handsomely, and enthusiastically, supported in the tish Medical Journal. In the cur- number of the Journal Dr. C. G. rachan writes with expert admiration the way in which Dickens described, "Great Expectations," the illness m which Mrs. Joe Gargary suffered a result of being struck on the back the head by her unknown assailant. ickens' account of the effect produced the unfortunate lady may be found in novel itself; the point which has oked Dr. Strachan's very interesting ibute is the accuracy with which Dickens described clinical details of her con- ition at a time when doctors them- ves had not the knowledge of cerebral rgery which would have enabled them define and explain her symptoms. The nguage of Dickens is, of course, that a layman, but Dr. Strachan goes over e case in detail and shows how the vel faithfully represents the symp- ms which would now be recognized as natural consequence of "a widespread sion of the posterior aspect of the brain." The obvious explanation is that Mrs. Gargery's illness was one which Dickens had himself observed in real life; and, remarks his present commentator, "the extreme accuracy of the description shows him to have been possessed of powers of medical observation far in advance of the clinicians of his day."

This will all be very gratifying reading to those who hold that great writers really do see more than average humanity, and sometimes see it more clearly than those who have been trained to look for it. But it is perhaps a good job that Dickens is too near at hand for supporters of the opposite school to do much in the way of myth-making. Were Dickens a shadowy and distant author, how easily their sylogism would run—"Great Expectations" must have been written by a doctor, and that a very astute one; Dickens was not a doctor; therefore "Great Expectations" must have been written by Lord Lister. A great deal of the Baconian heresy rests on hardly more respectable foundations —Manchester Guardian.

gun was at Zagonyi's side. He was cut down.

"A brave man; for that reason I felt some pity to kill him." Such was Zagonyi's requiem for him.

The bodyguard now found the way clear and entered the town of Springfield. "Up and down the streets of the town fly the affrighted enemy," writes Junius Henri Browne to the New York Tribune. "They still retain their weapons. There is desultory sniping. Soon the streets are cleared, except for dead and injured."

"As we dashed through the streets the women came out from their houses to the gates of their garden, waved their handkerchiefs and brought out flags, and did not frighten them at all—the shooting and the fighting," so Zagonyi describes the scene. He rallied his men now at the Springfield Courthouse, their "faces blackened from powder and dust," and counted them. With himself there were 70. "The rest, without horses and wounded and about 30 who had dispersed in pursuit of the enemy, I could not gather up; and it was midnight before they reached me—and some of them next day."

One of the wounded was found at dawn by a man led to him by a dog that had joined the guard on one of its excursions to the outskirts of St. Louis, and which nestled against the wounded man all night, sallying forth at dawn to bring help to him.

The action itself lasted an hour and three-quarters after the first charge. In the end there were 16 of the guard dead and 25 recorded as injured, while 40 horses fell, one officer having three shot from under him. Zagonyi counted 106 slain Confederates.

"Many of the men had lost their caps and had their clothes torn to pieces," Gen. Fremont wrote to his wife, and you can hear the proud Hungarian leader as the commander reports him, ——"as Zagonyi says, 'not any more fit to appear as bodyguard.'"

Fearing to stay because he could not hold the city in the face of the Southern troops should they return, Zagonyi fell back to await reinforcements after he had hoisted the Stars and Stripes on the Courthouse.

Meantime White and the Prairie Scouts, who, through misunderstanding, had failed to join Zagonyi, had come up and on another part of the field had done valiant service in dispersing the enemy. But White was captured and taken about 12 miles distant, where the Southerners stopped at the house of a Union man. That loyalist slipped from his home, gathered a company of 17 Home Guards, as the Northern sympathizers called themselves, and White, hearing them return, slipped out the door and at their head captured his captors, taking them back to Springfield that night, where he found Zagonyi's dead and wounded. He gathered together some 26 stragglers of his and Zagonyi's units and with them held the city for 24 hours, until Gen. Sigel entered with reinforcements.

The story nears an end. Dispatches, three days after the fight, informed St. Louis that Gen. Fremont was to be replaced with Gen. Hunter. On Nov. 2 he was relieved. With the remnant of his bodyguard he returned, disheartened, to St. Louis. The attack on Price, for which he had made all arrangements, was never carried out.

Mrs. Fremont gives a picture of that return, of the Brant Mansion, gay with autumn flowers, of the gathered relatives of the bodyguard thronging Chouteau avenue. Then, far down the street, "the serried crowd was parting, its dark, restless masses glowing in the lurid, wavering torch light, looking literally like waves; and passing through them came horsemen stamped with the splendid signet of battle, their wounded horses and battle-torn uniforms bringing cries of love and thanks from those for whom they had been battling. They halted before the door and the sudden ring and flash of their new sabers gave beauty to the picture."

There is little to add. Those opposed to Fremont were in control. The bodyguard was ordered to be disbanded. On the assumption that it was organized by Fremont, without authority, its members were refused pay, rations, and fodder for their steeds. Their horses were seized. Gen. Sturgis was ordered to disband the command. In the end he offered Maj. Zagonyi opportunity to raise a cavalry regiment, retaining such officers of the guard as he thought proper. But the offer was declined. Washington had said that Fremont's bodyguard must go. And, despite its charge, unique in American military annals, it was obliterated.

saloon at Hester and Chrystie streets, many of his most successful songs were written. These he peddled to theater managers, minstrels and anyone who would buy them. Sometimes he got $5, occasionally as much as $25. His shoes had holes in them, and he had no overcoat. Clothing that friends gave him he pawned. A nickel's worth of apples or of turnips from a grocery store would serve him as a meal.

In such squalor and poverty he died. Early one winter morning in 1864 his friend, George Cooper, was called to the lodging house at 15 Bowery. Foster, lying on the floor of a hall, had blood oozing from a wound in his throat and a bad bruise upon his head. His body was innocent of clothing.

"'I'm done for,' he gasped, and begged for a drink," says Cooper, "but before I could get it for him the doctor arrived and forbade it. He had wonderful big brown eyes and they looked up at me with an appeal I can never forget. * * We took him to the hospital. In addition to the cut on his throat and the bruise on his forehead, he was suffering from a bad burn on his thigh, caused by the overturning of a spirit lamp."

In three days Foster was dead.

Science and the radio, three-fourths of a century after his song was written, have discovered the material geographical river that Stephen Foster never saw. But his was a greater discovery. He had found the way to the human heart by a rushing stream of melody that will flow on forever.

How Famous Movie Stars Keep their Hair Beautiful

Try this quick and simple method which thousands, WHO MAKE BEAUTY A STUDY, now use. See the difference it makes in the appearance of YOUR HAIR.

Note how it gives new life and lustre; how it brings out all the wave and color.

See how soft and silky, bright and glossy your hair will look.

THE attractiveness of even the most beautiful women depends upon the loveliness of their hair.

The hair is a frame or setting upon which the most beautiful, as well as the plainest woman, must depend.

Fortunately, beautiful hair is no longer a matter of luck.

You, too, can have beautiful hair if you shampoo it properly.

Proper shampooing is what makes it soft and silky. It brings out all the real life and lustre, all the natural wave and color and leaves it fresh-looking, glossy and bright.

When your hair is dry, dull and heavy, lifeless, stiff and gummy, and the strands cling together, and it feels harsh and disagreeable to the touch, it is because your hair has not been shampooed properly.

While your hair must have frequent and regular washing to keep it beautiful, it cannot stand the harsh effect of ordinary soaps. The free alkali in ordinary soaps soon dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle and ruins it.

That is why leading motion picture stars and thousands of discriminating women, everywhere, now use Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo. This clear, pure and entirely greaseless product brings out all the real beauty of the hair and cannot possibly injure. It does not dry the scalp or make the hair brittle, no matter how often you use it.

If you want to see how really beautiful you can make your hair look, just follow this simple method.

A Simple, Easy Method

FIRST, wet the hair and scalp in clear, warm water. Then apply a little Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo.

Two or three teaspoonfuls will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather. This should be rubbed in thoroughly and briskly with the finger tips, so as to loosen the dandruff and small particles of dust and dirt that stick to the scalp.

After rubbing in the rich, creamy Mulsified lather give the hair a good rinsing. Then use another application of Mulsified, again working up a lather and rubbing it in briskly as before. After the final washing, rinse the hair and scalp in at least two changes of clear, fresh, warm water. This is very important.

Just Notice the Difference

YOU will notice the difference in your hair even before it is dry, for it will be delightfully soft and silky.

After a Mulsified shampoo you will find your hair will dry quickly and evenly and have the appearance of being much thicker and heavier than it really is.

If you want to always be remembered for your beautiful, well-kept hair, make it a rule to set a certain day each week for a Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo. This regular weekly shampooing will keep the scalp soft and the hair fine and silky, bright, fresh-looking and fluffy, wavy and easy to manage.

You can get Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo at any drug store or toilet goods counter, anywhere in the world. A 4-ounce bottle should last for months.

Splendid for children —fine for men.

She hated to acknowledge the Corn

So goes the old saying. And few indeed, like to confess a corn. It seems such an undainty thing—an admission of physical untidiness. One may conceal the presence of a corn, but not its ill-effect. It shows itself in the face—and the humor.

That twinge in the toe means a frown on the forehead—and a thorn in the disposition. But how foolish to carry a secret sorrow in your shoe! You can end the pain in ten seconds—and the corn in two days—with a pleasant Blue-jay plaster.

Blue-jay is the efficient way to rout a corn. It leaves nothing to your guesswork. You do not have to decide how much or how little to put on. Each plaster is a complete treatment, with just the right amount of the magic medication to end the corn. Simply put on the plaster—it does the rest.

Fretful and irritable till REM stopped his cough

No wonder Mrs. Roeder looks happy! Her boy Vernon, perched high in her arms, is over the bad cough that was making him "fretful and irritable" a short time back.

The Roeders live at 2542 W. Nicholas St., Philadelphia. Next door to them, at 2544, lives Mrs. Levinson. It was her happy experience with REM that lead Mrs. Roeder to try it for Vernon.

How the "good word" does spread!

> "My boy Vernon had a very bad cough and cold this past month," says Mrs. Roeder. "He coughed considerably at night, and hardly got any sleep. It kept him fretful and irritable.
> "My neighbor, Mrs. Levinson, had given REM to her boy Bobby and it did him so much good that I got some for Vernon.
> "It was really wonderful how it relieved him. Soon his cough was all gone. Several other families that I have recommended REM to since then got just as good results from it as I did."

Grateful users who have passed the good word along are largely responsible for REM'S widespread popularity.

A special ingredient in REM—effective, harmless—is not found in ordinary cough syrups. Clinging to your throat as it is swallowed, REM spreads a soothing, healing film over the sore, inflamed membranes.

No Opiates in REM. And pleasant to take.

Ask your druggist for REM—the blue package with the round orange label. You can have your money back if it doesn't help you. You're the Judge and Jury.

The Ornamented Cuff

Up to Paris came the news! On the Riviera—at Cannes, Nice, Monaco—over at Biarritz, the ungloved hand is passé.

All because someone created the vogue of decorated cuffs—now gloves are lovelier than ever before, the final complement of a smart Spring costume.

Paris heard the news. Voilà! By cable we received style notes sketched by our representatives.

And now, Madame and Mademoiselle, the modes de rigueur of the Rue de la Paix are to be found in your own favorite shops here in the States.

Speed? Yes. It is our pleasure to transmit the mode from les Parisiennes to les Americaines with dispatch.

Just as if you had shopped in Paris you, too, may wear the smart gloves now seen on the Bois, at tea at the Ritz or before dinner at the Crillon.

Kayser observers in Paris keep us posted. So look to Kayser, as other wise women do, for all that is chic in gloves.

Note some of the latest models sketched here—they come in different shades in the proper silk weights for Spring. And the prices—such as would delight the smart but thrifty Parisienne.

WABASH CROSSING CASE TO GO TO U. S. SUPREME COURT

Railroad Announces Plan for Appeal Following Failure of Adjustment at Conference.

CITY REJECTS LINE'S COMPROMISE PLAN

Kinsey Describes Road's Attitude as Threat to Make Municipality Accede to Future Demands.

Appeal to the United States Supreme Court from the State order upholding the city's plan for elimination of the grade crossing at Delmar boulevard and the Wabash railway tracks will be taken by the Wabash. The State Supreme Court had approved the ity's plan, as embodied in a Public Service Commission order, last December.

N. S. Brown, vice president and general solicitor of the road, announced that the appeal would be taken, following a conference at the Mayor's office today, at which the city rejected a compromise proposal by the Wabash concerning limination of the Delmar crossing nd others between Lindell boulevard and Olive Street road.

Time for taking an appeal will expire in nine days.

Mayor Calls Conference.

The conference, attended by representatives of the city, the railway and property owners in the vicinity f the crossing, was called by Mayor Kiel, in the hope of reaching settlement of the differences beseen the road and the city. President Kinsey of the Board of Public ervice presided and made clear the ty's rejection of the compromise. characterized the attitude of the abash as a threat to make the y accede to demands of the road future crossing separations.

Brown read a lengthy proposed mpromise contract embodying e following points:

Acceptance by the Wabash of he city plan for Delmar, subect to certain changes, with immediate commencement of work n the viaduct.

Acceptance by the road of the plan of carrying streets southast of Delmar over the tracks, nstead of elevating the tracks.

Postponement of other crossg eliminations until the River es Peres is inclosed, removing nger of flooding the tracks.

Raising the Tracks.

Raising the tracks four and a alf feet above the ground level etween De Baliviere and Hamilon avenues, instead of two and half feet, as planned by the ity; depression of the tracks two et lower than the city plans at live Street road;; all in order give a better grade at Delmar tion.

Separation of the whole crossg project into four groups, viz. 1. Delmar. 2. Lindell and Un n. 3. De Baliviere, Wateran and Kingsbury. 4. Olive reet road, with consecutive rk by groups.

Payment by the Wabash of 275,000 for the Delmar work, mprising 60 per cent of cost of e viaduct proper, plus $40,000 wards cost of River des Peres lvert there.

Payment by the city of the enre cost of relocating the tracks rough Forest Park, in order make only one viaduct necesry at Lindell-Union.

Payment by the Wabash of 60 r cent of cost of elimination crossing other than Delmar, d 40 per cent by the city.

Provisions of Order.

The Public Service Commission State Supreme Court ordered Wabash to pay 60 per cent of entire cost of the Delmar work, the city 40 per cent. The city tends this is an unusually large oportion for the city, due to the clusion of the River des Peres vert, but has offered to bear 1-3 per cent of the cost at other ssings, leaving 66 2-3 to the abash.

About $100,000 is the difference tween 33 1-3 and 40 per cent, the amount of money the city fighting for. However, the city tends that this question of dion of cost at other crossings not enter into the Delmar mat- and that there is no reason the road should not submit nce as far as Delmar is con-replied to this contention conference that it desired the whole question of its End crossings settled before any work.

arly Decision Wanted.
